NIPPONESE PLANES DESTROY HUNGJAO AIRPORT WITH BOMBS

Chinese Get Good Start In Laying Down on Hongkew and Japanese Consulate Heaviest Bombardment of Four-Day Fighting Period.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Shanghai (Tuesday), Feb. 23.—Japanese soldiers lunged against Chinese bayonets and bullets dealing death over the entire Kiangwan-Chapei front today in a far-flung attempt to complete a surrounding movement and starve out the handful of defenders still stationed in the blasted ruins of Kiangwan village.

The Chinese air force suffered a heavy loss when eight Japanese airplanes destroyed the airdrome at Hungjao, 5 miles west of Shanghai, with a rain of 25 bombs. All hangars and planes within were consumed by fire that broke out with the bombs' explosion.

Rebuffed in every onslaught they have made on the center of the Chinese line at Kiangwan, the Japanese flung their full strength at the Chinese positions on both sides of the village. They launched vicious attacks—one to the northwest and the other to the south—just as dawn broke.

Soon the battle had developed into a major engagement over the entire line stretching north of Shanghai.

The Japanese admitted that they were suffering severe casualties, after having lost at least 20 killed and 60 wounded during the night's fighting.

Planes Shower Explosives.

The hostile forces were at grips in a struggle of death from the limits of Chapei northward to the outskirts of Kiangwan and northwestward through the village of Mohangchen, 2 miles beyond Kiangwan.

From the Japanese lines a barrage of artillery cut the way for the infantry to advance, while airplanes showered explosives on the entrenched Chinese. The Japanese soldiers crept forward behind smoke screens, drawn across their route to protect them against the vigilant eyes of the Chinese gunners.

The Japanese were clearly on the offensive, seeking to clear the Chinese away from the positions in front, but made slow headway against the smashing Chinese fire.

Constant Spurt of Bullets.

The Chinese defenders held off the oncoming Japanese infantry with a shearing rifle and machine gun fire, backed up by a bombardment from trench mortars and occasional bursts of artillery.

Although the action was general, the heaviest fighting occurred in the northwest sector of the Kiangwan line, where the Japanese concentrated their blows to break the Chinese defenses.

Their efforts, however, met the severest Chinese opposition. Much of the fighting was hand to hand. The Japanese attempting to rush the Chinese trenches were cut down by the defenders' bayonets.

Many Japanese Dead.

A look over the area northwest of Kiangwan revealed many Japanese dead which had not yet been picked up.

The scene along the northern sector, behind the Japanese lines, was one of utter desolation. Every building had been burned to the ground. Smoking embers dotted the countryside.

The terrain was blasted unmercifully by airplane bombs and artillery shell. Numerous grave mounds, which rise here and there over every Chinese countryside, had been blown open.

Scattered throughout the area were large numbers of both Chinese and Japanese dead.

HOOVER OPPOSITION TO BOYCOTT IS SEEN

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover is represented by his close advisers to be unreceptive to the pleas of petitioning educators for an economic boycott against Japan, either individually by the United States, or in conjunction with the League of Nations.

While Mr. Hoover has said nothing publicly on the boycott petitions, it was confidently predicted last night by those in high administration circles that he has no intention of entering the boycott movement.

The petition initiated last week by President Lowell, of Harvard University, and Newton D. Baker, of Ohio, urging the boycott, drew prompt attack from Chairman Borah, of the Senate foreign relations committee, as "turning the face of the American people toward another war."

Senate ratification would be required for the President to commit this Government in a move with the League of Nations to a boycott. The Senate defeated ratification of American adherence to the league.

There is reason to believe that Mr. Hoover has consulted with Senate leaders on the boycott question. There is a conviction on Capitol Hill that the administration will keep clear of the league on the boycott issue, and also refrain from its initiation by the United States alone.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, declared vigorous opposition last night to the boycott proposals as new petitions signed by 157 college professors, economists and specialists in international relations were sent to the White House.

"I am vigorously opposed," said Senator Watson, "to entering into an economic boycott against Japan, either alone or with the League of Nations. The Treaty of Versailles, including the league covenant, provides for an economic boycott against aggressor nations. If the members

President Hoover spent a busy day in according tribute to the memory of Washington. At the left, he is reviewing a platoon of national guardsmen in Alexandria. With him are Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia and his official hostess, Miss Elizabeth Alexander. Last night, after the festivities, the engagement of Charles Pollard, the governor's third son, to Miss Alexander was announced. In the picture at the right President Hoover is shown leaving the tomb of George Washington at Mount Vernon with Mrs. Hoover, after they had placed a wreath at the grave.

KIDNAPING NOT TRUE, BLAGDEN CONFESSES

Vanished to Flee Worries, Letter Says; Whereabouts Unknown to Police.

Malone, N. Y., Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Harry N. Blagden, State police announced today, has admitted that he "disappeared" voluntarily from a cottage at the exclusive Lake Placid Club and was not kidnaped.

The admission, said Capt. Charles J. Broadfield, in charge of State police for this northern New York resort region, was contained in a letter he received today from Blagden. Written at the summer home of a friend at Arden, N. Y., 40 miles from New York City, the letter said Blagden had gone away to escape worries that had grown so heavy "there just seemed no way out."

Blagden, who operates a boys' camp near his home at Upper Saranac Lake, said he had been worrying "about the times, my problems and the future." The kidnaping story which he told on his reappearance at Cleveland, Ohio, early last week, he said he invented as one "way out."

The disappearance of the 45-year-old former big game hunter occurred at the height of the winter Olympic games at Lake Placid. Prominent socially and known for his travels and hunting exploits, Blagden vanished the night of February 11 from the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. E. Roland Harriman, of New York.

Shortly afterward a brother, Augustus Blagden, received a letter in Harry's handwriting, demanding $1,000 for Harry's release. The captive said he was writing with a pistol pointed at his head.

Relatives took the money to an appointed spot at Tupper Lake, N. Y., but it was not claimed.

Blagden made no mention of a

Hindenburg to Face Hitler as Opponent

Huge Bank Merger Is Planned to Restore Confidence.

Berlin, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—The German nation attempted by an enormous bank merger today to place Germany's private deposit banking system on a sound basis and to restore confidence shaken since the sensational crash last July of the Darmstaedter und National Bank.

By an emergency decree signed by President von Hindenburg, the Reich was empowered to acquire stock in private banks or to subsidize them. The decree permits government participation up to 250,000,000 marks (about $59,250,000) and to extend up to 400,000,000 marks ($94,800,000) in credits.

In addition to the great Darmstaedter (Danat) bank, the merger involves the Dresdner Bank, and several smaller institutions — the Deutsche und Diskonto Gesellschaft, the Barmer Bankverein and the Commerz und Privatbank.

By writing off losses and transferring some of them to the Reich on condition that they will be restored later from earnings, as well as by investing some of the Reichsbank's surplus profits in private banks, the German government believes the way has been paved for restoration of con-

Fascist Leader Decides to Try Race For Presidency.

Berlin, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—Adolph Hitler, the dark-haired, militaristic little "man without a country," who raised Fascism to vast political power in Germany, will oppose President Paul von Hindenburg in the race for the presidency of the Reich.

To the thunderous cheering of 15,000 persons in the Berlin Sports Palast, the Fascist deputy, Joseph Goebbels, announced the candidacy of Hitler in the forthcoming election.

The Fascist supporters in the Sports Palast rose and shouted "Hail, Hitler!" when Goebbels announced the Fasqist leader's candidacy. In addition to Hitler, the Communist's candidate, Ernest Thalmann, and a Nationalist party candidate, former Lieut. Col. Duesterberg, was chosen today to oppose President Hindenburg.

The Nationalists and Steel Helmet, war veterans' organization, announced their selection of Duesterberg, but later said they hoped "the Nationalist opposition parties (including the Fascists) would be able to agree on a common candidate." President Hindenburg is honorary head of the Steel Helmets.

Hitler's condidacy has generally been expected, although he is a na-

FRIENDS PUT GARNER IN GEORGIA PRIMARY

(Associated Press.)

The Democratic presidential race gathered force yesterday as the boom for Speaker Garner was carried into Gov. Roosevelt's adopted State of Georgia, in opposition to the New York executive.

At the same time Gov. Murray of Oklahoma was ruled out of the March 23 Georgia primary. His signed statement of candidacy failed to arrive in time, but the aggressive Oklahoman immediately announced he would campaign the State for a "sticker" vote.

Learning that his name could not be written legally on the ballots, he said last night at Vinita, Okla., he would have his "lawyer friends" file suit in Georgia to force the placing of his name on the ballots.

Down near the Alamo, in Texas, Mr. Garner's friends staged a rally for "Chaparral Jack" which echoed in the House here with Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas, reading telegrams from the San Antonio meeting. After President Hoover finished his address to the joint session of Congress and departed a noisy demonstration was given Speaker Garner in the House.

Determined to stick to his job of presiding over the House, Mr. Garner said he knew nothing about the move in Georgia in which Judge G. H. Howard, of Atlanta, entered the primary in opposition to Gov. Roosevelt as a "proxy" for the Speaker.

Gov. Roosevelt has many warm personal friends in Georgia, the result of frequent visits to Warm Springs in his battle against the aftermaths of infantile paralysis.

Be Ready to Fight, Soviet Army Told

Commissar of War Charges Plot in Far East to Take Russian Territory.

Moscow, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—A militant call for the Soviet armed forces to be prepared to defend the Soviet territory in the Far East was issued tonight by Commissar of War Klementi Voroshilov.

"The White Guards (czarist exiles from Russia) supported by certain groups of imperialists, are openly planning to seize Soviet territory in the Far East," the war commissar's manifesto declared.

Summoning the Soviet army to be prepared to the utmost degree, Voroshilov described the bloodshed in China as contrasting to the speeches of "bourgeois orators" at the world disarmament conference at Geneva. The manifesto was issued on the eve of the fourteenth anniversary of the founding of the Red army.

Kirby Is Out to Succeed Mrs. Caraway in Senate

Salem, Ark., Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Associate Justice W. F. Kirby, of the Arkansas supreme court, who, as a Senator in 1917, was one of the so-called "Willful Twelve," opposing the entry of the United States into the World War, announced his candidacy here tonight for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

Mr. Kirby, who now seeks to succeed Senator Hattie W. Caraway, was defeated in 1920 by her husband, the late Thaddeus H. Caraway. One of the main planks of his platform, Mr. Kirby announced, is opposition to the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations.

18 Railroads Pledge Aid to Obtain Jobs

Each Will Assign Official to Employment Drive; States Progress.

New York, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Eighteen powerful allies answered the "war against depression" battle cry today when presidents of that many railroads agreed to assign one official each to aid in the drive to put 1,000,000 persons back to work.

Directors of the campaign, which is being waged under the leadership of four national organizations, said the help of the railroads would "have a tremendous effect on the speeding up of the employment drive."

The placing of 8,324 more wage-earners back in jobs was reported in today's dispatches to headquarters. This brings the total for the first seven days of the drive to 68,960. Today's reports were from 136 communities in 36 States.

Wisconsin continued to lead in the grand total to date, with 9,937 placed back on pay rolls. Illinois was found second with 8,254, Minnesota third with 7,374 and New York fourth with 7,225.

Japan Expected to Send More Soldiers to China

Tokyo (Tuesday), Feb. 23. (A.P.). The Japanese cabinet was expected to order more troops sent to Shanghai today to reinforce those pitted there against the army of China.

The cabinet took up for consideration a recommendation of the country's military leaders that the troops be sent. Its approval was virtually assured as was the sanction of Emperor Hirohito.

Daughter of Champ Clark Lauds Post Essay Contest

Mrs. James M. Thomson, Wife of New Orleans Publisher, Points to Late Father's Admiration of George Washington and His Ideals.

While from one corner of the country to the other, led by President Hoover and other leaders of the Nation, high praise was given to the character and life of George Washington from a multitude of platforms yesterday, the flood of essays entered by students of public, private and parochial schools of Washington and nearby Virginia and Maryland descended upon those responsible for The Post George Washington Essay contest.

This tribute of the young people in the metropolitan area of the Capital to George Washington was echoed in a striking way by a communication received from Mrs. Genevieve Champ Clark Thomson, daughter of the late Speaker of the House and Mrs. Champ Clark.

Mrs. Thomson, who now lives in New Orleans, La., declared: "I am watching with the keenest of interest the progress of The Post George Washington Essay contest. I was a school girl in Washington myself during my father's terms in office. I know how I would have been thrilled by the chance to become one of the winners in such a contest. The contest will do more than bring honor and reward to young winners. It will teach them to think in terms of understanding of all George Washington means to this country.

"I learned first of George Washington from my father, the late Speaker Champ Clark. He was a great admirer of the first President and well acquainted with his history and career. Speaking once of Cicero, my father referred to Cicero's fierce arraignment of Cataline, which earned

One-Lane Highways Delay Alexandria Parade Traffic

Opening of Mount Vernon Boulevard for Return Trip Prevents Tieups, However; 40,000 Autos and Buses Make Journey to Celebration.

Three one-lane traffic roads carried approximately 40,000 automobiles and buses yesterday from Washington to the Bicentennial parade in Alexandria, causing a general traffic delay along the highways that lengthened the usual fifteen-minute trip to, in some cases, a three-hour journey.

The new Mount Vernon boulevard could not be used by the celebrants, according to Capt. Ray C. Montgomery, of the United States Park Police, because the road leads directly into the parade area. The roads available to visitors were Russel road, Mount Vernon road, and the Fairfax road, which is a more circuitous route than the others.

Estimating the crowds at Alexandria, Capt. John S. Arnold, of Alexandria police, said "the crowd was not larger than have visited the city on past celebrations," and that the number was approximately 100,000. "About 35,000 cars were parked in the city limits during the celebration," asserted the Alexandria police commander.

The Mount Vernon boulevard was opened to traffic on the return trip, and at about 7:30 the large stream of automobiles had dwindled to a normal rate. Capt. Montgomery said, "Contrary to various conjectures that traffic would be delayed on the return trip to Washington, the new boulevard proved its value yesterday as a high speed road capable of carrying a large number of automobiles from the Capital City to the National Shrine at Mount Vernon."

Traffic leading to Mount Vernon was heavy, but the use of the new road eliminated any tieup. Parking

CITY AND NATION JOIN IN OPENING OF BICENTENNIAL

100,000 Visitors Here to Honor Washington as Hoover Takes Lead in Paying Tribute to National Hero.

PRESIDENT URGES EMULATION OF HIS PRINCIPLES AT CAPITOL

Huge Parade in Alexandria Is Witnessed by Chief Executive and First Lady and He Later Places Wreath on Tomb at Mount Vernon.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The stalwart figure of George Washington held the national consciousness yesterday, as the Republic he founded began a mighty celebration of the 200th anniversary of his birth.

In an era that is supposedly cynical, the Bicentennial was inaugurated with real patriotic fervor, a fervor that was picked up by the radio and broadcast across two hemispheres.

The celebration, which is to last until Thanksgiving Day, opened in this, the city that bears Washington's name. And hither came 100,000 visitors to pay him homage.

President Hoover, of course, took the lead in paying tribute to the great Virginian. Journeying from the White House to the Capitol he delivered a glowing oration before a joint session of the Senate and House.

Mindful perhaps of the discouragement that has gripped some of his countrymen today, President Hoover urged the Nation to draw inspiration from Washington's life and deeds—to "renew that spark of immortal purpose which burned within him."

Motor to Alexandria.

Leaving the chamber of the House of Representatives, the President walked to the east portico of the Capitol, from which point he looked out upon a throng of 20,000 persons.

His arrival was the signal for the singing of "America" by a vast chorus of school children, led by Walter Damrosch.

After the Capitol ceremony, the President and Mrs. Hoover had lunch at the White House, and then motored to historic Alexandria, George Washington's "home town."

Plare Wreath on Tomb.

From Alexandria, the President and Mrs. Hoover journeyed to Mount Vernon, where the thirty-first President placed a wreath on the tomb of the first President.

In the course of the day, 50,000 persons visited Mount Vernon to pass before the tomb, to view the Washington relics in the ancient mansion, and to stroll around the well-kept grounds.

Hoover Speaks to Teachers.

Before leaving Mount Vernon, President Hoover spoke briefly to a gathering of teachers.

"We entrust to you the translation of Washington to our children," the President said.

The 100,000 visitors who came here to take part in the opening of the Bicentennial taxed the hotel facilities of the National Capital, and the influx of automobiles caused a heavy traffic congestion at the downtown intersections.

Politics Adjourned.

Politics was adjourned at the Capitol for the period of yesterday's Bicentennial exercises. When President Hoover entered the chamber of the House of Representatives, he was vigorously applauded by the Democrats as well as by the Republicans.

As he mounted the Speaker's dais, Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner took turns in grasping his hand. The day before, Garner had assailed the President for taking credit for legislation that could not have been enacted without Democratic help.

ALEXANDRIA PARADE PORTRAYS HISTORY

By J. B. McDONNELL.

Alexandria, the nearby Virginia town which was a thriving seaport of the British colonies years before the Declaration of Independence, yesterday unfolded a panorama of the Nation's history in celebration of the Bicentennial of the anniversary of George Washington.

Old and young, from all sections of the country and from foreign lands, took part in the celebration. Those who did not march in the parade, which wended its triumphant way up one street and down another, were there as onlookers, who fell silent as the flag went by. Most men removed their hats, some straightened their figures a little more and clicked their heels and saluted. Now and then there was an exultant cheer.

In the parade was a picture of the settlement of a continent and the development of a Nation. There were Indians in war paint and feathers, an ironical but picturesque note. Airplanes flew overhead, and purring, speedy limousines pulsed along with the parade. A replica of the old fire engine George Washington gave to the City of Alexandria had its contrast in the moaning, shrieking, snorting and powerful example of modern fire apparatus from all over the State of Virginia and from States whose crews had brought them to do honor to the memory of George Washington.

School children, and children too young for school, marched, as did old men and and old women, who felt the weight of the miles even more. There were symbolic floats, but nothing could have been more symbolic than the story told by the uniforms of the military organizations. The precision of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps units could not dim the glory of the less precise lines of the other brilliantly uniformed organizations.

The formal opening of the Bicentennial celebration in the National Weather Favors Airmen Ready For Distance Hop

Old Orchard, Me., Feb. 22 (U.P.).—Only a startling change in weather conditions will prevent N. C. Browne and Edward Muldowney, former Army fliers, from taking off at 7 a. m. tomorrow on a projected 5,400-mile nonstop flight to Buenos Aires, Browne said tonight.

Just before he retired for the night, Browne talked with the New York Weather Bureau and learned that there was good weather all along the Southern route, through Boston, New York, Washington, Richmond, Jacksonville and out over the Caribbean.

THOUSANDS ATTEND CAPITOL EXERCISES

Representative Beck Lauds Washington in Address; Hoovers Present.

Colorful thousands who nearly filled Capitol Plaza and stood deep in the parkway beyond, heard Washington compared with England's immortal Arthur at exercises which yesterday formed the high light of the District's Bicentennial celebration.

President Hoover and dignitaries of many foreign lands sat in the brilliantly decked stand on the east Capitol steps as James M. Beck, Pennsylvania representative in Congress, heaped encomiums upon the memory of the founder of the Nation.

Earlier a chorus of 10,000 school children and an adult choir of 2,000 sang "America" in unison with similar groups all over the world, while John Philip Sousa led Army, Navy and Marine bands in accompaniment.

Beck Lauds Washington.

"Our Arthur, bravest of the brave, and knightliest of the knightly," was Representative Beck's tribute to Washington.

He contrasted Washington's leadership with others who have founded nations—Alexander, Caesar, Charlemagne, Frederick the Great, Napoleon—whose empires all have vanished.

"The fame of Washington is as a fixed star, whose benignant rays will illumine the ages for uncounted centuries to come," said Representative Beck. "He belongs to the few among mortal men whose fame is timeless."

Washington, who deprecated war except as a last resort, was held up as an inspiration for preserving the peace of the world.

"He never believed that a mere readiness for war would in itself assure peace," said the speaker.

"With nations, as with individuals, peaceful relations must in the last analysis depend upon a mutual spirit of 'good faith and justice.'"

Hoovers Enter Stand.

Opening the exercises, Dr. George C. Havenner, executive vice chairman of the District Bicentennial Commission, presented Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, chairman of the commission.

Dr. Marvin had just taken the gavel when "Hail to the Chief" sounded from Army, Navy and Marine bands, and the President and Mrs. Hoover entered the stand. The President sat through half of the ceremonies. As he rose to go he was cheered for several minutes by the throngs below.

It fell to the lot of Dr. Luther C. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, to welcome out-of-town visitors.

"The lesson which Washington taught us," he said, "is larger than mere local boundaries and we desire nothing narrow or restricted in the scope and spirit of the celebration here in this city, which honors Washington's memory by its very name."

School Children Sing.

Following Representative Beck's address, school children from Divisions 1 to 9, were led in singing "Washington, Fair Capital," by Dr. E. N. C. Barnes, director of music in the schools.

Later school children from Divisions 10 to 13 responded with "To Thee, O Country." Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (Democrat), Virginia, sang "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia."

Sousa led the massed bands in one more number, "George Washington Bicentennial March," before "The Star-Spangled Banner," played by the Marine Band and sung by the chorus, brought the exercises to a close.

Extra Planes Employed To Handle Fete Crowds

Had George Washington been here yesterday and wandered over into his native Virginia in the vicinity of the Washington-Hoover Airport, he would have been awed—to say the least—at the manner in which out-of-town visitors arrived to take part in the celebration of his birthday.

The Ludington Air Line reported that a total of 228 persons arrived and departed by air at the local field. Four extra planes were placed in service to handle the sudden rush. Many of the travelers, it was said, reached here on the early planes from New York and returned on the last planes North after witnessing the ceremonies.

HUGE BANK MERGER PLANNED IN GERMANY

fidence, which, in turn is expected to end hoarding by the people.

Finance Minister Herrmann Dietrich explained that the main feature of the reorganization is the fusion of the Danat with the Dresdner under the name Dresdner Bank.

Ordinary shares of both banks will be folded up at a proportion of 10 to 3. Preference shares of the Dresdner will be folded up at 3 to 2 and later will be transferred into ordinary shares.

The capital of both banks, which amounted to 554,000,000 marks (about $139,000,000) will be reduced to 220,000,000 marks (about $54,000,000) plus an open reserve of 30,000,000 marks (about $7,000,000).

In the fusion of the Barmer Bank Verein with the Commerz und Privatbank, which will result in a capital of 80,000,000 marks (approximately $19,000,000) with 30,000,000 marks reserve (approximately $7,000,000) the Reich will invest directly or indirectly about 112,000,000 marks (about $27,000,000).

"The Reich's aid is not a case of the Reich merely sinking money without a return," Herr Dietrich said. "The money loaned must be paid back according to a fixed scheme.

"The Dresdner and the Commerz und Privatbank will repay to begin with by turning into the Reich 15 per cent of the net profits.

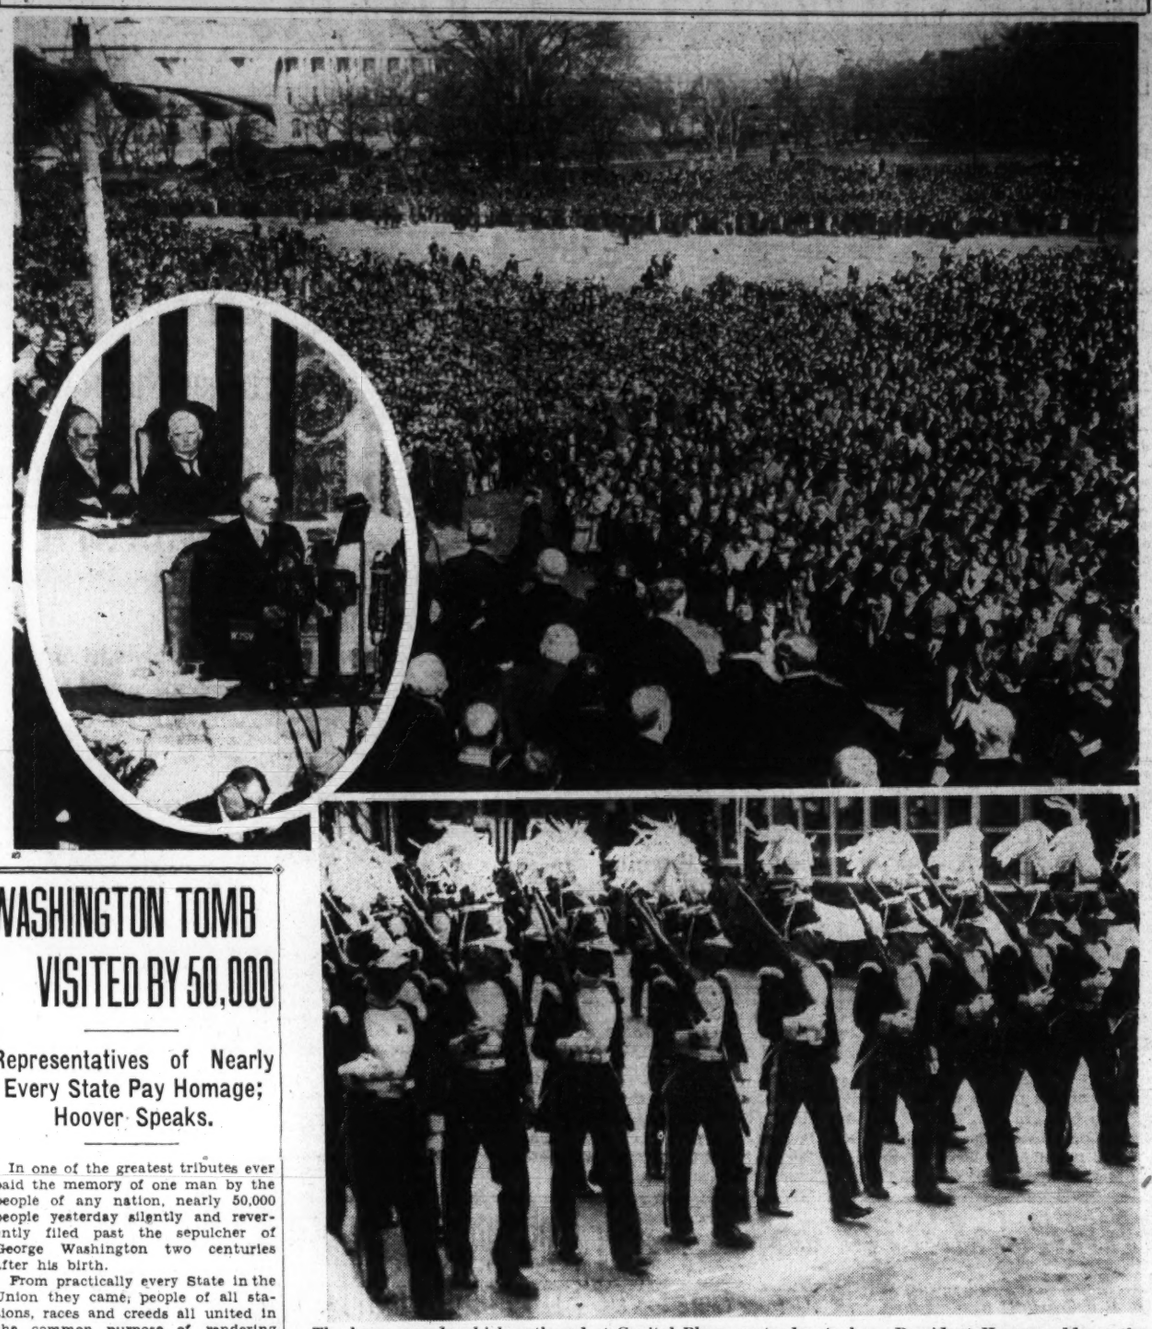
"The banks have put through a cleansing process. Losses have been written off. For whatever is still endangered reserves and securities have been created.

"Liquidity is safeguarded and the standstill agreement (which holds foreign credits in Germany) removed dangers from abroad. Thus all measures have been taken to give the banks new life."

Senate Group to Consider Insurance.

The Senate District Committee will meet at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon to consider a bill requiring persons found guilty of major traffic infractions to take out liability insurance, chairman Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, announced.

SCENES AT ADDRESS ON WASHINGTON AT CAPITOL PLAZA



The huge crowds which gathered at Capitol Plaza yesterday to hear President Hoover address the joint session of the Senate and the House of Representatives are shown in the upper picture. WASHINGTON TOMB VISITED BY 50,000

Representatives of Nearly Every State Pay Homage; Hoover Speaks.

In one of the greatest tributes ever paid the memory of one man by the people of any nation, nearly 50,000 people yesterday silently and reverently filed past the sepulcher of George Washington two centuries after his birth.

From practically every State in the Union they came, people of all stations, races and creeds all united in the common purpose of rendering homage to the man whose life and deeds have been a constant inspiration to posterity.

From early morning until dusk the highway leading to Mount Vernon was thick with vehicles of every make and description. Caravans of specially chartered motorbus, stately limousines, and humble runabouts all were packed to capacity with pilgrims who had journeyed many miles to the Mecca of the Nation. The United States Park Police, assisted by a detachment of the Thirty-fourth Infantry from Fort Meade, Md., managed to keep triffic moving in front of Mount Vernon with a minimum of congestion, only one minor accident being reported.

President Speaks.

The day officially closed when President Hoover, accompanied by Mrs. Hoover and members of his Cabinet, laid a wreath upon the tomb of George Washington and made a short address to the members of the National Education Association from the porch of the mansion. Stressing the fact that the teachers of the Nation held in their hands the priceless heritage of portraying to the youth of the Nation the character and ideals of Washington, he concluded with an expression of welcome. The presidential party then inspected the mansion and departed at 4 o'clock. A guard of honor composed of troops of the Headquarters Company, supplemented by detachments of sailors and marines under the command of Capt. A. R. Bolling, lined the path of the presidential party.

A small escort composed of an equal number of soldiers, sailors, and marines stood at present arms within the iron-grilled inclosure of the tomb as the President reverently bared his head and placed a wreath within the vault.

Prior to the final ceremonies many civic, fraternal, and patriotic organizations laid floral tributes on the sepulchre and held short exercises. These were initiated by officials of the George Washington Birthday Association, who at 10 o'clock laid a wreath in the vault.

Impressive Ceremonies.

The most impressive ceremonies were those conducted by the District of Columbia Department of the American Legion, who, under the leadership of Lieut. Col. John Thomas Taylor, commander of the George Washington Post, held a short service. After wreaths were placed within the vault by Robert Frazier, department commander of the American Legion, and Mrs. Edyth Connor, head of Ladies Auxiliary, Bugler Arthur Thomas of the Vincent B. Costello Post blew taps and a short prayer was offered by Chaplain Howard E. Snyder of the George Washington Post. Representatives of every post in the District were present, along with members of the Ladies Auxiliary. All were in full uniform and were preceded by their colorbearers.

Among other organizations to pay tribute were the International Association of Fire Chiefs, the Order of De Molay, of whom there were more than 1,000 present; a detail of cadets from the Greenwood Military Academy of Greenwood, S. C.; the Virginia Chapteres of the Theta Chi Fraternity, the Boy Scouts of America, the Artillery Corps of the Washington Greys, and members of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association.

The Washington Greys are of great interest on account of their history and antiquity. Founded in 1822, it was represented at Mount Vernon in ceremonies held there on February 22, 1832, one century after his birth.

Just prior to the arrival of the presidential party John Garland Pollard, Governor of the State which gave Washington to the Nation, addressed members of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association. He laid emphasis upon the fact that the life of Washington was illustrative of the full duty of a citizen to his country. Additional addresses were made by Dr. Edwin C. Broome, president of the department of superintendence, and William J. Bogan, superintendent of the city schools of Chicago.

sentatives, were Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and other justices of the Supreme Court, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and other members of the Cabinet, Ambassador de Martino of Italy, the dean of the Diplomatic Corps, and a score of other ambassadors and ministers.

War Leaders Present.

In contrast to the somber robes of the justices and the black morning coats of the diplomats were the glittering uniforms of the Nation's military and naval leaders—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Chief of Staff of the Army; Admiral William V. Pratt, Chief of Naval Operations; Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, Commandant of the Marine Corps, and Rear Admiral Frederick G. Billard, Commandant of the Coast Guard.

Among those who looked on the scene from the gallery were Mrs. Edward E. Gann, sister of the Vice President, and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, wife of the chief of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Mrs. John N. Garner, wife of the Speaker, was absent from the gallery. It developed that she had given up her block of seats to friends from Texas. While the ceremony was on, she was busy at work in her office.

"I've given up seats for inaugurations and other functions," she explained. "Everybody here does it."

Hoover's Speech Applauded.

The spirit of nationalism that is now so rampant in Congress was expressed in the applause that greeted President Hoover's interpretation of America's political creed.

"Finally," he said, "it embraces a system of relationships to other nations based upon no thought of imperialism, no desire to dominate; a determined national self-reliance in defense and independence in action; freedom from all commitment to the unknown future, and an aspiration to promote peace and good will among all men."

As the President was leaving the chamber, the statesmen, diplomats, jurists and others arose and again applauded him.

Demonstration for Garner.

Vice President Curtis also was applauded as he left the chamber. So, too, were the Supreme Court justices, the Cabinet officers and the diplomats.

When all the dignitaries were gone, some member on the Democratic side of the aisle let loose a rebel yell.

"Hurray for Garner!" he cried.

Then came a noisy medley of handclapping, cheering and whistling, and it was noticeable that the Republicans were contributing to it as well as the Democrats.

Garner ended the demonstration with a terrific rapping of his gavel

Hoom Stays in Background.

The man most responsible for the exercises which are to continue for the next nine months—Representative Sol Bloom, of New York—remained in the background yesterday. Bloom, a Democrat, is director of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

What applause he got he received in a most unusual place. In the afternoon, he went into the House restaurant for lunch, and a group of House members, aware of the work he has done, started what in the end became a general clapping of hands.

Hoover Eulogizes Hero In Speech to Teachers

In addressing delegates to the convention of the National Education Association at Mount Vernon yesterday, President Hoover said:

"It is a signal event that the representatives of teachers of our whole country should meet at Mount Vernon this day, because our teachers more than any other group have both the privilege and the duty to guide the steps in each new generation on the road of democracy, to instruct them with understanding and reverence for the spiritual benefits which flow from this history of this great man, and to instil our children with the accomplishments of the men who have made and guided our Nation.

"We meet here today in one of the places which physically in itself is enchanting and beautiful in its grounds, buildings and associations, but it is not these which attract hither the steps or thoughts of millions of Americans. It is the memory and the spirt of the greatest man of our race which pervades these grounds; it is a National Shrine the very name of which swells our hearts with pride and gratitude. It has been preserved and cared for all these many years by the women of America in whose trusteeship the Nation can find no greater assurance of its meaning, its sancity, and reverence.

"You have come from every part of our country, from homes, towns, cities and States unknown to Washington's life, yet each and every one of which received untold blessings from his life and his public service. To you more than anyone else we entrust the translation of Washington to our children and that is a trusteeship which the Nation can find no greater assurance of its meaning, of its sanctity and reverence."

ALEXANDRIA PARADE PORTRAYS NATION'S MILITARY HISTORY

Capital was the antithesis of the pageant unfolded in Alexandria.

A stranger from Mars, unread in the history of our customs, would have had no doubt that Alexandria was paying honor to a warrior among warriors. The military note, so absent from the celebration in Washington, was struck strong in Alexandria, where the Father of His Country so often gathered with his compatriots to sip wine and discuss matters of public import, to enter church and worship his Creator, to preside at gatherings of his fraternity, to sell the produce and buy the needs of his lands, and, to bid final farewell and to issue his last command to the armed forces of the land he had made possible.

Masonic dignitaries were in the line, as were priests of the Catholic Church in their cloth. The Knights of Pythias and the Knights of Columbus came close together. The band of St. Mary's Catholic School preceded by a few steps another Masonic organization which had come to the Virginia town to pay honor, not only to Washington, leader, but to Washington, the Mason.

Up one street and down another they marched before admiring thousands who climbed fences, perched on window sills, sat on the curb, stood on tip-toe, or were held in their father's arms.

An electric atmosphere pervaded. There was not a great deal of applause or cheering. Silence prevailed often as the colors went by. But it was far from a solemn occasion. Not a home in Alexandria yesterday but had its guests. Greetings were shouted to marchers and smiles were given and arms were waved in reply.

The Fairfax Chamber of Commerce won first prize. Its float was an image of Mount Vernon, where George Washington now lies in his tomb. The winning float was but one of more than a score of beautifully decorated floats, each symbolizing an episode. It was no flower show, with floats depending on resplendency for favor; nor was such an effort predominant.

President Hoover and Gov. Pollard of Virginia sat in the reviewing stand for a while and watched the parade go by. The proud First Virginia, which claims George Washington as a colonel when the regiment fought in the French and Indian wars, and has fought in every war of the Nation since, were among the organizations which so triumphantly stepped along the parade route.

The Richmond Blues were not alone in their glory. The Capital of the Confederacy was represented by its Howitzers and Grays as well. Petersburg sent its Grays. Charlottesville sent its Monticello Guards. An enumeration of the organizations represented in the line would be like calling the roll, not only of the State of Virginia but of so many other places that it would seem like a reading from the atlas of this section of the Nation. High school and military schools, colleges and universities sent their military delegations. The John Marshall High School sent a band as did the Benedictine Military Academy of Richmond.

Arlington County was represented by various delegations, including the corps of the Washington and Lee High School and its American Legion Post, as well as the jubilant fire companies who joined in the din which was the finale of the parade.

The Virginia General Assembly watched the parade and took part in the celebration. They occupied seats across the street from the stand in which the President and Gov. Pollard and their parties reviewed a part of the parade.

The President seemed to be enjoying himself. He had come from Washington after delivering an address at the joint session of Congress and had soon to go to Mount Vernon to lay a wreath at the tomb of George Washington. But he watched the parade and chatted with Miss Elizabeth Alexander.

Miss Alexander acted as the hostess of Gov. Pollard. She is to be Mrs. John Garland Pollard, Jr. Mrs. Hoover seemed to be equally cognizant of the pageant unfolding before them, and now and then appeared to call to the attention of Gov. Pollard, beside whom she sat, some noteworthy incident.

The celebration brought into Alexandria the greatest number of persons in the history of the town. Some estimated there were 15,000 in the line of march, but it is likely that that estimate was extravagant.

LEGION MEN AT MASS HONOR WASHINGTON

Military Rites at Immaculate Church Attended by Notable Group.

A defense of the American Legion's opposition to the dry law was sounded yesterday by the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, at a solemn military mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, which was attended by 1,500, including high ranking Government officials, diplomats and the members of District legion posts. The celebrant of the mass is a collateral descendant of Washington.

Too, Father Smith called the legion to action against Soviet activity and all forms of foreign propaganda which tend to undermine confidence in the Government and he summoned them to the higher mission of keeping the name of Washington unsullied from the attacks made against it by authors acting in the name of realism.

To the colorful assemblage of uniformed legionnaires in the congregation, Father Smith drove home his defense of the legion's manifestation of its stand "against fanatical legislation." Father Smith's defense of the legion was taken as a reply to the characterization of the legionnaires as "imps of Hell" by dry officials after the legion took issue against the eighteenth amendment at its Detroit convention.

Condemnation Not Acceptable.

"It is well for you to know," he said, "that this intemperate condemnation of the legion reported to have been made at that time, is not acceptable to all the churchmen of this country. If such statements were made, preachers of all denominations repudiate them wholeheartedly. * * * The agencies that condemned you in 1931, sacrilegiously pronounced in 1932 that Washington was unworthy of the Presidency because he indulged moderately in the use of alcoholic stimulants. Be guided in the future by the spirit of Washington, the lover of liberty, in any efforts you make to stem the tide of silly, useless legislation and to restore to the people the fullest possible measure of liberty under the law."

The celebrant of the mass, the Rev. Richard Blackburn Washington, the great-great-grandnephew of George Washington, whose father was the last of the Washington family to be born at Mount Vernon, heard Father Smith's appeal to the legion to be vigilant against any attempt by "smart-aleck authors" to belittle the reputation of Washington.

Washington's Name to Fore.

"Democracy, fortunately," he said, "has no king or monarch around which to mobilize the patriotic devotion of its citizens. It needs all the more, therefore, the untarnished memory of its national heroes, in which to baptize and unify the loyalties of its people. We need, therefore, that the names of George Washington should be kept before our people as a living and vital factor of our national life."

Father Washington was assisted at the mass by the Rev. Joseph Koch, U. S. A., chaplain of Walter Reed Hospital, and the Rev. Vincent Gorski, U. S. N., chaplain of the Quantico Marines. The Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor of the church and past departmental chaplain of the legion, presided at the services.

Distinguished Guests in Pews.

Uniformed members of the Costello and Victory posts escorted distinguished guests to their pews. Among the guests were: Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, Senator Henry Ashurst of Arizona, Senator Edwin Broussard of Louisiana, Representatives Martin J. Hart of Illinois, William P. Connery of Massachusetts, John J. Boylan of New York, James M. Fitzpatrick of New York, Melvin J. Maas of Minnesota, Joseph O. Fernandez of Louisiana, Dennis Chavez of New Mexico, Admiral William H. Benson, Mrs. James Couzens, Joseph P. Tumulty, Col. John Thomas Taylor, Brig Gen. Michael J. Lenihan, Departmental Commander Fred Frazer, Col. J. F. Reynolds Landis, Frank J. Hogan, Isaac Gans, William E. Leahy, Edmund F. Jewell, John Saul, Mrs. Arthur Keith, D. J. Callahan, F. W. F. Gleason, Mrs. David Dunigan, Mrs. James E. Colliflower, Mrs. Peter Drury, Dr. R. T. Holden, Dr. M. D'Arcy Mageee, Dr. L. Brison Norris, Col. William Peake, Dr. Michael Kennedy, Dr. John F. Donoghue, W. C. Sullivan.

The District posts of the legion, after the mass, went to Mount Vernon, where a wreath was laid at the tomb of Washington. In the afternoon, at 3 o'clock, the legion joined other patriotic associations in services at the base of the Washington Monument.

HINDENBURG TO FACE HITLER AS OPPONENT

tive of Austria. His Austrian citizenship was revoked; and because of political intrigue, including one unsuccessful German revolt plotted in a beer garden, he has repeatedly been denied German citizenship.

Last week it was reported that Premier Klagges of Brunswick had appointed Hitler a professor of practical pedagogics at the Brunswick Technical Academy, thus automatically making him a citizen. At that time it was said an official announcement might be made tomorrow.

The Fascist leaders were confident of victory in the election because of the sensational gains the party has made in the last year, but the government officials said they were certain of victory for President von Hindenburg.

The government indicated that it was confident Hindenburg would be elected on the first poll, March 13. They estimated the outcome of the election as follows:

President von Hindenburg, 19,000,000 votes.

Hitler, 10,000,000.

Duesterberg, 500,000.

Thaelmann, 6,000,000.

Hitler supporters said they considered the estimate drastically prejudiced and expressed belief that the government was underestimating the strength of the Fascists. They pointed out that the Socialist party, at present the strongest in the Reichstag, must muster virtually all of its strength in favor of the president to secure his reelection.

OLDEST INHABITANTS PAY TRIBUTE ON AIR

Noyes and Clark Principal Speakers; Both Praise First President.

Through the coast-to-coast network of the Columbia Broadcasting System, the Association of Oldest Inhabitants yesterday broadcast the most impressive and inspiring of its annual tribute to George Washington.

From the old Union Engine House at Nineteenth and H streets, elaborately decorated with a rich collection of old-day relics, the ringing notes of the old Northern Liberty Fire Bell inaugurated a program heard all over North America.

Theodore W. Noyes, president of the Oldest Inhabitants, and Allen C. Clark, president of the Columbia Historical Society, were principal speakers. In opening his address, Mr. Noyes said "This is George Washington's greatest year, during the nine months of which everywhere in the United States and to some degree throughout the civilized world, men celebrate and reverence the 200th anniversary of the day and year of his birth."

Reflects Past Celebrations.

The celebration by the association this year reflected its past celebrations, the president said, pointing out that no other group has so consistently paid tribute to the First President. "It was not Washington's idea," the speaker continued, "that its people (inhabitants of Washington) should be politically defective and delinquent Americans, but a people clothed with all American rights not absolutely inconsistent with the fostering control by the Nation of the Nation's Capital."

Continuing his discourse with several self-answering and pointed questions, Mr. Noyes showed that Washington intended the National Capital to be the "greatest commercial emporium of the country." It was not to be a city of employes only, else why had Washington directed that the plan of the Capital should provide for a population of at least 800,000?

Mr. Noyes said: "Was this great population, peopling an extensive and magnificently planned city, to be un-American and politically alien, deprived entirely of participation in the National Government? Washington's idea was that the Capital should be a Federal city developed by the Nation and subject to its control, but it was not his idea that it should be without people or that its people should be politically defective and delinquent Americans."

Mr. Clark presented a series of many pictures of Washington portraits, and by reference to historical documents concerning them, painted an interesting word picture of the First President.

"Washington with youth availed himself of sport and amusement," Mr. Clark said. "He gave strict religious observances without prejudice to sect. He was a scientific planter. He appreciated the adjuncts of home life. The ancient Greeks had no greater hospitality than Washington. His friends were daily with him, and 'his house was known to all the vagrant train.'"

Following Mr. Clark's address, William McK. Clayton read excerpts from Washington's Farewell Address. Music included solos by Howard Moore and singing by the assemblage of "America" and "Auld Lang Syne."

The old fire bell, which was tapped 200 times at the opening of the program by George Bruff Jackson, a member of the association, who recently took the part of Washington in a pageant, was the first bell to proclaim the War Between the States, the fall of Richmond, Gen. Lee's surrender, and the death of President Lincoln, it was explained by J. Elliott Wright, secretary of the association.

facilities that were arranged to accommodate over 3,000 automobiles could not be used due to the recent heavy rains and any attempt to park in the designated areas resulted in the automobiles becoming mired in the heavy mud.

Room for about 600 automobiles was made adjacent to the road and a fast turnover was noted in the visiting cars. The large majority of visitors, who numbered approximately 50,000, came by bus. The Gum Springs Road which connects the Richmond Highway with Mount Vernon was closed after the limited parking facilities were filled.

One Cent a Day Brings $100 a Month

Nearly One-Half Million Dollars Already Paid in Cash Benefits.

One cent a day ($3.65 a year), invested in a National Protective policy, will now buy more insurance benefits than can be secured from any other Company for any amount up to $10 per year. This is possible because the money saved by the National Protective plan of operation is passed on to its members.

Thousands of persons have been made happy by receiving cash benefits when cash was most needed from their National Protective policies, which pay benefits up to $100 each month and $1,000 to $1,500 at death.

The National Protective is the largest and oldest company of its kind in the world. It has paid nearly one-half million dollars in cash to its policyholders.

The benefits for auto accidents of $100 a month (instead of the usual $50 a month) is said by many to be alone worth the entire cost of $3.65 a year. Yet this is but one of the many features of this unusual policy.

Send No Money.

For 10 days' free inspection of policy, simply send name, age, address, beneficiary's name and relationship to National Protective Insurance Association, 1039 Scarritt Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. No medical examination or other red tape. After reading policy, which will be mailed to you, either return it or send $3.65, which pays you up for a whole year—365 days. Send today while offer is still open.—Adv.

MEMORIAL HONORED WITH MANY WREATHS

Patriotic Societies Follow Hoover With Tributes at Monument.

The President of the United States, represented by his naval aid, Lieut. Comdr. G. A. Poindexter and a large group of patriotic societies paid tribute to the first President yesterday by laying flowers and wreaths at the base of the Monument. Throughout the day representatives of the several groups conducted their pilgrimages to the foot of the shaft and with appropriate exercises left flowers, many of which were in the form of large and elaborate wreaths. A number of the societies held brief memorial services, attracting large crowds of visitors, many of whom had come to view the city for the first time from the Monument.

The Sons of the Revolution represented by their president, Dr. Thomas E. Green and by Capt. Victor Martin and Charles T. Diggs of the board of managers laid a large wreath at the base of the Monument and led a brief memorial service in which numerous other societies took part at 3 p. m.

The Daughters of the American Revolution were represented by their State regent, Miss Helen Harman, who laid a large wreath at the Monument. Miss Harman also assisted Dr. Green in presenting the memorial service.

Roy Geiger, jr., and Edward F. Fuller carried colors for the Army and Navy Society and assisted for their organization.

The Gen. Adna R. Chaffee Camp, No. 18, of the National Indian War Veterans, of Soldiers Home, were represented by a delegation and laid a wreath.

The Eight and Forty, represented by Mrs. Willette Preston, president, and Mrs. Louise White, placed a wreath.

Both the American Legion and the Department of American Legion Auxiliary to the American Legion had large delegations in uniform at the assemblage, equipped with colors, and took part. Mrs. A. V. Murray, vice president, supervised the latter group.

Other organizations taking part or leaving wreaths included: the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association, the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Soroptimist Club of the District of Columbia and others.

REPRESENTATIVE JAMES M. BECK.

WHENEVER it is noised about the lobbies of the Capitol that Representative James M. Beck is priming himself for a speech there is a general flocking of eager listeners to the chamber. The former railroad clerk, who reads law o' nights, has a magnetism that entrances everyone who has heard his philippics.

In this country he is known as an authoritative constitutionalist, a great political orator and a "trust buster." Abroad he was the first American lawyer to appear before the privy council, Great Britain's highest court.

Representative Beck is one of the few politicians to switch parties successfully. He began his career as a Democrat, and switched to the Republican party because of Bryan's "free silver" issue. Way back in the third Cleveland campaign he was stumping for the Democrats. Then in 1896 he balked at the Bryan platform.

The Democrats gave him the Federal district attorneyship of eastern Pennsylvania, and after he shifted his allegiance the Republicans made him Assistant Attorney General of the United States, and he began his "trust-busting" activities. From 1903 to 1921 he conducted a law practice in New York, resigning it to become solicitor general by appointment of President Harding.

In this position he argued or supervised arguments in about 1,000 cases and came out with a batting average of .780. After the resignation of Attorney General Daugherty, Mr. Beck became Acting Attorney General, and gave up the post in 1925, when President Coolidge took office. He returned to private practice and again entered public life in 1927 and won the seat vacated by William S. Vare, when Vare ran for the Senate.

He was born in Philadelphia on July 9, 1861, was graduated from Moravian College in 1880, and began clerking on a railroad. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1894. Now he has degrees from the Universities of Pennsylvania, Michigan and Pittsburgh; Lafayette, McGill, Franklin and Marshall and Muhlenburgh.

He has residences in Washington, New York, Seabright, N. J., and Philadelphia. He married Miss Lilla Mitchell, of Philadelphia, in 1890. A son and daughter were born to them.

Historic Gadsby's Tavern Is Scene of Brilliant Fete

Historic Gadsby's Tavern, in which George Washington was entertained in honor of his birthday, February 11, 1799, his birthday anniversary, according to the calendar of that time, was the scene last night of the most brilliant assemblage witnessed in that old hostelry since that day.

The Colonial Dames and Mount Vernon Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, with the Washington Society of Alexandria, presented a birthnight ball in honor of the birthday of Gen. Washington, with the guests numbering descendants of the original attendants and their friends, and many of the costumes worn were worn in the days of Washington, if not actually at that memorable affair.

George Washington was represented by a collateral descendant, John Augustine Washington, in place of Col. Brantz Roszell, who was to represent his illustrious kinsman, and was prevented by illness; Martha Washington was present in the person of Miss Pattie Washington, the sister of John Augustine Washington, both of them the children of the late Lawrence Washington, the last male child of the family born at Mount Vernon while it was still in possession of the family.

Gen. and Mrs. Washington led the grand entry into the ballroom and were escorted to their seats in a dais in the west end of the room, with an illuminated picture behind them, by the officers of the three sponsoring societies. Immediately after being seated the minuet was danced by eight young couples, the girls members of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Alexandria, and eight young men of the city.

Among some of the wearers of the old gowns were Mrs. Berryman Green, in a dress that was worn by her great-great-great grandmother, Mary Briscoe Baldwin, at a dance in Staunton, Va., given in honor of the Marquis de la Fayette when he visited this country in 1824; Mrs. Holland Ball Judkins, of Rye, N. Y., who wore a gown that had belonged to Mary Ball, the mother of Washington; Mrs. Charles N. Eddy, of Plainfield, N. J., who wore a gown that had belonged to Rebecca Holmes, the wife of the chairman of the committee for the Boston Tea Party.

Miss Sally Cary Fairfax Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fairfax Harrison, wore the costume which had been worn by her paternal ancestor, Mrs. George William Fairfax, of Virginia, who formerly was Miss Sally Cary, said to be a young sweetheart of Gen. Washington. The gown is of heavy brocaded satin, the background of rich cream color with a flowered design in pale tints.

Invitations were issued for 500 tickets, the capacity of the rooms with safety, and the demand that could not be supplied was so great that the committee will keep the tavern open today and tomorrow, for an entrance fee, with members of the Colonial Dames and Daughters of the Revolution as hostesses, in costume, with furniture of that period used for the occasion from the homes of old residents. The family portraits, those of people who actually attended the original ball, will be retained in the buildings two days to allow the public to view the picture presented for this gala occasion.

WASHINGTON LAUDED BY LATIN AMERICANS

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Rival claims to the seat reserved for the diplomatic representative of the republic of Salvador disturbed the celebration of the George Washington Bicentennial yesterday at the Pan-American Union and almost caused a diplomatic incident between Dr. Carlos Leiva and his ertswhile youthful colleague and first secretary, Roberto Melendez.

Dr. Leiva, the Salvadorean minister recognized by the State Department, listened to Cuban Ambassador Ferrara's eulogy of Washington, while Senor Melendez, the Salvadorean representative seeking recognition for his chief, the new president of the Central American republic, Gen. Maximiliano Martinez, took a back seat. Secretary Stimson, seemingly unaware of the dramatic circumstances which were unrolling before his eyes, responded to the address of Ambassador Ferrara.

The reciprocal tact and diplomacy of both contestants to the Salvadorean chair prevented an incident which would otherwise have been extremely embarrassing to every one present. Senor Melendez entered the Pan-American Union accompanied by Dr. Luis Anderson, famous international lawyer and former Costa Rican Minister here.

Will Press for Recognition.

Dr. Anderson has been retained by the defacto government of El Salvador to press its claims for recognition here before the Department of State. The chairs of the Pan-American Union are all marked with the names of countries making up the governing board. The new regime in Salvador, headed by the former vice president and minister of war, Gen. Martinez, has nominated Roberto Melendez, first secretary of the legation here, as its charge d'affaires. Consequently, it is claimed, Senor Melendez should have been seated in the chair of El Salvador.

To the surprise of Senor Melendez, and to the protestations of his legal counsel, Dr. Anderson, the Salvadorean chair was occupied by Dr. Leiva. The government of which Dr. Leiva is the representative, it is alleged, terminated when former President Araujo fled the country and took refuge in Guatemala, where he still remains.

The ceremonies at the Union, however, proceeded without any outward manifestation of the battle for precedents which was being waged in the Hall of the Americas.

Ferrara Lauds Washington.

The eloquent Ambassador of Cuba, Orestes Ferrara, hailed the name of "Washington" as a beacon light in the history of the American republics. Ambassador Ferrara said

"In the heroic struggle for independence throughout the wide lands of Latin America, many were the illustrious and glorious leaders who, with magnificent generosity, offered their strength and their intellect to the cause of liberty. To them the name of Washington was a shining symbol and each son of a new republic who rendered the greatest service to the nascent democracy was figuratively called the "Washington of his country."

A short wave system which had been installed in the Pan-American Union carried the voices of the Cuban Ambassador and the American Secretary of State to all countries of Latin America.

Secretary Stimson Replies.

The Secretary of State, Col. Stimson then replied:

"The eloquent address of his excellency, the Ambassador of Cuba, which has been heard far beyond the confines of this building, will, I am certain, make a deep impression on the people of this country.

"Washington belongs to that great company of patriots, founders of the republics of this continent—animated by a common purpose and inspired by a common ideal. In honoring his memory, we are in a very real sense doing honor to those principles upon which rest the fabric of government throughout the American continent."

River Float Anchoring Averts Juvenile Tragedy

The anchoring of a float at the Alexandria Old Dominion Yacht Club, when it threatened to sink under the weight of 50 children, averted a tragedy yesterday.

The children had come to the club to see the destroyer Hamilton, at Alexandria for the celebration. They were on the float awaiting Coast Guard tenders which were to take them aboard the ship.

Mount Vernon Is Mecca for Stamp Savers

The throngs of persons who yesterday flocked to Mount Vernon to witness opening ceremonies at the Bicentennial of the birth of George Washington were augmented by hundreds of stamp collectors from all sections of the country, who stormed the Mount Vernon postoffice in an effort to secure "first day covers" with the cancellation mark of the first President's home.

Postal authorities last night were unable to estimate the exact amount expended by the philatelists for the unique postmark, except to say it was upward of $100,000. Truck after truck left the city postoffice bearing heavy loads of mail throughout the day.

The special "Wakefield" postal cachets and Mount Vernon postmarks, made available by the Postoffice Department, will increase in value to stamp collectors as years go by. The staff at the Mount Vernon postoffice was reinforced by members of the Washington office and the steady flow of mail, which began early in the morning, continued until 5 o'clock.

An entire wing of the new Concessions Building at Mount Vernon was placed at the disposal of the Postoffice Department. Lines began forming as early as 6 a. m., three hours before the doors opened.

Bicentennial commemorative stamps appeared on the majority of covers. For several weeks large bundles of mail, addressed to the postmaster at Mount Vernon, had been held for release on Washington's birthday.

Vast Acreage Burning In Florida Everglades

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Feb. 22 (A. P.).—A vast section of the Florida Everglades was beset tonight by fires that smouldered in the rich muck land and raged through tall saw grass. An aerial survey by the Fort Lauderdale Daily News brought forth the report that an area of 500 square miles is burning, or threatened.

Heavy smoke has spread over a long stretch of the East Coast, including Miami. In the interior the banket is even thicker, particularly in the vicinity of the Kissimmee River and Okeechobee City.

13 STATES SPONSOR NEW ENGLAND BALL

Stately Minuet in Costumes Staged at Willard; 500 Guests Attend.

With stately pomp of minuet and in the costume of the bygone century, nearly 500 persons gathered at the Willard Hotel last night at the Bicentennial ball of the New England State Society.

The original thirteen States of the Nation sponsored the affair, which was opened by a brief invocation by the Rev. C. A. Langston, pastor of Pohick Church.

After an address by Elmer E. Fields, president of the New England Society, welcoming the guests, short speeches by Representative Menalcus Lankford, Lawrence Moran, Miss Ella May Powell, John Gibbs, Mrs. David C. Caldwell, William Rogers and Samuel Williamson were heard.

Then followed a musical and dancing program in the colonial setting. The Madrigal Singers, the George Washington Glee Club, under direction of Dr. Robert Harmon, sang colonial songs. Mrs. Nicholas Sinnott sang the "Star-Spangled Banner."

The Capital Society of Children of the American Revolution presented a minuet directed by Mrs. Henry F. Sawtelle. Miss Inez Ingha, Miss Ruby Hutchinson, Miss Margaret Cudy, Miss Frances Rainey, Mrs. Arthur Barrett, Miss Norma D. Bilodeau, Miss Ann L. O'Connell and Miss Lillian Flemming presented a pageant of flowers, headed by Miss Florence Adams. There were other interesting entertainment features.

Included in the box holders were Senor and Senora Don Pedro Manuel Arcaya, of Venezuela; the Secretary of the Bulgarian Legation and Mme. Stephen P. Bisseroff, Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin, Senator Marcus Coolidge and Helen Coolidge, Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Frederic Walcott, Representative and Mrs. Donald Partridge, Representative and Mrs. Richard Aldrich, Representative and Mrs. Edward Goss, Representative and Mrs. William Rogers, Representative and Mrs. Morgan Sanders, Representative and Mrs. Samuel Kendall and Representative and Mrs. Robert G. WASHINGTON IDEALS LAUDED TO DEMOLAY

2,000 of Order Assemble at Mount Vernon and Hear Councilor.

Declaring that "never in the history of the world have young people faced such problems as the immediate future holds," Ernest A. Reed, grand master councilor of the Order of DeMolay, yesterday exhorted about 2,000 young men, members of the order, to pay more attention to the ideals of Washington and particularly to his life as a young man. Mr. Reed's remarks came during a memorial address, delivered at the tomb of Washington at Mount Vernon, where the DeMolay placed a wreath. The occasion was the feature of the fifth annual pilgrimage of the order to Washington.

Mr. Reed declared that there is too great a tendency to retain an impression of Washington as a stern, elderly man, lavishly dressed, riding a white horse and carrying the burdens of state on his shoulders. He told his hearers to remember that Washington was also once a young man, facing the trials and experiences that come to every young man and enjoying the parties, dances and other gaities of his time.

"I have no doubt," Mr. Reed said, "that there were good souls living in Alexandria in Washington's time who, hearing of the parties held in the City Tavern, which he attended, decided that a young man who played the pranks of young Washington would come to some bad end.

"Young people have always been misunderstood by their elders," Mr. Reed continued. "The shortcomings of young people of today have been vastly exaggerated through sensational publicity. Never in the history of the world have young people shouldered such responsibilities as at the present time. Never have they faced such problems as the immediate future holds. I am sure that they will be better prepared to do the things that are to come if they consider seriously the many-sided personality of Washington, the ideals to which he adhered and the obstacles which he overcame, all of which played an important part in making him ready and competent to undertake the great tasks that later came to him."

Following the visit to Mount Vernon, the De Molays visited Arlington Cemetery, where they placed a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and then went to Alexandria, where they visited the George Washington Masonic Memorial.

Robert Le Bruce Chapter was host to the visitors at a basket ball game and dance last night at the McKinley High School Gymnasium, a number of the sororities of the city joining with the local chapter to entertain the out-of-town boys.

The delegates here were from 30 States. The De Molay has chapters in every State in the Union, with 150,000 active members between the ages of 16 and 21 and 400,000 past members who have passed beyond the age limit.

MRS. J. M. THOMSON LAUDS ESSAY TEST

for him the proud title of Pater Patriae—Father of His Country.

"But my father quickly added to that remark, 'Pater Patriae, a title more honestly won and more worthily worn by George Washington in later times.'

"The wisdom of George Washington is one of our most trustworthy guides in these troublesome times. No better foundation could be laid for the education of a child than to have him thoroughly grounded in the history of George Washington and his times.

"In placing this opportunity before the young people of Washington and its vicinity The Washington Post has done more than well. I wish each and every contestant the best of luck. While all of them can not win in the present competition, all may enjoy the inspiration of having participated in such an enterprise."

Mrs. Thompson, who is now the wife of James M. Thompson, publisher and owner of the New Orleans Item-Tribune, is noted for her political knowledge and study of political economy. She is a writer and speaker of ability on national topics and at one time served as national committeewoman from Louisiana on the national Democratic committee.

Contestants should not forget that less than three weeks remain before the close of the contest on March 14; $1,000 in cash prizes will be distributed among the 108 prize winners, the first four prizes being $100 each, the second four prizes, $25 each, and 100 prizes of $5 each.

Essays received yesterday included those from:

Pastor Lauds Dry Law At Antisaloon Session

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Dr. Claude W. Duke, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Tampa, Fla., told the convention of Antisaloon League of America here today the charge that prohibition is causing increased drinking is just as absurd as would be a charge that stop signs at street crossings were causing increased automobile death tolls.

"When the South stood for State's rights in slavery the Yankees licked us," he said. "Now Al Smith, Raskob and Roosevelt, of New York—from the same North whence came the Yankees who licked us in slavery State's rights—are advocating State's rights in liquor control."

Two on Trial in Deputy Killing.

Pearson, Ga., Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Two men went on trial here today charged with the murder of a deputy sheriff, fatally hurt by a dynamite trap at a whisky still in a southeast Georgia swamp. Grover McKinnon and Mose Smith were indicted after Deputy Sheriff Berry Palmer, of Atkinson County, succumbed to his injuries. Selection of the jury was a slow process, only two being accepted before adjournment.

Braggadocio Wins Place In American Vocabulary

By JOHN J. DALY

FOREIGNERS like to chide Americans for using superlatives, who say, "It's the biggest building in the world, and it cost $25,000,000 in good American money, which is the best spondulicks in the universe—America, the richest nation on earth."

Then, to prove that everything in America is done on an unparalleled scale, John Philip Sousa, the greatest bandmaster of all recorded time, comes to Washington, the most beautiful city in the world, and leads three bands at once, in the most glorious setting ever staged in front of the United States Capitol, starting the grandest celebration ever held in honor of George Washington, the greatest American.

At the same time, Lawrence Sullivan, the White House reporter of The Washington Post—a leading observer in a city that has the largest number of writers on world affairs the world ever saw—launches his monumental tome, "All About Washington." Not, you understand, a mere glimpse of Washington, the City of Magnificent Distances, or a few odds and ends about Washington, but "All About Washington."

• • • •

THIS is the "East Side, West Side, All About the Town" book that tells everybody—men, women, children—everything they ought to know about the most charming city in America, the most beautiful city in the world, named after the Father of His Country, the greatest nation on the face of the earth.

To prove that Washington is the most magnificent city in the world, the loveliest city on God's green footstool, even the weather was the best weather Washington ever saw at the start of the Bicentennial celebration, the best Bicentennial, by the bye, that Sol Bloom ever assembled—Sol Bloom, who has no predecessor, and is therefore the greatest Bicentennial field marshal the world has ever produced.

• • • •

EVERYTHING was in bloom but the Japanese cherry blossoms. As these belong to an Oriental branch of the Bloom family, Sol—the greatest son of George Washington—had no control whatsoever over their actions. Otherwise, not only would they have bloomed, but hatchets would have swung on their branches, lighted at night by Chinese lanterns.

Suppose foreigners do chide us? What do we care? If they stick around long enough they'll get that way themselves. Any one who reads Larry Sullivan's book, "All About Washington," will begin to realize that the boy had a mighty subject to handle and that he made of it a monumental job. It is, undoubtedly, the best book ever published about the most interesting subject in the realm of civics. Named in honor of Washington, First in War, First in Peace, and First Once in the American League. Washington, when it was first, had the best team that ever played baseball, the world's greatest sport.

Of course, we like to brag! Who wouldn't, if they were the best braggers in a bragging world? When taller stories are told, Americans will tell them.

Bishop Quin Urges Prayer As Way to Conserve Faith

The Right Rev. Clinton S. Quin, Bishop of Texas, stressed the importance of prayer as a means to get reserve strength and a faith, speaking from the pulpit of the Church of the Epiphany at the noonday Lent services.

"I don't believe," the bishop said, "that anybody can be happy or successful without the reserve of prayer. Prayer is the opportunity to experience God, and the language of communication between God and his children. It is our method of conversation with God.

"The Lord's Prayer is the most comprehensive relationship between God and his people because it involves family life, and all of the universal emotions of life. Understanding of God is possible only through the life and teaching of Jesus Christ, who gave us the only conception of God that we have.

"No man can go any higher than the level of the God which he worships, and your conception of God determines the level of your living. Those who have intellectual difficulty or a defect in faith in their attempt to define God experience these because they do not trust Him. We attempt to define God before we dare trust Him, and this is an unnatural procedure, unlike any other of our contacts. We trust our mother instinctively, before we acquire reasoning powers, and we choose our business and social associates without positive knowledge of their ability or attitude toward us, which can only come as we experience them."

Wholesale Tire Prices Reduced 10 Per Cent

Akron, Ohio, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—A 10 per cent slash in the prices of automobile tires to large commercial dealers was announced here today. There will be no change in the price of retail tires. The reduction sharpened a dispute of independent dealers and larger corporations, the small retailers charging it is another step to crowd them out of business.

Goodrich, Firestone, General and Goodyear joined in announcing the reduction, but denied originating it.

WORLD'S CAPITALS LAUD HERO OF U. S.

(Associated Press.)

Many capitals throughout the world honored George Washington yesterday on the 200th anniversary of his birth, and several cities in central Europe renamed principal streets for the American "Father of His Country."

Praise for the American liberator was universal, and wreaths were placed on Washington's statues in many countries.

Some of the days events:

Berlin: Berlin's festivities centered in a banquet attended by 600 persons. Speakers included Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett, Prof. Frederick Woodbridge of New York and Prof. Moritz Julius Bonn, well known figure in most American universities. A Washington Square was named in Berlin and both Hamburg and Dresden gave streets the name of Washington. At Stuttgart George Washington Memorial Library was handed over to the technical academy. At the Berlin banquet Minister of Defense Wilhelm Groener felicitated Americans in having in George Washington a personality that is still a living force.

Tributes in Warsaw.

Warsaw—Streets in Gdynia and Cracow were renamed for Washington, and the press universally printed tributes to the Great American.

London—Wreaths were laid on the Washington statue in Trafalgar Square and at the base of the Washington bust in St. Paul's Cathedral. The Times and other newspapers were not too crowded with grave international problems to devote much space to estimates of Washington.

Vienna—Most of the capitals of central and southeastern Europe observed the Washington Bicentennial with appropriate ceremonies. These included Bucharest, Vienna, Budapest, Sofia, Belgrade and Prague. One of the principal streets of Belgrade was renamed "Washington."

Stockholm, Sweden—Crown Prince Gustav Adolf addressed a gathering in city hall and lauded Washington's coolness and courage. He said he was proud of one quarter of the Swedish race which was now living in the United States.

San Juan, Porto Rico—A parade that took one hour to pass a reviewing stand observed the Washington Bicentennial and a crowd heard President Hoover speaking clearly over the radio.

Reception in Peru.

Havana—President Gerardo Machado sent a cable to President Hoover commemorating the Bicentennial of "the birth of the glorious Washington, America's first liberator."

Caracas, Venezuela—The American colony and the Pan-American Society led a ceremony in observance of the Bicentennial.

The GIRL About Town

THE performance of Ethel Barrymore and her cast in Richard Brinsley Sheridan's famous play, "The School for Scandal," is worthy of high praise. Those who have seen it often say it lacks the perfection of other casts; especially one old-timer who saw John Gilbert as Sir Peter and Madeline Henriques as Lady Teazle several decades ago at Wallach's Theater in New York. Nevertheless any member of the Barrymore or Drew clan leaves little to be desired in dramatic portrayal; and John Drew Colt, with his mother's guidance, ably fulfils the minor part of Sir Harry Bumper—an encouraging start for his future career.

MILDRED TYTUS has closed her apartment at the Caravel for a time and has gone to New York. Lawrence and Victoria Coolidge, the latter Mildred's youngest sister, are expected to return shortly from England, where they went on their honeymoon to visit Mrs. Edward Tytus, the bride's grandmother. The Coolidges will open their apartment in Boston upon their return.

With the approach of spring interest is renewed in trips to the Virginia countryside, and every one is anticipating the dance to be given at the Fairfax Hunt Club in the early part of March, sponsored by two prominent young bachelors. A number of debutantes and post-debs and their escorts contemplate going, as there is an added lure to an out-of-town party. The list of patronesses includes the mothers of two of the "official" debutantes, Mrs. Shouse and Mrs. Wyant.

THE Sunday afternoon "at-homes" of Admiral and Mrs. Craven at their home in N street, are the rendezvous of interesting people—artists, writers, diplomats and officials as well as resident friends. An Oriental atmosphere pervades the house, as it is filled with objects d'art from the Far East. Olga, the Cravens' debutante daughter, is an added attraction for the more youthful group.

Gold Standard Study Set in South Africa

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—The assembly today agreed to appoint a select committee of inquiry to determine whether South Africa shall remain on the gold standard. The vote was 76 to 60.

The question came to a climax today when Premier J. B. M. Hertzog declared the government would remain on the gold standard as long as it enjoys the country's confidence. The government suggested the appointment of the select committee in view of an antigold campaign undertaken by groups opposed to maintaining the standard while England has dropped it.

ALEXANDRIA MASONS MARK BICENTENNIAL

Washington's Lodge Is Aided by Massachusetts Unit in Honoring Patriot.

Alexandria Masons last night joined with lodges of Beverly, Mass., and Beverly, England, in honoring George Washington on the 200th birthday of America's most distinguished patriot. Following a national day of celebration, the twentieth century members of the lodge, of which President Washington was the first worshipful master, met last night, as they have been doing for more than a half century, to remember his service to his country and to do homage to his greatness.

Dr. S. Nelson Gray, worshipful master of Alexandria-Washington Lodge, presided. The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Percy Foster Hall. Talks relevant to the occasion were made by the Most Worshipful Harry K. Green, grand master of Masons in Virginia; the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington; Tytus Filipowitz, Ambassador of Poland, and Representative Allen T. Treadway, of Massachusetts.

It was called to the attention of the guests that the Alexandria Lodge had exchanged representatives with Beverly, Mass., W. Selden Washington, a collateral descendant of the First President, having been sent to the New England city.

DEMOCRATS TO BACK BUREAU PLAN TODAY

Dissatisfied With Hoover's Plan, Will Push Own Economy Program.

(Associated Press.)

Dissatisfied with President Hoover's suggestion that he be given power to reorganize the Government, Democratic leaders today will ask the House to set up a special economy committee to recommend curtailment and consolidation of Federal activities and expenditures.

Speaker Garner made the announcement following his statement Sunday charging the administration with failing to cooperate with the Democrats and attempting to assume all credit for the urgent economic crisis legislation which was enacted with bipartisan support.

Meanwhile President Hoover was attacked by Chairman Steagall, of the House banking committee, for not informing Congress what specific reorganization he desired although he asked in his special message last week for power to revamp the Government as he sees fit.

Alabamian's Statement.

The Alabama Democrat said in a statement through the Democratic national committee "it is not enough for the friends of the administration to proclaim that the President has repeatedly advocated reorganization of Government departments and establishments, but the Congress and the people have a right to know definitely what is desired."

Steagall recalled that Representative Holaday (Republican), Illinois, had introduced a bill to give the Chief Executive unlimited power to create and shift Government agencies, but warned that "the abolition, transfer or consolidation of such boards, bureaus and commissions as have been created by the Congress is likewise a legislative act."

Chairman Pou of the powerful rules committee, is slated to submit for House action today the Douglas resolution creating an economy committee of seven to submit definite proposals for abolishing and consolidating Federal agencies. It will work with the appropriations and expenditures committee and will report about April 15.

Study of Army-Navy Merger.

In view of the support of the Democratic leadership, its approval virtually is certain. Meanwhile, the expenditures committee will resume its study on the Byrns bills to consolidate the Army and Navy and the administration-sponsored bill to create a department of public works.

Steagall said the President did not need an act of Congress to enable him to form an opinion as to what should be done, and said, "Surely he can submit a recommendation that certain boards, bureaus, commissions or establishments (naming them), should be abolished. That certain others should be consolidated or transferred to a particular department."

"In this way, the President would request of Congress a very definite thing," he said. "This would be orderly and proper procedure in a Government like ours. If the President is able to do what Congress may authorize him to do, he certainly can, without any actoin of the legislative department, advise Congress what should be done."

Gen. Pershing Pays Washington Honor

Called 'Ideal American Citizen' by War Chief at Valley Forge.

Valley Forge, Pa., Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Gen. John J. Pershing, on the historic camp ground of Gen. George Washington and his continentals, today paid tribute to the first President as the "Ideal American Citizen."

With 9,000 Boy Scouts and more than that number of other persons gathered before him at the Washington Memorial Chapel, the leader of the American Expeditionary Force in the World War also extolled the military genius of Washington by describing him as the "Great Commander."

"The remarkable achievements of Washington during the war in the face of every discouragement," Gen. Pershing said, "gave prestige and confirmed him in the minds of his countrymen as the unquestioned leader not only in military, but in civil councils as well. A broad-minded, many-sided patriot, he was then, and he stands today, as the ideal American citizen.

"The strength and majesty of his character and the devotion which he inspired were not diminished with the years. And as we look at him from a more distant age, we must conclude that, during the Revolution, our armies were commanded by one of the great captains of all time."

Resolution Urges Thanks for Statues

Woodrum Offers Bill to Extend Appreciations to Virginia.

(Associated Press.)

The Woodrum resolution to express the thanks of the United States for Virginia's statues of George Washington and Robert E. Lee in Statuary Hall was received yesterday by the House.

It was referred to a committee. As soon as the committee acts on it, Representative Woodrum, of Roanoke, will ask immediate adoption. Acceptance services are contemplated under the resolution.

Mr. Woodrum recently discovered that although the two statues were placed in the hall in 1909, the Government had not formally accepted. He chose Washington's 200th birthday anniversary to introduce the resolution.

Ireland Joins America In Washington Honors

(Associated Press.)

Among the messages received yesterday at the inauguration of the Washington bicentennial celebration was one from the Irish government, which said it joined "heartily" with the United States in the ceremonies.

The communication said Ireland had "inscribed" Washington in the role of a national hero, "the highest honor which Ireland can bestow."

Text of President's Radio Address on Washington Delivered Before Joint Session of Senate and House

Just 100 years ago in this city Daniel Webster, in commemoration of the birth of George Washington, said:

"A hundred years hence, other disciples of Washington will celebrate his birth, with no less of sincere admiration than we now commemorate it. When they shall meet, as we now meet, to do themselves and him that honor, so surely as they shall see the blue summits of his native mountains rise in the horizon, so surely as they shall behold the river on whose banks he lived, and on whose banks he rests, still flowing on toward the sea, so surely may they see, as we now see, the flag of the Union floating on top of the Capitol; and then, as now, may the sun in his course visit no land more free, more happy, more lovely, than this, our own country."

His Prophecy Borne Out.

The time that Webster looked forward to is here. We "other disciples of Washington," whom he foresaw are gathered today. His prophecy is borne out, his hope fulfilled. The flag "still floats from the top of the Capitol." It has come unscathed through foreign war and the threat of internal division; its only change is the symbol of growth. The 13 stars that Washington saw, and the 24 that Webster looked upon, now are 48. The number of those who pay loyalty to that flag has multiplied tenfold. The respect for it beyond our borders, already great when Webster spoke 100 years ago, has increased—not only in proportion to the power it symbolizes, but even more by the measure by which other peoples have embraced the ideals for which it stands. To Webster's expression of hope we may reasonably answer, yes—"The sun in its course visits no land more free, more happy, more lovely than this, our own country." Proudly we report to our forefathers that the Republic is more secure, more constant, more powerful, more truly great than at any other time in its history.

Today the American people begin a period of tribute and gratitude to this man whom we revere above all other Americans. Continuing until Thanksgiving Day they will commemorate his birth in every home, every school, every church and every community under our flag.

In all this multitude of shrines and forums they will recount the life history and accomplishments of Washington. It is a time by which we will pause to recall for our own guidance, and to summarize and emphasize for the benefit of our children, the experiences, the achievements, the dangers escaped, the errors redressed—all the lessons that constitute the record of our past.

Most Solemn Ceremonial.

The ceremonial of commemorating the founder of our country is one of the most solemn that either an individual or a nation ever performs; carried out in high spirit it can be made one of the most fruitful and enriching. It is a thing to be done in the mood of prayer, of communing with the spiritual springs of patriotism and of devotion to country. It is an occasion for looking back to our past, for taking stock of our present, and, in the light of both, setting the compass for our future. We look back that we may recall those qualities of Washington's character which made him great, those principles of national conduct which he laid down, and by which we have come thus far. We meet to reestablish our contact with them, renew our fidelity to them.

From this national revival of interest in the history of the American Revolution and of the Independence of the United States will come a renewal of those inspirations which strengthened the patriots who brought to the world a new concept of human liberty and a new form of government.

So rich and vivid is the record of history, that Washington in our day lives again in the epic of the foundation of the Republic. He appears by the imagination of every succeeding generation as the embodiment of the wisdom, the courage, the patience, the endurance, the statesmanship and the absence of all mean ambition, which transformed scattered communities of the forest and the frontiers into a unity of free and independent people.

It is not necessary for me to attempt a eulogy of George Washington. That has been done by masters of art and poetry during more than a hundred years. To what they have said I attempt to make no addition.

Nation Is His Eulogy.

The true eulogy of Washington is this mighty Nation. He contributed more to its origins than any other man. The influence of his character and of his accomplishments has contributed to the building of human freedom and ordered liberty, not alone upon this continent but upon all continents. The part which he played in the creation of our institutions has brought daily harvest of happiness to hundreds of millions of humanity. The inspirations from his genius have lifted the vision of succeeding generations. The definitions of those policies in government which he fathered have stood the test of 150 years of strain and stress.

From the inspiration and the ideals which gave birth to this Nation, there has come the largest measure of liberty that man has yet devised. So securely were the foundations of this free government laid that the structure has been able to adapt itself to the changing world relations, the revolutions of invention and the revelations of scientific discovery, the fabulous increase of population and of wealth, and yet to stand the kaleidoscopic complexities of life which these changes have brought upon it.

What other great, purely human institution, devised in the era of the stage coach and the candle, has so marvelously grown and survived into this epoch of the steam engine, the airplane, the incandescent lamp, the wireless telephone and the battleship?

Qualities for Immortality.

If we are to get refreshment to our ideals from looking backward to Washington, we should strive to identify the quality in him that made our Revolution a success and our Nation great. Those were the qualities that marked Washington out for immortality.

We find they were not spectacular qualities. He never charged with a victorious army up the capital streets of a conquered enemy. Excepting only Yorktown and Trenton, he won no striking victories. His great military strength was in the strategy of attrition, the patient endurance of adversity, steadfast purpose unbent by defeat. The American shrine most associated with Washington is Valley Forge, and Valley Forge was not a place of victory—except the victory of Washington's fortitude triumphant above the weakness and discouragement of lesser men. Washington had courage without excitment, determination without passion.

The descriptions of George Washington by his contemporaries give us no clear picture of the inner man, the Washington whose spiritual force so palpably dominated his whole epoch. As a mirror, his own writings do him indifferent justice, whilst the writings of others are clouded by their awe or are obscured by their venom. We must deduce mainly from other records why he stood out head and shoulders above all the crowd around him. It was an extraordinary crowd, living at white heat, comprising men as varied, as brilliant, as versatile as the extraordinary demands which the times made upon them. They were men flexible in intellect and versed in the ways of the world. Yet in every crisis, and for every role, they turned to Washington. They forced upon him the command of Indian fighters; they made him a general against trained British troops; they demanded that he be a constitutionalist and a national statesman; they insisted he must guide his country through the skillful ambushes of European kings; they summoned him to establish the nonexistent credit of an insolvent infant nation. Why did his brilliant fellow-patriots always thus turn to him?

More Character; Finer Character.

The answer of history is unmistakable: They brought their problems to Washington because he had more character, a finer character, a purer character, than any other man of his time. In all the shifting pressures of his generation, all men acknowledged that the one irresistible force was the overwhelming impact of his moral power. Motives and men were measured by their stature when standing in his shadow. Slander fell harmless before him, sham hung its head in shame, folly did not risk to look him in the face, corruption slunk from his presence, cowardice dared not show its quaking knees.

In his integrity, all our men of genius in his day found their one sure center of agreement. In his wisdom and authority they found the one sure way to practical fulfillment of their dreams.

We need no attempt at canonization of George Washington. We know he was human, subject to the discouragements and perplexities that come to us all. We know that he had moments of deepest anxiety. We know of his sufferings and the sacrifices and anguish that come to him. We know of his resentment of injustice and misrepresentation. And yet we know that he never lost faith in our people.

Irrational Humanizing.

Nor have I much patience with those who undertake the irrational humanizing of Washington. He had indeed fine qualities of friendliness, of sociableness, of humanness, of simple hospitality, but we have no need to lower our vision from his unique qualities of greatness, or to seek to depreciate the unparalleled accomplishments of the man who dominated and gave birth to the being of a great Nation.

What we have need of today in this celebration is to renew in our people the inspiration that comes from George Washington as a founder of human liberty, as the father of a system of government, as the builder of a system of national life.

It is of primary importance that we of today shall renew that spark of immortal purpose which burned within him, shall know of the resolution and the steadfastness which carried him forward to the establishment of a Nation. That establishment was not a momentary ash of impulse, in a people rebellious and passionate under oppression, destined to fade into the chaos so often born of revolutions. On the contrary, it was builded upon foundations of principles and ideals which have given the power and strength that made this Nation and inspired the establishment of ordered liberty in a score of other nations.

Great Tests of Nation's Founders.

We have need to refresh to the remembrance of the American people the great tests and trials of character of the men who founded our Republic. We have need to remember the fiber of those men who brought to successful conclusion the eight years of revolution. We have need again to bring forth the picture of the glories and the valor of Lexington and Concord, of Bunker Hill, the suffering and fortitude of Valley Forge, the victory of Yorktown. We have need to revive the meaning and the sheer moral courage of the Declaration of Independence, the struggles of the Continental Congress, the forming of the Constitution. We have need at all times to review the early crises of the Republic, the consolidation of the Union, the establishment of national solidarity, the building of an administration of government, and the development of guarantees of freedom. No incident and no part in these great events, which have echoed and reechoed throughout the world for a century and a half, can be separated from the name and the dominant leadership of George Washington.

Upon these foundations of divine inspiration laid by our forefathers, and led by Washington, our Nation has builded up during this century and a half a new system of life, a system unique to the American people. It is hallowed by the sacrifice and glorious valor of men. It is assured by a glorious charter of human rights.

Self-Rule by the Majority.

It comprises a political system of self-government by the majority, resting upon the duties of individual men to the community, and of the local communities to the Nation. It is a government designed in spirit to sustain a dual purpose; to protect our people among nations by great national power, and to preserve individual freedom by local self-government.

It comprises a social system free of inherited position, based upon the ideal of equality of all men before the law, the equal privilege of men to strive and to achieve, and the responsibilities of men to their neighbors.

It embraces an economic system based upon the largest degree of freedom and stimulation to initiative and enterprise which can be permitted and still maintain the ideal of equality of opportunity among men.

Finally, it embraces a system of relationship to other nations based upon no thought of imperialism, no desire to dominate; a determined national self-reliance in defense and independence in action; freedom from all commitment to the unknown future, and an aspiration to promote peace and good will among all men.

Perhaps no single part of this system is different from some instance in history or in some other part of the world. But in its composite form it is distinctly unique and distinctly American, a system under which we have reached an assured position among the most powerful of the nations of the world.

Washington Foresaw Destiny.

This destiny of national greatness was clearly foreseen by George Washington. More fully than any man of his time was he gifted with vision of the future. He spoke habitually of the "American empire," and predicted its expansion from ocean to ocean. He planned and wrought for the binding forces of transportation and peaceful commerce. He thought in terms of almost imperial grandeur, and he wrought in terms of republican solidity. His far-flung dreams have come true, and he lives today in his works, in the names of our towns or cities and our States and in the affectionate reverence of us who so immeasurably benefit by his wisdom.

Our American system of national life is dependent upon a trust in the principles of government as established by George Washington; a trust in his example to our people; a trust in a devotion to religious faith, which he himself so devoutly practiced; a trust in that divine inspiration which he so sedulously invoked and which is expressed in the common mind of our people, and above all a trust in the divine providence which has always given guidance to our country.

From Washington's spirit there has grown an infusion of social ideals with the quality of magnanimity; upholding prosperity with generosity, dignity with forbearance, security without privilege, which has raised our institutions to a level of humanity and nobility nowhere else attained.

We have the faith that Webster expressed, that a hundred years hence our countrymen will again celebrate his birth, will review the memory of his services with no less sincere admiration and gratitude than we now commemorate it, and that they, too, will see, as we now see, "the flag of the Union floating on the top of the Capitol."

From the room where I conduct my high office I hourly see the Monument which Washington's proud and grateful countrymen have raised to his memory. It stands foursquare to the world, its base rooted steadfast in the solid substance of American soil. Its peak rises toward the heavens with matchless serenity and calm. Massive in its proportions, as was the character of Washington himself, overwhelming in its symmetry, simplicity and sincerity, it most fittingly, beautifully and nobly proclaims the founder of our Commonwealth and our acceptance of his faith. Around that Monument have grown steadily and surely the benevolent and beneficent agencies of orderly government dedicated to the spirit of Washington.

Beyond any other monument built by the hand of man out of clay and stone, this shaft is a thing of the spirit. Whether seen in darkness or in light, in brightness or in gloom, there is about it a mantle of pure radiance which gives it the aspect of eternal truth. It is a pledge in the sight of all mankind, given by Washington's countrymen, to carry forward the continuing fulfillment of vision of America.

WIRE TAPPING FIGHT SET BY WET BLOCS

Groups of Two Parties Join to Stop Practice by Dry Agents.

(Associated Press.)

The Democratic and Republican House wet blocs united last night in an effort to stop wire tapping by Federal prohibition agents.

When appropriations for prohibition enforcement are reached today in the Justice Department supply bill, the bipartisan group will offer an amendment to prohibit the use of funds for this purpose.

The plan was disclosed yesterday by Representative Linthicum, of Maryland, chairman of the Democratic group, after a conference with Representative Beck, of Pennsylvania, who heads the Republicans opposed to the dry law.

Antiprohibition spokesmen said they felt the wire tapping provision would gain greater support than any other effort to revise the bill. Last year, such an amendment was rejected 99 to 78.

While the wet blocs as a group will concentrate on wire tapping, other antiprohibitionists planned an attempt to scale downward the $11,369,500 appropriations provided for the prohibition unit. Representative Schafer (Republican), Wisconsin, said he will seek a 20 per cent reduction.

Attorney General Mitchell told the appropriations committee that wire tapping is permitted only with express advance authority from the director of the bureau and the approval of the Assistant Attorney General in charge of that work, "whatever class of case it may be."

HOMAGE TO WASHINGTON.

In the presence of Congress, and addressing the listening Nation, President Hoover yesterday fittingly expressed the loyal devotion of Americans to the memory of George Washington. The President aptly cited Daniel Webster's words of one hundred years ago, in which the famous orator voiced the hope that his countrymen of 1932 would gather on Washington's birthday and see the flag of the Union floating on the top of the Capitol, over a free, happy and united country.

In his turn President Hoover expressed the faith that a hundred years hence Washington's countrymen will again celebrate his birth, review his services with gratitude, and see the flag of the Union floating over the Capitol.

It is of incalculable benefit to Americans that their President should pause in his duties to call their attention to the example of Washington, and to exhort them to stand fast by the Government he established. The President's voice reaches the uttermost parts of the country, and to the world at large. It carries the weight of the authority of his office, which all Americans respect. His exhortation is a reassurance that the Government of this day is steadfast in its loyalty to the institution which Washington established. This institution, in President Hoover's words, "embraces a system of relationships to other nations based upon no thought of imperialism, no desire to dominate; a determined national self-reliance in defense and independence in action; freedom from all commitments to the unknown future, and an aspiration to promote peace and good will among all men." In a nutshell, the Government established by Washington is "designed in spirit to sustain a dual purpose: to protect our people among nations by great national power, and to preserve individual freedom by local self-government."

The Nation is refreshed by its observance of Washington's Birthday, during which it studies anew the story of the struggle for independence and the surmounting of obstacles to the formation of a more perfect Union, all personified in George Washington's career. In this one man is the epitome of America—what it was, what it is, and what it will be. No other American has ever equaled Washington in sweep of vision. His plans were plans adapted to the ages and not to the years. His viewpoint was continental, and not merely for his own time, but for centuries to come. Sublime as was his character, it was equaled by the sublimity of his vision and the marvelous gift which he possessed for distinguishing between the transient and the eternal, in political truth and in human nature.

STUDYING THE FOREFATHERS.

If there is anything that Washington does not know about its illustrious namesake by next Thanksgiving it will not be the fault of the Bicentennial Commission. For the next nine months the Capital will witness an almost continuous performance in connection with the many forms of celebration in which the two hundredth anniversary of the first President's birth will be celebrated. Naturally, this second century milestone is more widely observed than others, not only here, but throughout the Nation and in many parts of the world.

Through the efforts of the national commission this Washington anniversary will be observed in thousands of cities, hamlets and country schoolhouses. Never in the history of this country has such widespread interest been aroused in simliar events. The commission has done remarkably good work, and it will continue for months to come. The celebration here yesterday brought thousands of visitors to the city, and many Americans will become acquainted with the National Capital this year because of the attraction of the extensive program that has been prepared.

Undoubtedly the most valuable result of the George Washington anniversary year will be the interest that has been aroused among the youth of the land in learning about the founders of the Republic and in doing them honor. All too little attention has been given in recent years to the fundamentals on which this country was established. The broad learning, calm judgment and patriotic sacrifices of the Father of the Nation and his associates are inspiring studies for the children of America. Current misfortunes sink to less importance when the tribulations of those early patriots are considered. They contended not merely with material troubles, but suffered physical dangers and confronted problems in whose solution hung the very life of the Nation as well as their own. Study of their lives renews our appreciation of the debt we owe them, and serves to minimize the seriousness of present difficulties.

JAPAN'S PURPOSE.

Japan's purpose in invading China is clarified, to some extent, by Foreign Minister Yoshizawa's statement of policy. Apparently Japan's drive at Shanghai is aimed at smashing the nine-power treaty, which guarantees the territorial integrity of China. Mr. Yoshizawa makes a pretense of upholding the nine-power treaty "so far as it goes," but he thinks that "it does not go very far."

At the same time the Japanese foreign minister opposes the negotiation of a new treaty. Japan does not wish to be bound down by any obligations in dealing with China. "It is the settled policy of Japan," Mr. Yoshizawa says, "to deal with each case as it arises by the simple method of direct negotiations with China." In other words, Japan wishes to make certain that no international compact shall interfere with her plans to coerce China.

Under the pretense of defending Japanese lives and property the Tokyo government destroyed the civil authority in Manchuria and set up a regime of its own, disguised as an independent Manchurian government. Japan refuses to settle the Manchurian controversy with the assistance of other powers. For several weeks it has been apparent that she intends to keep those rich Chinese provinces under her own domination. Yet Japan is bound by international treaty to respect the territorial integrity of China.

In order to carry out her purpose in Manchuria it becomes necessary, therefore, for Japan to vitiate the nine-power treaty. It is this business that Japan is about in Shanghai. Japan could not face the world and say, "I have taken Manchuria for purposes of my own, thereby betraying an international trust." Tokyo officials feel that it is necessary to convince the world of China's incompetence. They seek to create a new situation to which the nine-power treaty can not reasonably be applied, and thus excuse themselves for having violated it.

Japan has found China to be far more stable and in a much better position to defend herself than was supposed. Instead of crumbling under a sudden attack, the Chinese may be driven to unity. As T. V. Soong, Chinese finance minister, expressed it, China may be battered into a genuine nation. The Chinese army has already given an excellent account of itself. Nationalistic spirit has been given impetus that has been lacking for a long time. Yet it remains to be seen whether disorganized China can hold together under this attack.

Japan disclaims any intention of occupying any territory south of the Great Wall. Apparently she will be satisfied for the present if she can bring about sufficient disintegration to bolster up her plea for scrapping the nine-power treaty. With that accomplished Japan would be free to dictate her own terms to China and the rest of the Far East. Since the League of Nations has faded out of the picture and no western nation is willing to fight to preserve China's territory, the stubborn resistance of the Chinese on the Shanghai front offers the greatest hope of thwarting Japan's purpose.

END OF THE "TRUCE."

Speaker Garner makes much ado about nothing. He calls for a termination of a political "truce" that never existed. Because some Republicans have ventured to commend President Hoover for the constructive economic program that he has set in motion, Mr. Garner says that the Democratic boys won't play ball any more. They are tired of letting Herbert Hoover do all the pitching.

Republicans both in and out of Congress are surprised to learn that the Democratic leaders of the House have looked upon their cooperation with the administration as an "undeclared compact." In reality there has been no truce between the two parties. Politics has been held in abeyance because both parties realized that an orgy of partisanship while the country was in distress would have brought them disrepute.

The Democrats returned from the long congressional holiday with a demand for leadership. Business was adrift, industry was in the doldrums, banks were on the verge of disaster, unemployment was widespread. Leadership out of this situation was the demand of the hour. At that time they did not realize that President Hoover was fully prepared to exercise such leadership. In rapid succession he sent one constructive measure after another to Congress. Even before Congress assembled he had organized the National Credit Corporation. Then came recommendations for sweeping new taxation to balance the Federal budget. On his initiative the capital of the Federal Land Banks was extended. Next came the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with $2,000,000,000 in credit to inject into effete industry and finance. Finally, credit expansion on lines favored by him brought new hope and stability to every financial institution in the country, and turned the national psychology away from despair and panic.

President Hoover has dominated the whole situation. Every reconstruction measure of any importance that has been put into operation has originated in the White House. Having called for leadership from the administration, the Democratic party has been overwhelmed by it. Democratic leaders of the House have had an opportunity to do little, except to approve projects sent to Congress from the White House. All of these measures are of such vital importance to the country that the Democratic party did not dare to oppose them. Democratic leaders had no alternative to cooperation.

Speaker Garner is especially reluctant to allow President Hoover credit for the credit expansion bill. But the facts are indisputable. The Democratic spokesman on these matters, Senator Glass, brought forward a measure that would have contributed to the disastrous process of deflation which has been going on for two years. It was President Hoover who induced congressional leaders to lay this measure aside and enact an emergency law along the lines he had outlined in his message to Congress. It is a tribute to the President's leadership and devotion to the welfare of the country that he induced two Democrats to introduce the measure in Congress, thus insuring its early enactment.

The only original proposal which the Democratic party has made for relief is a bill calling for a $750,000,000 outlay from the depleted Treasury to aid the States, and this was defeated, largely by Democrats, along with the La Follette dole bill in the Senate.

No one is holding the House leaders back. Why don't they bring forward their relief measures? If their proposals can command the support of Congress it is not to be supposed that the administration will turn its back upon them. Thus far the majority in the House has been content to let the administration mark the way to recovery. They are entitled to high commendation for falling in line with the President's program. But no one will take seriously their attempt to claim it as their own.

MALIGNING THE TARIFF.

One of the latest Democrats to announce that "the tariff has ruined our foreign trade" is former Gov. Byrd of Virginia. He said this to a Kentucky audience last week, and further argued that it was due to the American tariff that our best customers had been alienated and England, the last resort of free trade, had been forced to impose protective duties. Both contentions are without basis in fact. The tariff did not ruin our foreign trade, and England's action was caused entirely by exigencies within her own borders, economic and financial.

Foreign trade has declined heavily, when the value of exports is compared with former years, but the official figures show that the falling off of business in the United States was in even greater proportion. Furthermore, for any speaker or writer to quote dollar values when speaking of foreign trade; to claim the decrease was due to the tariff, without a vestige of proof to sustain such a statement, and at the same time omit all reference to the greatly lowered prices for all manufactured products and commodities, and ignore the impaired purchasing power of all nations, due to the depression, is either to expose ignorance of the facts or a willful avoidance of stating them.

The exact figures of import and export trade have been repeatedly given in these columns; they are available to all; up-to-date and accurately prepared by the Department of Commerce. There is no excuse for the constant reiteration of generalities that are without foundation. Two-thirds of American imports enter free of duty, and in volume of imports last year the reduction amounted to only 10 per cent. Is there any one who does not know that the volume of business in this country in 1931, production, wholesale and retail sales, declined more than that? The bulk of foreign trade was maintained better than that of business at home. Lowered prices are the result of world-wide economic conditions. Many of the facts of the present situation are so self-evident it is difficult to see how in good faith they can be ignored.

Uncle Sam is too busy trying to overcome the buyers' boycott in this country to consider a boycott against buying in Japan.

HOOVER STOCK RISES

From the Boston Transcript.

It is getting to be common talk that President Hoover is stronger with the country." It is inevitable that this should be so. The practice of abusing Mr. Hoover is going out of style; and now, in retrospect, as the voters survey the circumstances of the last few years, they are beginning to see that their criticism of Mr. Hoover because he refused to yield to pessimistic talk was misplaced; that the President of the United States could not have uttered a discouraging word in the last two or three years that would not have made a bad situation infinitely worse. They are coming to realize, despite loose clamors for a "new leadership," that none has functioned except that of Herbert Hoover. They have seen the House of Representatives captured by the Democratic party, and that party unable to do better in its legislation than to follow the wise and carefully considered recommendations emanating from the White House.

We would not minimize the credit due Speaker Garner and his followers for patriotically cooperating to enact the great fiscal measures which are going through the legislative mill, nevertheless it should not be forgotten that national conditions had grown so serious that the Democratic party dared not continue in the House the program of abuse and obstruction by means of which their less foresighted colleagues in the Senate had sought for three years to weaken the influence and dim the prestige of the President.

For a long time this program, aided and abetted by the unscrupulous press-agenting of the Democratic national committee, proved successful. Hoover was declared a failure, and it was touted that the country wanted a change. The political Gettysburg had not come. Then came that series of helpful fiscal measures, beginning with the debt moratorium, including the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and, nearing its climax, with the bill broadening the credit base of the Federal Reserve banks, which finally has stimulated a moribund stock market to new life and hope even before it had been enacted. It may be said that circumstances forced nonpartisan action by both branches of Congress, but even they could not have done so had not the legislators and the country come to believe that the guiding hand was one that could and should be followed.

POST HASTE.

This morning brings the great relief to Sol Bloom that he has George Washington safely launched into the history of his third century.

It can not be denied that Speaker Garner's survey, staking out the claim of Democrats to fame and credit for relief measures, had all the dignity and rhetorical excellence of a Goose Creek school debate.

"Nobody can dictate to the Democratic group in Congress." There you have it straight from the Democratic congressional dictator himself.

It was bound to come. Speaker Garner announces that Democrats are getting tired making their mark in Congress—on the dotted line.

From the breadth and scope of the prescriptions outlined for official and public utterances it is difficult to visualize effective restraint unless Speaker Garner establishes a censorship.

But what a novelty a combination of the Speaker's choice of expletives and his literary style would afford a presidential message!

It's hard on our modern altruistic ideas, but late reports from the Far East indicate that the survival of the fittest still means survival of the fightest.

Gov. Murray in announcing his candidacy says that if he is not nominated he will have escaped a herculean task, awful responsibility, and won a longer life. Cheer up, Alfalfa Bill, you will surely be awarded the life-extension course.

No anticlimax for Senator La Follette; failing to get his little Federal dole bill through, he now backs one for five and a half billions.

American collectors felt so poor last year that they donated only $136,000,000 worth of art to the public.

It must have been a great disappointment to the thieves who ransacked the private papers of the American delegates at Geneva to find that the United States has no secrets.

The league's precipitate haste reminds one of the New York stock market's new rule to curb short sales that is not to become effective until April Fool's Day.

Maybe it's just as well there arn't any more Mills in our dollars looking for taxes.

"Japan tells the league she is on the defensive at Shanghai." We were going to send this to Will Rogers, but it's antihoarding jokes he is collecting.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

UNCHANGEABLE.

I hold that spring will always be
Aglow with tender greenery
That twenty thousand years away
The apple blossom time in May
Will be a joy to know.

By many a door in summer time
Will crimson rambler roses climb,
And children romp in play,
And womenfolks will work and plan
To get up meals to please a man
Just as they do today.

With all that men shall build and make
For comfort's or advancement's sake,
For beauty or for gain,
Beneath the sheltering eaves will nest
In spring the robins, red of breast,
Again and yet again.

Though customs change and nations fall,
Young men on pretty girls will call,
And sigh their love to claim,
And twenty thousand years away
The things which make men sad and gay
Will be about the same.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IF you are a lover of peace, you may resent the persistence of those who ask for national protection. But which is the better friend: The man who urges you to insure your house, or the one who convinces you that a wood structure is fireproof.

You know, of course, that war is not only possible but probable so long as the world contains one great nation that is bent on conquest without regard for the rights of neutrals.

Do you know that America never has won a war against a first-class power?

The revolution that made a colony into a nation was won by France. If Britain's hands had been free, the conflict would be remembered now as a suppressed rebellion.

The War of 1812 is described as an American victory, but again England fought with one hand; and the peace treaty, signed before Jackson won the only decisive victory of the war, gave America nothing for which she had fought.

In the war with Mexico there was unnecessary sacrifice because America's Army was too small even for the small task assigned it, and in the "War with Tripoli" a rich nation fought a group of pirates almost on equal terms because love of peace had denied it an adequate naval force.

The war against Spain was a national disgrace. America won because Spain's navy was a useless sham, but lack of an efficient military organization and complete ignorance of war's problems cost the Nation a great price. Disease and rotten meat killed more men than were killed by the Spaniards.

You hear much talk of the patriotic millions who will leap to arms overnight, but the last great war taught the most stupid that leaping to arms doesn't win victories.

Modern warfare is a conflict between machines and machinists require training.

America "won" the World War because other nations kept the enemy at bay while the patriots who leaped to arms wasted billions of dollars and many a precious month in preparation for the struggle.

There may be no ally or "associated power" next time. No nation is lucky always.

Are you willing to sacrifice millions of lives and billions of wealth while untrained men learn to build planes and others learn to fly them?

Is McAdoo's Support an Asset?

Boston Transcript.

William Gibbs McAdoo probably has not a large political following, personally, and it is doubtful if, as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, he could amass much of the support he commanded when his stubborn contest against Alfred E. Smith led to the nomination of John W. Davis in 1924. Nevertheless, the importance of his declaration favoring the nomination of Speaker John N. Garner of Texas is not to be minimized, for Wilson's Secretary of the Treasury embodies a principle, or policy, whose vitality contributed powerfully to the stability of his cause in the 1924 convention. He has now given to the dry forces of the party, notably in the South, a candidate it lacked; for no other man the dry forces might favor has possessed the peculiar appeal of the pugnacious Texan or, in fact, has any following outside the confines of his own State. The South evidently was prepared to accept Gov. Roosevelt, but this fact implies something of a left-handed compliment, for the governor favors repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, and the South would take him only because of its belief that his anti-prohibition convictions are not so deep-seated as to cause worry for the next four years.

No Federal "Dole."

Christian Science Monitor.

Defeat of the La Follette-Costigan bill for Federal assistance in unemployment relief and of the various substitutes for it offered in the United States Senate marks evidently the effacement of this political issue from the agenda of the present term of Congress. Their is no question that the dislike for the word "dole" is an expression of the disfavor of millions of Americans for any arrangement that would tend to encourage some to feel that "the Government owes me a living and has unlimited resources for giving it to me."

Hoover on Federal Economy.

Chicago Tribune.

Mr. Hoover, having discovered that there is a widespread popular demand for a reduction of Government expenditures, has sent a message to Congress recommending the reorganization of the executive departments and the independent bureaus and commissions.

All that Mr. Hoover has said is true. It was true in 1921, when he referred to reorganization as a "sweeping and fundamental necessity." It was true in 1924, when he testified to the same effect before a congressional committee; in 1925, when he made an address on the subject before the United States Chamber of Commerce, and in 1928, when he accepted the nomination for the Presidency and intimated he would do something toward reorganizing the Government if he were elected. Mr. Hoover recommended executive reorganization to Congress at the opening of the present session, but, unfortunately, he has neved found it possible to make a fight for his scheme or any other.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Brief Sketch of Recoveries From Panics—United States About to Experience Great Recovery.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Following the close of the Revolutionary War, the new government was in turmoil. Each of the thirteen original States had issued paper money by the million. It was worthless. Credit, both private and public, was impaired. There was no hope for business stabilization. The Assumption Act, fathered by Alexander Hamilton, was passed and the young nation immediately prospered. It was the result of statesmanship.

In 1815, at the close of the Napoleonic Wars, all Europe was bankrupt. The Little Emperor went into exile and so great had been the blow of the continued wars that statesmen of the time could see no hope for Europe's recovery. Strange to say, by 1830 all Europe had recovered from the Napoleonic Wars and was in the midst of the greatest period of prosperity that it has ever experienced. That was the result of economic necessity.

In 1869, Smith, Gould, Martin & Co., the largest firm of brokers at that time in New York, attempted to corner all the gold in the United States. About the time this end had been accomplished, President Grant ordered the Secretary of the Treasury to begin selling gold from the vaults of the Government. Then followed "Black Friday" on September 24, 1869. It resulted in the panic of the early '70's. The brokerage firm crashed, and throughout the United States there were wild scenes of disorder. No money was available to move crops and cash could not be had upon any terms. Strange to say, though, the panic of the early '70's was followed by another period of great prosperity.

Many now living are familiar with the panic that occurred in Cleveland's administration in the years 1893-95. The gold and silver issue, reduction in tariff and labor problems were factors in this great panic. President Cleveland, a Democratic President, had finally to deal with a Republican Congress. Little could be accomplished by way of legislation. In due course, economic conditions righted themselves and prosperity returned. The panics of 1907, 1914 and 1921 are so recent as to require no comment. Suffice it to say that the country rapidly recovered from these panics.

It will likewise recover from the present depression. Regardless of the calamity howlers, banks will reopen, land values will come back, factories will hum, industry will be rehabilitated and we will have another period of prosperity such as we have never experienced. The present calamity, after all, may be credited to the World War, but, if history repeats itself, it is about time for the worm to turn and for peace and prosperity to return. We think that day is now close at hand.

State and Private Relief Becoming More Effective Every Day—Illinois an Example.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am all the time running across a statement by Federal dole advocates to the effect that cities and States are no good as charity agencies and private charity is undependable. I suppose this fools a good many tender-hearted people who don't stop to think, and for that reason it stirs my indignation.

The said statement may have been all right 30 years ago, but for quite a while charity has been on the increase in the United States. It will go on increasing if allowed to take its natural course.

States before now have not done much to help their poor in hard times. The big depression has made most of them get busy. They are taking care of those who are out of work and hungry, and this means charity set-ups for depressions hereafter as well as this year.

The last to join in the good work is Illinois. It starts out with a fund of $18,750,000, from which loans will be made to the counties if local relief actually falls short. Cities all along the line are in step with the preparedness for ready relief idea.

In regard to private charity, it has been making good and spreading for a long time. At nearly all points it can take care of its own in the usual depressions. It gets better organized from one year to another. Encouragement by the States will make it spread.

First off, charity work in State governments being something new, may have its troubles. The right way to handle the charity funds may need a good deal of study, so as to protect the State against unnecessary handouts. But in a few years its good effect will be admitted by the public, just as in the case of the Community Chest; that is, if fool congressmen don't stop the growth of private charity with a hand-out of billions from Uncle Sam's cash register.

The marriage of Miss Anne Lyden Bratton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bratton, of Atlanta, to Ensign Laurence O. Mathews, A. C., U. S. N., son of Col. Laurence O. Mathews, took place at noon yesterday at St. Mark's Methodist Church, in Atlanta, with the Rev. S. H. C. Burgin, rector of the church, officiating.

Miss Ruth Porter Bride Of Lawrence M. Proctor.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Parker Porter, daughter of Mrs. Frank A. Porter, of Norfolk, to Mr. Lawrence Martin Proctor, of Washington, is announced. The ceremony was performed at 5 o'clock last Thursday afternoon at the residence of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Hawkins, on North Shore Point, with the Rev. Leo J. Ryan officiating. Mrs. Parke F. Engle, sister of the bridegroom, gave a program of songs before the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Hawkins, wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory white satin combined with princess lace. Her tulle vail was held by a cap of lace caught at the back with a spray of orange blossoms, and she carried an arm bouquet of Joanna Hill roses and lilies of the valley.

Her maid of honor and only attendant was her cousin, Miss Genevieve Hawkins, who wore a jacket gown of pale green angel-skin lace and carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses and yellow snapdragons. The bridegroom had as best man Mr. James Pierson Hill, of Baltimore.

Immediately following the ceremony there was a small reception and later Mr. Proctor and his bride left for a wedding trip to Bermuda. After March 5 they will be at home at 2009 Belmont road. Mrs. Porter, mother of the bride, wore a gown of royal blue lace, and Mrs. Proctor, mother of the bridegroom, wore pale blue transparent velvet. Both wore corsage bouquets of pink roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Hawkins wore a gown of flesh color lace.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Grosner entertained at dinner last evening for Mr. Royal S. Copeland, jr., and his fiancee, Miss Virginia Duryee. Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose entertained at dinner in her apartment at the Mayflower for her guests who accompanied her to the ball there. In the company were the Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Debuchi, the Surgeon General of the Army and Mrs. Robert U. Patterson, Brig. Gen. William E. Horton, and Mr. and Mrs. Silas Strawn and the former's sister, Dr. Julia Strawn, of Chicago.

Mrs. Gregor Macpherson, of Wesley Heights, will entertain at the Westchester for luncheon followed by bridge today, when her guests will be Mrs. William Partridge, Mrs. Alexander Thomas, Mrs. Stephen C. Hopkins, Mrs. Roy Clyde Miller, Mrs. John Henry Yates, Mrs. Winfree E. Johnson, Mrs. Melvin D. Hildreth, Mrs. Royal R. Rommel, Mrs. G. Kibby Munson, Mrs. Delos O. Kinsman, Mrs. Max J. Proffitt, Mrs. John D. Rhodes, Mrs. Frederick Newcomb, Mrs. Homer P. Dawson, Mrs. Robert Russel and Mrs. Wesley M. Gewehr.

A colonial tea and food sale will be given by Mrs. Montgomery's circle of the Women's Association of the Metropolitan Memorial Church, in Wesley Heights, on Saturday from 4 to 6 p. m., in the vestry of the church. Mrs. Isaac E. Shoemaker and Mrs. Parke A. Galleher are in charge of arrangements for the tea table, with Mrs. Walter Davidson, Mrs. Byers M. Bachman, Mrs. Rice W. Means, Mrs. Dean M. Rathbun and Miss Hannah Frick assisting.

Mrs. Harry Bosley is in charge of the sales tables, with the following committee: Mrs. Marion Klopfer, Mrs. Percy M. Bailey, Mrs. Harry Gilchrist, Mrs. Lillian Carr. The ladies serving will be dressed in colonial costumes, as well as the little girls, Beverly Bachman and Jean Davidson, who will hold baskets for the silver offerings.

Miss Hazel Peterson and Mr. Cleon King Fierstone were married in Pittsburgh, Pa., yesterday by the uncle of the bride, the Rev. N. Bruce Fierstone, in the presence of relatives. After the ceremony the couple left for a wedding trip to Florida. They are both graduates of George Washington University. The bride is a member of Chi Omega and the bridegroom of the Theta Upsilon Omega Fraternity.

Costume Ball Recalls Days Of Washington

Pages of History Turned Back in Colonial Pageant Held at Mayflower Hotel.

The pages of history were turned back to George Washington's time last night when a pageant of colonial days opened the Bicentennial Commission ball at the Mayflower Hotel.

A scene of bewildering beauty was enacted as ladies and gentlemen of powdered hair, knee breeches, flowing hooped skirts, beauty patches, tiny fans and dainty accessories passed in review before the receiving line and the guests of honor, the Vice President of the United States, and his party, and the most distinguished diplomats serving their countries at this post.

Costumes of rare beauty and great historic interest were shown in groups reminiscent of the early history of the country, and individually. The scenes from one end of the great corridor to the other, in the ballrooms and in the dining rooms were like pictures of long ago. Had the manner of long ago gone with the costumes in their perfection there would have been little left to be desired as a production of an ancient levee and ball.

The pageant was effective so far as costumes were concerned, but it did not go on with the precision the program indicated and was, therefore, much delayed and given with some confusion.

Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, in an effective robe of maroon color silk with lace bertha, white wig and antique earrings and necklace, was the director of the pageant, assisted by Mrs. James Carroll Frazer. After the grand march and pageant which included native Indians, descendants of some of the stormiest Sioux, Pocohontas drew forth rounds of applause and no end of admiration with her wonderful flare of feathers.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of the Vice President, headed the receiving line, wearing a beautifully dressed white wig and a hoop costume of turquoise blue taffeta and coral trimmings. Also in the line were Mrs. Bloom, wife of Representative Sol Bloom, associate director of the Bicentennial Commission, who wore a gown of lavender moire draped over a petticoat of silver lace, with which beautiful costume Mrs. Bloom wore silver jewelry of the period and a white wig.

Mrs. Tuckerman, wore a colonial costume of pale blue satin with a petticoat and ruffles of old cream lace, and a white wig dressed according to the period, and Mrs. Frazer represented her maternal ancestor, Ann Mason, wearing splendid black velvet and a point lace mantilla, an heirloom, gracefully draped, and diamond ornaments.

Among those in the boxes were Attorney General and Mrs. Mitchell, the latter in a costume of pink flowered brocade over a blue petticoat; the

Actress Reported Wed To Official of Airways

New York, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—The Sun said today that Claiborne Foster, actress, was secretly married in Connecticut ten days ago to Maxwell Jay Rice, of Pan-American Airways. The couple departed Saturday for Miami, from where they will fly to Rio de Janeiro, to make their home.

Among plays in which Miss Foster has been leading lady were "Two Fellows and a Girl," "The Patsy," "Trigger," "Sinner" and "Blind Mice." Her sister, Miss Kathleen Comegys, also is well known on the stage.

Second Baby Girl Born To Mrs. Irving Berlin

New York, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Irving Berlin was a jubilant father tonight as he paraded along the corridors of the hospital where Mrs. Berlin, the former Ellin Mackay, a few hours earlier had given birth to his second daughter.

"Yes, it's a girl," said the song writer, "and Ellin and I are overjoyed. A girl was what we desired, all along. What? Yes, of course, we had a girl. But now we have two girls, and what could be better than two girls?"

Colorings of Historical Colonial Days Are Blended for Present Day Wear in Men's Silk Cravats

The authentic colorings of the brilliant Colonial period have been adapted to these cravats in the most forceful, modern fashion. Exquisite tints inspired by Washington's Scabbard, Alexander Hamilton's waistcoat, Green Mountain Rangers, and many other Colonial motifs, contribute a bright, authentic interest to these cravats during the Bicentennial celebration. Each cravat bears a label telling the historical source from which its particular coloring has been drawn.

BRIDGE STARS LOW IN EASTERN MATCH

Dull Hands Oustanding in Opening Round of Play at New York.

New York, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Brilliant, bad and indifferent play and a run of rather dull hands were paraded today as the Eastern bridge championships opened at the Hotel Roosevelt.

The first qualifying rounds of team of four play for the Curt H. Reisinger trophy, saw most of the recognized stars of the bridge world take subordinate places in the scoreboard.

Of the 24 teams playing in two sections, the Hamilton Club of Philadelphia and the Women's Whist Club of New York were tied for the lead with 15½ match points out of a possible 22.

Arthur H. Drake, of Philadelphia, white-haired player for Hamilton, was jubilant.

"We'll tell 'em about that in Philadelphia," he chuckled. "They said we wouldn't have a chance against these smart New Yorkers."

Members of Leading Teams.

Mr. Drake's teammates were Ivan Bachman, H. G. Plimpton and Alfred Byrnes, and the Women's Club Team included Mr. and Mrs. H. Raffell, Mrs. Lee Herzog and Mrs. H. N. Lieberman.

Next, with 14½ points, came a Cavendish Club Team, Walter Mallowan, J. Mattheys, H. Schwenken and S. Stern; the Brooklyn Bridge Club was fourth with 13½, and a Deschapples Club Team upon which Mrs. Ely Culbertson played, was tied with the Deal (N. J.) Club at 13.

The famous "four horsemen," P. Hal Sims, Willard S. Karn, David Burnstine and Oswald Jacoby, were far down the list with 10½, and in the same spot was Sidney Lenz, playing with a Knickerbocker Whist Club Team.

Ely Culbertson, who has sworn off tournaments and is ill besides, was not playing and Mrs. Culbertson's partner was Baron von Zedtwitz.

One team had Mrs. J. A. Warner, daughter of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, as a player. Their score was 6½.

Standings Preliminary.

The standings are purely preliminary, since none will be eliminated until after tomorrow. The experts were biding their time and hoping for better luck tomorrow.

Play began tonight for the Julian Goldman trophy for contract pair competition and George Reith, chairman of the tournament committee, said 156 pairs, an unprecedented number, had entered, with the lists still open. The previous high for this tournament is 80 pairs.

Deal No. 1 in the Reisingee Cup play held a little slam in diamonds, which, however, was bid and made by only a few. The first two teams, however, reached the slam through strikingly divergent bidding.

The hand:

The first players to have a shot at this hand were George Unger and George Reith, at north and south, and Jacoby and Burnstein, of the "Horsemen," at east and west.

First Bid on Hand.

Unger opened with one diamond, Jacoby passed, Reith announced a spade and Burnstein said two clubs; Unger went to two hearts, and Jacoby, apparently trying to frighten them away from a game contract, said two no-trumps, which Reith doubled. Jacoby bid a frantic three clubs, whereupon Reith went immediately to a small slam in diamonds.

When Sims and Karn, the other "Horsemen," reached the table, they reached the slam by a different approach. Their opponents were S. Brown and R. L. Frey. The bidding: Karn (dealer), pass; east, pass; Sims, 1 spade; west, 2 clubs; north, 2 diamonds; east, pass; south, 3 clubs; west, pass; north, 3 hearts; east, pass; south, 3 no-trump; west, pass; north, 5 diamonds; east, pass; south, 6 diamonds.

In both cases, of course, the hand was a lay-down for the slam.

of the league want to invoke that, it is their business. I want us to keep out of the Far East dispute, and, above all, I want us to keep our boys at home."

The American committee on the Far East crisis, in announcing the new petitions for a boycott, stated that 47 colleges and universities in 17 States are represented in the list of signatures sent to the President.

Meantime charges and countercharges of violations of the laws of warfare are being made by the combatants struggling to build up a case for themselves in world opinion.

At the Japanese Embassy it was said yesterday that Tokyo will bring to the attention of the League of Nations the alleged use of dum-dum, or soft-nosed, bullets by the Chinese forces. Dr. W. W. Yen, representing China at Geneva, made a similar charge against Japan several days ago.

Since The Hague peace conference of 1899, called through the influence of Czar Nicholas II of Russia, outlawed the dum-dum bullet and poison gas, their use, or reported use in war has always been the cause of heated controversy. Neither Japan nor China was signatory to the declaration against dum-dum bullets.

Although the United States participated in this first Hague conference, the Americans did not sign the declaration against soft-nosed bullets. France and Russia were the only great European powers among the fifteen signers of this declaration.

The Geneva conference of 1864 was the first international meeting to urge outlawing such bullets. The action of this conference was adopted by the first Hague peace conference 35 years later.

JAPANESE, THWARTED IN DRIVE AT KIANGWAN, TRY STARVATION

positions soldiers were seen about the smoking ruins of some Chinese houses attempting to cook food over the embers.

Scene of Desolation.

The scene of desolation was a vivid example of war's destruction.

While the heaviest fighting went on to the northwest of Kiangwan, the entire line continued active. Troops south of Kiangwan kept up a steady fire. The Japanese artillery sought to blast a way through the Chinese positions, which still held.

With the clearing of the atmosphere the Japanese aerial attack became more intense. The air fleet was increased from six to eleven bombing planes, helping direct the artillery fire.

Down Chapel way things appeared to be quieter after a splash of shelling at daylight. But the fires that sprang up from the exploding shells continued to ravage that old battlefield of the present warfare where there was anything left to burn.

Staunch Chinese Opposition.

A Japanese lieutenant, who last night participated in the rush of infantry attempting to take the Chinese trenches northwest of Kiangwan, related today how the Japanese had charged but were forced to retreat in the face of staunch Chinese opposition.

He said his company charged through the darkness, but suffered heavy casualties as the Chinese waited with their bayonets pointed over the parapets against the oncoming Japanese.

His captain fell in the charge, the Japanese said, and part of his command fell back. They left most of the company dead or dying in front of the Chinese trenches.

Field headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, Japanese commander, was hurriedly established in a small frame building and a couple of tents. There was an atmosphere of confusion about the headquarters.

A number of horses were tied to a hitchrack before the general's door, while Red Cross units, field guns and other miscellaneous equipment stood uncovered roundabout.

The Japanese carried out their raid on the Chinese airdrome in fear that Chinese fliers were preparing to take to the air for a battle with the enemy planes. The Chinese removed all their planes a few days ago, but some apparently had flown back and the indication of activity brought down the Japanese annihilation.

Airdrome Widely Known.

The airdrome was internationally known, numerous foreign fliers having landed there on various flights to the Orient. It was there that the Americans, William Brock and Edward F. Schlee; the British aviatrix, Mrs. Victor Bruce; the German Baron Ehrenfried Gunther von Huenefeld, of transatlantic flight fame, and others landed on visits to Shanghai.

China's national government is preparing for a war against Japan which will last a year, it was said today in an authoritative quarter.

The government is buying large quantities of ammunition and airplanes and importing trench-digging machinery from Germany. The authorities are convinced that the future of the Chinese nation depends on the outcome.

The Japanese command explained that the purpose of the surrounding movement was to avoid excessive casualties, among their own troops as well as among the Chinese manning machine guns behind Kiangwan's walls. But the thoroughness of the Japanese artillery preparation and the intense machine gun fire laid down by the Chinese when the assault line appeared, indicated that casualties would be enormous.

The first objective of the assault apparently was the village of Mo Hang Chen, 2 miles northeast of Kiangwan, where, according to the Chinese version of yesterday's action, a Japanese attacking unit was led into ambush and cut down by machine gunners and riflemen.

The Chinese got a head start in today's action by laying down on Hongkew and the Japanese consulate in Shanghai the heaviest bombardment they have put on since the battle started four days ago.

Rooftops in the International Settlement were crowded with fascinated foreigners and natives all during the night as the Chinese, displaying an artillery strength nobody suspected they had, rained shells into the strong Japanese positions in Hongkew and bombarded the Japanese consulate on the Shainghai bund.

Many Killed in Fighting.

Estimates of casualties, which have been very low since the action started, began to get a little closer to what seemed to be the truth. The Japanese admitted 300 in yesterday's fighting. Chinese hospitals and foreign soldiers guarding the boundaries of the French Concession reported that 344 wounded Chinese had passed through the gates. This did not include scores of wounded Chinese civilians.

The Japanese intelligence division reported to headquarters that the 88th Chinese Division, a unit in the forces of former President Chiang Kai-Shek, had joined the Nineteenth Chinese Route Army and was operating under German instructors.

It was impossible to check this report with Chinese officials. The Chinese, in turn, averred that the Japanese had landed two new divisions of troops, a report that brought forth from the Japanese headquarters spokesman the remark he wished it was true.

Shortly before midnight the Chinese moved a battery of 3-inch howitzers and three heavy trench mortars into the compound of the North Station, almost within sight of the Japanese lines.

Johnson Is Onlooker.

These pieces provided part of the battle spectacle for the sightseers of Shanghai's rooftops. All night long the howitzers dumped explosives into the northern section of Hongkew. At frequent intervals the darkness was broken by brilliant shell-bursts.

Among those who watched were Nelson T. Johnson, United States Minister to China, and Capt. William Mayer, his military aid. They had places on the roof of one of the highest office buildings on the Bund.

Dr. T. K. Jen, chief of the Chinese Red Cross Hospital, issued a statement that several of his Red Cross trucks transporting wounded from the battle field had been deliberately attacked by Japanese airplanes. The planes used machine guns on the trucks, the physician said, and bombed roads in the vicinity of Tachang and Kiangwan despite the fact the trucks were plainly marked with the red cross. He estimated that more than 200 wounded soldiers remained on the battle field because of the attack on the ambulances.

INUKAI'S GREAT WIN GIVES HIM 301 SEATS

Tokyo, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—The old gray fox of Japanese politics, Suyoshi Inukai, rode tonight on an avalanche of victory as final returns from Saturday's election vindicated his "prosperity" campaign and gave him 301 seats in the House of Representatives.

The continuation of Premier Inukai's Seiyukai party in power was a usual procedure in Japanese elections, but his margin of majority, 136 seats, was unexpected, despite the Seiyukai boast they would capture 300 seats.

In the final returns tonight the Minseito, opposition, had 149 seats, the Proletarians 5, and other parties 11, giving the 76-year-old prime minister 130 more seats than he held in the old Diet which was dissolved on January 21.

On Economic Issues.

Without significance in foreign affairs, the election was campaigned on economic issues, the Seiyukai using the slogan, "A vote for the Seiyukai hastens the return of prosperity." The Minseito, deposed when the cabinet of former Premier Reijibo Wakatsuki fell last December, answered with, "One can not feed on a fictitious boom."

The Japanese electorate placed the reins of government in the hands of a party which has consistently advocated a stronger and more definite policy toward China and the Soviets. The party's main strength came from the rural districts, it prided itself on its so-called "positive policy," including greater extravagance in public expenditure. On coming into power in December the party reimposed a gold embargo, and generally favored a policy of inflation.

Upheld Gold Standard.

The Minseito, while more liberal in its general outlook than its big rival, found its main support in urban districts, and rigidly upheld the gold standard. It was accused of being weak-kneed in its foreign policy especially toward China and to a certain extent toward Russia.

Bad news from Shanghai gave rise tonight to considerable anxiety in authoritative civilian circles. Press dispatches told of stubborn resistance by the Chinese army and said the Japanese offensive was meeting some reverses.

Despite these dispatches, government officials declared there was no plan at present to send additional reinforcements. The war office, remaining outwardly calm, said there was no confirmation of the reported reverses and pointed out that the Japanese advance would necessarily be slow as the Shanghai terrain is cut by numerous canals which make progress difficult.

ASIATIC WAR CITED IN BIG NAVY PLEAS

Senators Reed and Hale Say U. S. Is Not Adequately Prepared for Defense.

(Associated Press.)

The hostilities between China and Japan were cited last night by the chairmen of the Senate naval and military committees as a reason why America should be adequately prepared for war.

Chairman Hale, of the naval committee, advocated building the Navy up to London Treaty limits and Chairman Reed, of the military affairs committee, urged maintaining maintenance of the strength of the Army. They spoke over the National Broadcasting System.

"With the world in its present chaotic condition," Senator Hale said, "and with the apparent failure of all treaties to guarantee world peace, it is inconceivable folly and no part of real economy to fail to provide in full measure for the national defense of our country."

Danger of Spreading.

Asserting that no one can say the war in Asia will not spread, Senator Reed warned: "We once thought that a war in Europe could not touch us, and when it did touch us it found us unprepared. We must not make that mistake again."

Senator Hale said that with a Navy only equal to Japan's, "we could not meet Japan on anything approaching equal terms in Eastern waters, where, in case of war, the seat of hostilities would undoubtedly be."

By not building up the terms of the London treaty, he said, this country has lost the security afforded it under that agreement and is therefore more likely to become involved in war.

Policy Called Feeble.

He added: "The situation in the East, conclusively shows that massed world opinion will not operate to maintain world peace, and that no nation relying on treaties can safely afford to neglect its national defense."

Senator Hale warned that "the time will come when this feeble naval policy of ours will be bitterly regretted by the people of our country."

Senator Reed, arguing against further reductions in the Army, said "the vast majority of our citizens feel that this world has not yet reached such a state of idyllic reasonableness as would justify our complete disarmament."

"Any one who doubts it has only to look at China," he said, "where we find two great nations at death grips, although both of them are members of the League of Nations, both are members of the World Court, both have pledged their honor to observe the Kellogg peace pact and both have signed the nine-power treaty of 1922, which binds the signatories to respect the territorial integrity of China."

JAPANESE URGE BAN ON PLANE BOMBINGS

Geneva Conference Receives Tokyo Proposals; U. S. Offers Police Basis.

Geneva, Feb. 22 (U.P.).—A Japanese program calling for prohibition of aerial bombardment of towns and cities was presented to the world disarmament conference tonight while warfare between China and Japan raged through the burning ruins of Shanghai and nearby villages in the Yangtze Delta.

The Japanese plan would provide for strong guarantees against possible violation of the obligations of any disarmament treaty by one or more countries.

This clause was obviously intended to guard against the possibility of China or Russia signing a disarmament convention and then acting contrary to the terms of the agreement.

Japan's Proposed Program.

The Japanese program dealt at length with the implements of war which have been used in the struggle at Shanghai, where Japanese bombing planes and heavy artillery have devastated a densely populated district of the Chinese city and wrecked numerous small towns along the Whangpoo River.

Japan agreed to use the league preparatory commission's draft disarmament convention as a basis for discussion. She expressed a demand that limitation or reduction of air forces must be executed in a manner rectifying the inequalities of existing air forces. This clause was understood to be intended to protect the Japanese air force, which Tokyo claims is far inferior to the forces of other countries.

Arms Curb on Ships.

The Japanese proposed strict limitation of the armaments of merchant vessels and of commercial and private aircraft; the prohibition of bacteriological warfare; reduction of the tonnage of capital (battle) ships; reduction of the caliber of guns on big ships, and reduction of the tonnage of aircraft carriers under the present naval treaties, if abolition of such vessels can not be achieved.

Geneva, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—The scheme of the St. Germain treaty, which allowed Austria a relatively stronger army than the Versailles treaty allowed Germany after the World War, was suggested to the World Disarmament Conference by the American delegation today as the basis for computing national police forces.

It was advanced by the Americans as one of nine propositions in their formal proposals for disarmament, including eight covered by Ambassador Hugh Gibson's recent speech before the conference.

Proposals by America.

Under the American proposal, the size of a nation's armed forces would be based on the effectives necessary for the maintenance of internal order, plus a contingent for defense.

The St. Germain treaty gave Austria, with a population of 6,000,000, an army of 30,000. The Versailles treaty gave Germany, a country of 60,000,000 inhabitants, an army of only 100,000.

Other suggestions of the American delegation were:

Use of the conference's draft convention as a basis of discussion.

Abolition of submarines, lethal gases and bacteriological warfare.

Protection of civilian populations against aerial bombing.

Restrictions against tanks and heavy guns.

Chinese Soldiers Fire on U. S. 31st

Mistaken Identity Claimed; Mission Hospital Is Hit by Stray Shell.

Shanghai, China, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Chinese troops today fired across Soochow Creek on members of the Thirty-first United States Infantry as the Americans were looking on their barbed-wire defenses.

A complaint was carried immediately by the American authorities to Chinese headquarters, where it was said that the Americans had been mistaken for Japanese bluejackets because they were wearing blue uniforms. No casualties were suffered by the Thirty-first.

The American Seventh Day Adventist Mission Hospital on the Chapei border was hit by a stray shell during the artillery bombardment tonight. The building was vacated a few days ago when mission authorities moved the 160 patients to other quarters.

Dr. H. W. Miller, who until 1927 was director of the Adventist Hospital in Washington, D. C., has charge of the property.

Senator's Brother Pleads Not Guilty

Kin of Mrs. Caraway Freed on $1,000 Bond Pending Later Hearing.

Waverly, Tenn., Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Walter E. Wyatt, brother of Senator Hattie Caraway, of Arkansas, entered a plea of not guilty before a United States Commissioner today to charges of violating the national prohibition law, and furnished $1,000 bond for his appearance in Federal Court at Nashville in March. He is charged with owning and operating a distillery, possessing intoxicating liquor and possessing property designed for use in the manufacture of liquor.

The commissioner, Max Simpson, quoted officers as saying they found a still near a farm which Wyatt rents and that after lying in wait for a while, Wyatt and another man approached the still, but turned back before reaching it.

The officers, Commissioner Simpson said, followed Wyatt to his home and reported they found a dismantled still there. The Wyatt estate, where Mrs. Caraway was reared, is some distance from Wyatt's rented farm.

COSTUME BALL RECALLS DAYS OF GEORGE WASHINGTON

Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde, the latter wearing pale blue satin with a fichu of fine white lace and a wig; the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Doak, the latter in a dainty gown of peach-color taffeta with tiny black ribbon bows down the front and on the bodice. Mrs. Lamont, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, wore a costume of white taffeta over a rose-colored petticoat.

Miss Hyde Present.

The Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde were accompanied by their daughter, Miss Carolyn Hyde, who wore a very lovely costume of rose pink silk that had very rare lace on it which had belong to her grandmother.

The Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Frederick H. Payne represented the former's ancestors, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Payne, of Hingham, Mass. Col. Payne wore the uniform of an officer in the Continental Army and Mrs. Payne was in a blue brocade colonial costume of the same period.

Many of the guests impersonated their ancestors. Leading members of the clergy appeared as preachers of Revolutionary days. Officials and diplomats and hundreds of visitors from other cities were present.

Copied From Portraits.

Many authentic period gowns were worn in the pageant, copied from old portraits and making reproductions of costumes too fragile to be actually worn.

Characters in the pageant include a long list of historic men and women stepping out from the shadows of the days that are gone in the person of their descendants who occupy a place in present-day society comparable to the station in life in which they lived and moved and had their being.

Represents Lafayettes.

Two other outstanding figures were the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke as the Marquis and Marquise de la Fayette.

Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart headed a picturesque Huguenot group in quaint costumes. Mrs. Mary C. D. Johnson entered with her in pageant.

Mrs. Henry Horton Benkhard, of New York, was Mrs. Roger Williams, wife of the founder of Rhode Island.

Mrs. Tuckerman Present.

Miss Laura Wolcott Tuckerman appeared as her ancester, Laura Wolcott, daughter of Oliver Wolcott, Secretary of the Treasury in Washington's Cabinet. Ruth Hollingsworth Tuckerman was her great-great-great-great-grandmother, Ruth Hollingsworth, wife of Valentine Hollingsworth, who came over with William Penn, the founder of Pennsylvania.

Alice Noel Tuckerman was Mary Chilton, her ancestor, who, history relates, was the first woman to step off the Mayflower when it landed on the rocks at Plymouth.

Mrs. William Bayard Van Rensselaer, from New York, represented her ancester, Marie Van Cortlandt, wife of Jeremias Van Rensselaer, patron of Rensselaer Wick.

Member of Army Staff.

Col. Charles Patterson, U. S. A., represented his ancestor, Maj. James Patterson, of the Revolutionary Army, who was on Gen. Washington's staff at Valley Forge.

Mr. Eben Comins appeared as his ancestor, Gov. Prince, of the Plymouth Bay Colony in 1637. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gouverneur Morris, of New York, were their anccestors of that same name, who figured in events of Revolutionary days.

Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong represented her maternal great, great grandmother, Desire Dimock, wife of Capt. Timothy Dimock of Revolutionary fame. Guests in her box were the Minister of the Irish Free State and Mrs. Michael MacWhite, the Attorney General and Mrs. William D. Mitchell, who were accompanied by the latter's cousin, Miss Mary F. Hewins, of Boston, and Dr. and Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin.

Mrs. Samuel Williams Earle, of Chicago, who was appointed a member of the Illinois Bicentennial Commission by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, represented her paternal ancestor, Lady Winfield, grandmother of Richard Schutt, who was the great great grandfather of Mrs. Earle and fought in the Revolution.

Settled in Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffries Chewning, jr., represented the former's ancestors, Col. and Mrs. William Ball, who were early maternal ancestors of George Washington. Col. Ball came to this continent in the early seventeenth century and settled in Lancaster County, Va. He was in the service of the Crown and "impressed men and horses against the Indians in 1675." He is one of Mr. Chewning's Society of Colonial War ancestors. Mrs. Chewning impersonated Mrs. Ball who was the famous Hannah Apherold.

Mrs. J. L. Loose, who represented Sarah Clark, wife of Abraham Clark, signer of the Declaration of Independence, wore a gown of pink and blue flowered taffeta, the skirt draped over a foundation of blue that was covered with a lace flounce. A narrow ruching of lace caught with tiny blue velvet bows, similar to those that held the drapery in place on the skirt, finished the neckline and sleeves and was also used around the throat instead of jewels. Large jeweled combs in her white wig and blue brocade shoes completed the costume.

Mr. Arthur Tirrell represented his direct ancestor, Gen. James Cudworth, who was deputy governor of the colonies in 1656 and commander in chief of all forces in King Philip's War. Miss Dorothy Tirrell represented her ancestor, Lady Griffith Rice. Miss Emily McCormick, of Berryville, Va., a descendant of Nellie Custis, was present, wearing a copy of one of the costumes worn by her ancestor.

Unusually Becoming Costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Meem were among the participants, the latter wearing an unusually becoming costume, an exact copy of one worn by her ancestor, Ann Rozier Carroll Young. The gown was duplicated in brocade in an old blue shade. Mrs. Thomas H. C. Reed entertained a company of fourteen at dinner at the Mayflower beforehand, her guests including the Chilean Ambasasdor, Senor Don Miguel Cruchaga Tocornal; Senor Don Elie J. Hazera, Charge d'Affaires of the Nicaraguan Legation; Mme. Sacasa, wife of the former Minister of Nicafagua, and Mrs. Peter Cooper.

Mrs. William A. Scully and her debutante daughter, Miss Kate Hyde Scully, took part in the pageant, the former representing Honour Treat, wife of Richard Treat, of Massachusetts, from whom she is a direct descendant. Miss Scully appeared as Mary Heard, daughter of John Heard, who was historic founder of the State of New Hampshire. Mrs. William Laird Dunlop represented her great-great-grandmohter, Mrs. Levin Powell.

Georgia Represented.

Among Georgia representatives was Houstoun R. Harper, representing his ancestor, Sir Patrick Houstoun, a young Scottish nobleman, who came over as secretary to Lord Oglethorpe and was for years president of His Majesty's Council in Georgia. His son, John Houstoun, was Governor of Georgia and the only native son who was delegate to Continental Congress and should have been a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The Dean of the Diplomatic Corps, the Italian Ambassador, and Donna Antonietta de Martino were the guests in the box of the United States Bicentennial Commission with the Commissioners who include Senator Simeon D. Fess, Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Millard E. Tydings, Senator and Mrs. Hugo Black, Representative and Mrs. Joseph Byrns, Representative John Q. Tilson, Mr. C. Bascom Slemp, Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook and Mrs. John Dickinson Sherman.

The Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes entertained in their box last evening, when their guests were the Solicitor General and Mrs. Thomas D. Thacker.

Mr. and Mrs. Denegre's Guests.

The Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Ferrara were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Denegre in their box last evening as were the Peruvian Ambassador, Senor Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander; the Danish Minister and Mme. Vadsted and Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Claudel, the German Ambassador and Frau von Prittwitz und Gaffron and the Polish Ambassador, Mr. Tytus Filipowicz, were among the guests of Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom in their box. Their other guests were Mlle. Reine Claudel, Miss Vera Bloom, the Military Attache of the Italian Embassy, Lieut. Col. Marco Pennaroli, and the Chief of the Far Eastern Division of the State Department, Dr. Stanley Hornbeck.

The Turkish Ambassador, Mr. Ahmet Muhtar, was the guest in the box of Mrs. Thomson Walles.

The Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Debuchi were the guests of Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose in her box when the other guests were Brig. Gen. William E. Horton, and the Surgeon General of the Army and Mrs. Robert U. Patterson.

British Ambassador in Box.

The British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, was the guest in the box of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schoelkopf, as were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, and Mrs. Irving Chase.

The Belgian Ambassador and Mme. May were the guests in the box of Mrs. Edward Walker, as were Gen. and Mrs. Andre Brewster.

The Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. de Lima e Silva were the guests of Mrs. Deming Jarves as were the Czechoslovak Minister and Mme. Veverka, the Minister of the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Eric Louw, Mrs. Mahlon Pitney and Mr. and Mrs. Kenna.

The Chilean Ambassador, Senor Don Miguel Cruchaga Tocornal, was the guest of Mrs. Thomas Greene, as were Senora de Sacasa, wife of the former Nicaraguan Minister, and the Charge d'Affaires of Nicaragua, Senor Don Luis Debayle.

Guests of Mrs. Griffin.

The Minister of Finland, Mr. L. Astrom, and the Yugoslav Minister, Dr. Leonide Pitamic, were the guests in the box of Mrs. Eugene Griffin, as were her daughter, Mme. Mauduit, Mlle. Yolande Mauduit, Mr. Holland Beale and Mrs. Frank P. Mitchell.

The Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnik were the guests in the box of Representative and Mrs. Percy Hamilton Stewart. The other guests were the Bishop of Washington and Mrs. James E. Freeman and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mason Remey.

The Swedish Minister, Mr. W. Bostrom, was the guest of Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, as were Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship and Miss Dorothy Sollers.

The Attorney General and Mrs. William DeWitt Mitchell attended the ball in the box of Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong, as did the President of the George Washington University and Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin.

Senator and Mrs. Kendrick.

Senator and Mrs. John B. Kendrick entertained as their box guests Senator and Mrs. Royal S. Copeland, Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Senator and Mrs. Arthur Robinson and Mrs. Rose, of Arkansas.

Mrs. Daniel C. Stapleton had as her guests the Counselor of the German Embassy and Frau Leitner.

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert entertained in her box when her guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Stone. Mrs. Robert Burdette, of California, and Mrs. Sidney Cloman.

Dr. and Mrs. Augustus Thorndike entertained in their box when their guests were Miss Susan Amory and Mrs. John Lowell, all of Boston.

Miss Mary Howry and Miss Elizabeth Howry had in their box their cousin, Mrs. Thomas P. Denham, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. Joseph E. Washington and her daughter, Mrs. Stuart Hotchkiss; Mr. Arthur Hayden and Mr. Robert Kelly.

Gov. Pollard Attends.

Mrs. Robert Hollister Chapman had in her box Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia, and a group of friends who came from Virginia for the ball.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Graves Mather entertained in their box Judge John Barton Payne, Dr. and Mrs. Bloodgood, Miss Bloodgood, the Counselor of the Netherlands Legation, Mr. L. G. van Hoorn; Miss Alice Garrett Wilkins and Miss Eleanor Houston.

The Colonial Dames box was occupied by Mrs. DeCoursey Fales, Mrs. J. Wilmer Biddle, president, Philadelphia Chapter; Mrs. James F. Sullivan, Mrs. Henry Benkhard, Mrs. R. Tait MacKeenzie, Miss Van Rensalaer, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. Tunstall Smith, Miss Gardinier, New York; Princess Raspoli di Poggio Suasa, Mrs. Franz Anderson and Mrs. Guy Castle.

Others who entertained in their boxes were Mrs. S. Walter Washington, who had as her guests Miss Jane Washington Willis and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Willis; Miss Annie B. Jennings, who entertained the regents of the Mount Vernon Ladies Association; Mrs. Adolph Ladenburg, who entertained the members of the Order of the Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gouvernour Morris, of New York, had as their guest the Duchess de Richelieu; Mrs. Richard Evelyn Byrd, wife of Admiral Byrd, who came from her home in Winchester, Va., with a group of guests; Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Parker, and Mrs. A. Gary Johnson, who had as her guest Miss Evelyn Larner, of New York.

Ring Washington Gave To Brother Displayed

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Fairfax, of Virginia, attended the ball at the Mayflower last evening, representing Lord and Lady Fairfax, the former's ancestors. Mrs. Fairfax wore a ring which was given by George Washington to his brother, Lawrence Washington, at the time of the latter's marriage to Anne Fairfax, the ancestor of Ronald Fairfax. The ring has since been handed down to the eldest member of the Fairfax family. It consists of a large diamond set in heavy gold surrounded by thirteen small star-shaped diamonds, in commemoration of the union of the thirteen original colonies.

Mrs. Fairfax wore a gown of garnet-colored velvet fashioned after the styles of Lady Fairfax, and trimmed with rare old duchesse lace. Her elaborately powdered wig was also of the period. Mr. Fairfax wore a costume of a colonial gentleman of the nobility.

How Millions LOSE FAT

You know, as all know, that in late years excess fat has been disappearing fast. Look about you. Note how slender figures, youth and vigor have displaced abnormal fat.

The reason lies largely in a discovery made by modern science. A great cause of excess fat has been found in a weakened gland. Food which should create fuel and energy goes to piled-up fat.

Now doctors, the world over, feed that lacking factor. Normal conditions return. Fat melts away and vim comes back. And this without starvation.

Marmola prescription tablets embody this modern method. People have used them for 24 years—millions of boxes of them. The changed conditions of today are largely due to Marmola.

Quit wrong methods of reduction, hard or futile. Do what modern doctors do, and what countless people have done with Marmola. Take these tablets—four a day—until weight comes down to normal and vim returns par.

All druggists supply Marmola—$1 a box. A book in each box gives the formula and explains the amazing results. Get slender now, more youthful, more active. Don't wait longer, Marmola is at your call.

"Guess I'm like most Americans who travel a lot, I take many of my hobbies with me. Chesterfields, for instance. I've smoked 'em for years.

The Homemaker

By NANCY CAREY

Rhubarb Makes Its Spring Appearance.

AND now, after our evening of patriotic festivities, let us settle down into the prosaic existence of a "quiet evening at home." I'm sure nothing could be more pleasant, after tucking the children snugly in bed, than to get our newspaper, or the book that is holding our attention at the moment, and settle down to our reading, with perhaps, a bit of homemade candy to munch on and dad's favorite cigar with its rings of smoke encircling dreams of yesteryear.

Wednesday's Dinner.

Egg Timbales With Tomato Cream Sauce
Baked Potatoes
Shredded String Beans
Rhubarb Pudding
Coffee

Egg Timbales.

3 eggs
3 teaspoons butter
3 teaspoons flour
⅔ cup milk, scalded
3 teaspoons parsley, chopped
Salt and pepper
Cayenne
Celery salt

Make a white sauce of the butter, flour and milk. Add the slightly beaten egg yolks. Add the seasonings to taste and then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Fill greased baking dishes about two-thirds full with the mixture. Set dishes in pan of hot water and bake in slow oven about 300 degrees until firm. Arrange on platter and serve with tomato cream sauce.

Tomato Cream Sauce.

1 cup tomatoes
1 stalk celery
1 slice onion
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook all together rapidly for 20 minutes. Rub through strainer and combine with one cup medium white sauce.

Rhubarb Pudding.

Cover the bottom of a buttered pudding dish with slices of bread and butter and rhubarb cut in short pieces. Sprinkle generously with sugar and add another layer of bread and butter. Repeat until the dish is full. Cover and bake for half an hour. Remove the lid and bake ten minutes or until browned. Serve with hot or cold sauce.

Hot Sauce.

Whites of two eggs beaten stiff to which one cup powdered sugar has been added gradually. Beat well. Add one-fourth cup hot milk, continuing the beating, and lastly one teaspoon vanilla.

Cold Sauce.

Beat three-fourths of a cup of cream slightly and gradually add one-third of a cup of powdered sugar while beating constantly, and when the sauce is stiff enough to hold its shape add a few drops of vanilla.

Kidney Newburg.

3 veal kidneys
3 tablespoons flour
1 pint milk
2 tablespoons butter
Yolks of 2 hard-cooked eggs
4 tablespoons nonalcoholic sherry flavoring or 3 teaspoons Worcestshire sauce
Salt and pepper to taste
Dash of paprika

After removing the fat and sinews from the kidneys, wash them thoroughly and put into saucepan with enough water to cover. Add one teaspoon of salt. Allow to come to a boil and simmer for about one hour or until very tender. Cut the kidneys into small pieces and put them in double boiler, adding the butter and the seasoning. When butter melts, sprinkle in the flour slowly, stirring constantly. When it is smooth and thick, gradually add the milk, to which have been added the chopped eggs. Cook for ten minutes, stirring continuously. Add the sherry flavoring just before serving. Serve on squares of buttered toast.

Jane Engle INTERPRETS the MODE

Carrying the swing-around coat movement to a chic extreme in a gray suede cloth coat dress, trimmed in gray broadtail. (A Dah-ray design.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 22—What a far cry today's wash dresses are from even yesteryears! Wash dresses now are delightful affairs, and does this mean that they are lots more expensive than they were when they were such impossibly shaped and fitting things? On the contrary! They are cheaper than ever before, and much, much better made, better fitting and of better materials.

When you stop to think of it! Today wash dress materials are preshrunk, sunfast, color fast, and are given the same attention in design that $15 and even $30 a yard materials are given. And as to the dresses themselves, the designers of them are as highly paid as the designers of evening gowns, and the cutters must be as skilled—everything. goes into a wash dress that goes into any other dress for Miladi Moderne.

And the result! Dresses in new versions of old, familiar cottons, that are as chic and flattering as modern skill and money can make them. Dresses that the housewife delights in, and wears for shopping, tennis, even summer resort wear, as well as for actual housework. Can you imagine a house dress of yesterday going to a summer resort?

Now, as to the most popular cotton frocks for this coming spring and summer, two linens, one called hand-embroidered linen, and the other striped linen, are very popular. Then there is a newcomer to the fore, called seersucker—and most popular this one is, too, sh-h-h-h, maybe because it doesn't have to be ironed!

Terry cloth is another popular cotton material that does not have to be ironed. And watch for a tennis frock your Dah-ray designed for you, and which I will sketch for you later this week—made, of course, of a cotton fabric, and incorporating an idea that would be perfect for a house dress, too.

Who wants a just-too-heavenly-for-words coat dress? She has only to look at the one I designed for her today, and take the sketch to a good shop or dressmaker—and have it. What goings on!

The skirt just keeps "going on," you see, from right under the bust at the right side, around under the arm, across the back, and down the front on the left—all buttoned with steel or cloth buttons—yes, you need some help to get it on! And the upper part, of galyac, or broadtail, or even just cloth, would be awfully chic, and has the wide drop sleeves, as you can see, and slightly full sleeves over a tight cut cuff. And the collar may be worn either buttoned, as on a large figure, or open, as in the upper circle. Nice?

Au Revoir.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

EATING RAW FISH.

THE custom of eating raw fish, or fish not thoroughly cooked, is again getting people into trouble. The earlier reports were from States in the upper Mississippi valley and the basin of the Great Lakes. Now comes one from the Atlantic Seaboard. The earliest account was from people born in Finland. This one relates to Jewish people. The subject is not bounded geographically, nor is it a matter of race. The one essential for the trouble now under discussion is a certain dietary custom. Some people eat smoked or dried fish without cooking.

Fish is an excellent meat food. While there is some variation in its calories due to difference in the firmness of the meat and in the amount of fat it contains, the rule is that fish has about the same heat and fuel value as beef, and about the same power of repairing worn tissues as have eggs or mutton. It generally has the usual vitamins and minerals, with exceptions, such as the high content of sea fish in iodine, and of parts of cod and halibut in certain vitamins.

There are peoples who eat no meat except fish, and they live in health and strength to reach ripe old age. To others, fish is a luxury, a something craved, a food served as a reward of merit. There is no quarrel with fish as a food. The quarrel is with smoked, dried, and preserved fish meat, eaten without proper cooking. The hazard is due to the method of preparation for the table.

Dr. M. Plotz reports on 21 cases of fish tapeworm infection occurring in Brooklyn, and nearly all in one hospital service, and within a brief space of time. Nearly all the victims were Jewish people. On cross-examination by Dr. Plotz, it developed that these sufferers had eaten fish that had been improperly cooked, or had not been cooked at all. Many people like to nibble at uncooked, smoked or dried fish. And there are several renowned dishes of which uncooked fish is a part. Fish are very subject to tapeworm—some more so, some less. Any one eating the raw meat of an infected fish is in danger.

In some instances tapeworm causes abdominal pain and diarrhea. In others, anemia results. In still others there are present some of a list of vague, indefinite symptoms that are not easily explained. It is probable that the reason Dr. Plotz found so many cases of fish tapeworm among his patients was that he knew they were accustomed to eating uncooked fish, and, knowing this practice causes fish tapeworm, he was on the lookout. Perhaps other physicians would find more of this trouble if they investigated more fully their patients who are accustomed to eating raw fish.

Dr. Plotz recored a few cases among people born in this country. There is evidence not only that our fish are becoming more infected by tapeworm, but also that our people are disposed to learn to eat smoked, dried and preserved fish without first cooking it.

FOOD FOR TEETH.

L. W. C. writes: Is it possible to correct teeth by proper diet in a person over 20? If so, what foods will aid in repairing the gums and cavities caused by gum recession?

REPLY.

A diet rich in vitamin D and also in vitamin C is of service in treatment of the gums and teeth in adults. What such a diet can do if pyorrhea is well developed, the cavities are extensive and the person is mature in years is far less than in different circumstances.

The vitamin C foods are fruits and vegetables and their juices and fresh foods generally.

Lime foods are of service. Of these, the best are milk, cheese, and other milk products; salads, greens, and nuts.

CONSTANT HEADACHE.

A. D. writes: A man of 60 has constant headaches and pains over the eyes. His blood pressure is 200. Is the condition hopelessly serious? What about diet, labor, &c?

REPLY.

Probably the headache is due to arteriosclerosis, the cause of the high blood pressure. By partial fasting and other dieting, the use of laxatives and other medicines, his physician can reduce the blood pressure temporarily and ease the headache. But the probability is that his pressure will rise again and the headache will return. In cases of a certain type the results of treatment are longer continued.

Nothing is more harmful to the man than fear that his case is hopeless. Emotions head the list of harmful agencies in high blood-pressure.

SNEEZING.

J. T. S. writes:

1. What causes one to sneeze?
2. Does one sneeze when taking fresh cold, or is the cold being thrown off?

REPLY.

1. Sneezing is a reflex act the basic purpose of which is to remove from the nose lining substances that irritate it. The more immediate causes are many. Among them are breathing irritating substances such as pollens, bacteria, dust, chemicals; congestion of the membranes of the nose; in some, the urge to evacuate the bowels, when a certain area in the ear canal is pressed, as a result of exposure to light or cold.

2. The sneezing that is a symptom of taking cold is usually a result of congestion of the membranes. The symptom appears as the cold develops and follows the infection and the exposure by several hours, or even a day, as a rule.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

SHOCKING THE NEIGHBORS.

ARE you engaged in trying to shock the neighbors? Read what Doris has to tell about that doubtful pastime and profit. Doris could be one of a thousand little girls who read this page. May her experience save them the trouble of learning how little the neighbors really care about such pranks and wild doings—and how such things can really hurt only the girl herself:

Dear Frances McDonald: Every night for a year I have been going to write to you. No, I do not need any of your advice. Not now I don't. But about three years ago where were you—while I was making a fool of myself? I went to State College and came back home with a contempt for everybody but myself. The neighbors who had never done anything to me became targets. All I thought about was shocking them. Why, I do not know. Mother and dad were aghast. That was just pie to me. If I went out with a fellow I would make him stay out till 2 o'clock, just so the neighbors would say what a terrible girl I was. I never heard that they ever did. But I hoped so. I admit it now. Well, after about a year I met a new man and fell in love. He would always dance with me, but never dated me. Then I heard why and decided the neighbors did not matter. He considered me all right to meet, but not "nice" enough to go out with.

Well, after a few nights of crying myself to sleep I decided to get my man. I began going to church with my folks and otherwise acting rational. They were so happy it would have been worth the effort even if it had not worked out any further. But it did. I found the neighbors I had been trying to shock had either not even noticed or else had decided I was only a fool kid. Anyway, they had me helping with church suppers and doing all the other things I had ridiculed. And soon I was seeing my one-and-only every Sunday. We got married last March and I often wanted to tell you about it so you could tell some other sap who would come home and try to show the home town what a wild woman was. I never really did more than wave a flask out a car window on Main street—even an empty flask would do. In fact, we seldom had any other kind. But the more sedate girls would roll their eyes as we roared down the street and out the State road. And, of course, they told the new man what an evil influence I was. I necked, too, hoping the boys would be the kiss-and-tell kind. I think they failed me as a rule. Or if they did tell they must have told the wrong people. Anyway, as a wild woman I was a flop. To the one man I was just all right to dance with, but not worth taking seriously, or inviting out. That is terrible—when you think yourself dangerous.

Well, it all ended O. K., and I still bake three pies for every church supper. But suppose the one-and-only had not been the sort to keep an open mind? What then? I have often asked him about his first impressions. He said, "Oh, I had no quarrel with how anybody else spent their time, only I could never get excited over anyone who spent theirs being silly." Oh, boy. That for a woman who thought she was wild. And that's the end of the story. DORIS.

Culbertson on Contract

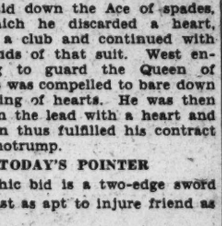
PSYCHIC FLIGHTS PLUS PSYCHIC INSIGHT.

THERE is no doubt that psychic and semipsychic bids add greatly to the interest of Contract bidding for many players. These bids, of course, are entirely sound ethically, provided the element of surprise is as great so far as the partner is concerned as they are for the opponent.

Mr. Charles H. Goren, a very fine Philadelphia player, was playing recently in a Duplicate game with Mr. Leonard S. Ames, of New York, who has a flair for unusual bidding. The game was an important championship Duplicate match and the players had decided to "shoot the works," because their score required it. They were using the Approach-Forcing System with the One over One convention when along came the following hand, which with the bidding as made was:

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1◇	Pass
1NT	Pass	2♡	2♠
3♡	Pass	3NT.	Pass
4♡	Pass	4NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

"My partner had been engaging in considerable bidding pyrotechnics, but I awoke too late to the nature of his heart bid," Mr. Goren explained the four notrump contract.

West opened with the six of spades and East's eight spot forced the Queen. Mr. Goren saw that the Dummy lacked sufficient entries to try a double finesse in clubs, so he immediately conceded a trick in that suit by leading a low club toward the Dummy. West won with the nine and led another spade, which East won with the Knave. East then led the duce of hearts and here Mr. Goren decided to play the hand upon the theory that East had held five spades, four hearts, two diamonds and two clubs and that the King of hearts was in the West hand. Both from the lead and from East's disinclination to enter the bidding in the early rounds, even though not vulnerable, he reasoned that a squeeze must therefore develop on the West hand and acting upon that theory, he won the trick with the Ace of hearts, laid down the Ace of spades, upon which he discarded a heart, then led a club and continued with four rounds of that suit. West endeavoring to guard the Queen of diamonds was compelled to bare down to the King of hearts. He was then thrown in the lead with a heart and Mr. Goren thus fulfilled his contract of four notrump.

A psychic bid is a two-edge sword and is just as apt to injure friend as enemy.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a two-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What Today Means to You

"PISCES."

IF February 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to noon, from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 7:40 a. m. to 8:50 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Astrological influences on February 23 will instill energy and enthusiasm, and an interesting and fruitful day is augured. Those who earn their bread by pen or tongue will be inspired to say something of which they may be proud. Those looking for romance will be sure to find it.

Children born on this February 23 will have thoughtful, industrious natures, and will be hard-headed and sane thinkers. They will go through life with a rather cold and calculating spirit, always remembering "number one." They will be able to be both courteous and affable, or at other times blunt and boorish.

Born February 23, you are a very independent minded person, and you always prefer to think things out for yourself. You may listen patiently to advice, but it usually follows that you carry out your own original intention. You do things spontaneously, and love doing things impromptu and unexpectedly. You crave wisdom, and worship things of the intellect. You are no straddler, and fearlessly stick up for your convictions. You are always able to win many adherents to your ideas, as you can express yourself clearly and forcefully and are so very honest and sincere.

You should always work under conditions that allow you freedom to do things in your own way and time. Your teaching ability is very pronounced, and you are always able to get along well with subordinates. You have considerable patience, and you do not talk above the heads of your audience.

You are very logically-minded, and are very seldom inconsistent. You are capable of putting your finger on the weak point in any argument, leaving the other party with no "come back." You do not like superficial or "baby-minded" people, but you do like doers and thinkers. You have a real sense of humor and are quick on the "pick up" in a conversation. You are sociably inclined in an informal way and very readily make new friends.

Successful people born February 23:
Mrs. Emma Willard, founded Willard School, Troy, N. Y.
Henry J. Newton, chemist.
Arthur Astor Carey, social worker.
Samuel Pepys, famous diarist.
Ernest Percy Bicknell, deputy commander, American Red Cross.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me what is the trouble with my ivy, from which I am inclosing a leaf; also suggest a remedy. I wash the leaves, as you suggested, once a week with cold water. The plant is in a southern window, though I only allow it to have direct sun a few hours per day. I can find no trace of insects. The room in which I keep the plant has a temperature of 65 degrees at all times. E. B. M.

If a southern window is the only one you have, keep the plant a few feet away from the glass so it has plenty of light, but little direct sun. It is the sun, combined with a lack of fresh air, that causes an occasional leaf to turn yellow.

Please tell me how to increase the number of blooms on my cactus. At present it has only three blooms and nine buds. MRS. H. L. L.

As you failed to mention the variety of cactus, I can not answer your question, except in a very general way. The age and variety of the plant govern the number of blooms it should normally have. Should your plant be a Christmas cactus it should bloom profusely and should have an application of liquid manure whenever it begins to set buds. While growing it should be watered daily and, when resting, have water only three times a week.

Mrs. H. H. DeW.—The leaf of the crested holly fern (cyrtomium rochfordianum compactum) which you inclosed was evidently taken from a healthy plant, as the back of the leaves were covered with spores or seed cases. It showed no trace of insects.

Last season I started a shady rock garden. This year I want to plant some ferns. What varieties would do well in such a location?

MRS. RUTH W. P.

Ebony spleenwort, common polypody, oakfern, berry bladderfern, brittle fern, woolly lipfern and common woodsia.

Please tell me what is tufa rock. I heard a lecturer on rock gardens speak of it and I am anxious to get some. MRS. HENRY D. T.

Tufa rock is of volcanic origin. It is exceedingly ornamental, both in form and texture, and is exceedingly porous, light and easy to arrange. Almost all seed houses list tufa rock.

Please give me a description of the flowers of the Lord Kitchener peony, also of the soshi variety.

LILA G. T.

Lord Kitchener (Kelway) is a single peony, a robust grower, bearing a purple crimson flower. The soshi (millet) is a Japanese variety, blooming rather late in the season and bearing a dark pink flower.

Last season my hollyhocks were ruined by rust. Could I do anything to prevent a return of this fungus?

EMILY L.

To guard against rust or fungus spray the plants in the early spring with Bordeaux mixture.

Do Japanese irises do well in any good garden soil? WILLIAM G. E.

Yes; they succeed in almost any soil and like plenty of water when forming their flower buds.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

DARLING VOGUE

You'll be just thrilled when I let you in on the secret of how easily these youthful pajamas are made.

The trousers join the long-waisted bodice. A tie sash slipped through bound openings, accents the waistline. The neck is given such a pretty effect through the softly falling collar.

If you copy them as the original in a pale blue printed crepe de chine, you can wear them for bedtime or lounging.

Style No. 816 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36 and 38-inch bust. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with 4¼ yards of binding.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Address Fashion Dept., The Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-third street, New York City.

Jews Plan Washington Forest for Palestine

New York, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—The Jewish National Fund of America started formally today its campaign to raise money to plant a forest of half a million pine and eucalyptus trees in Palestine, in memory of George Washington.

It is planned to locate the forest in the Emek Hills, near the plain of Esdraelon. Other forests already planted near there are in honor of Lord Balfour, of England, and Masaryk, of Czecho-Slovakia. A telegram from President Hoover, expressing interest in the project, and other messages of approval, were read at the meeting.

A dress for the Larger Woman which combines two of the Spring's smartest fashions . . . navy blue and polka dots. The slenderizing surplice line is suggested in the scarf collar . . . and extra fullness is achieved in the low-placed pleats. $25 for a Larger Woman, Fifth Floor.

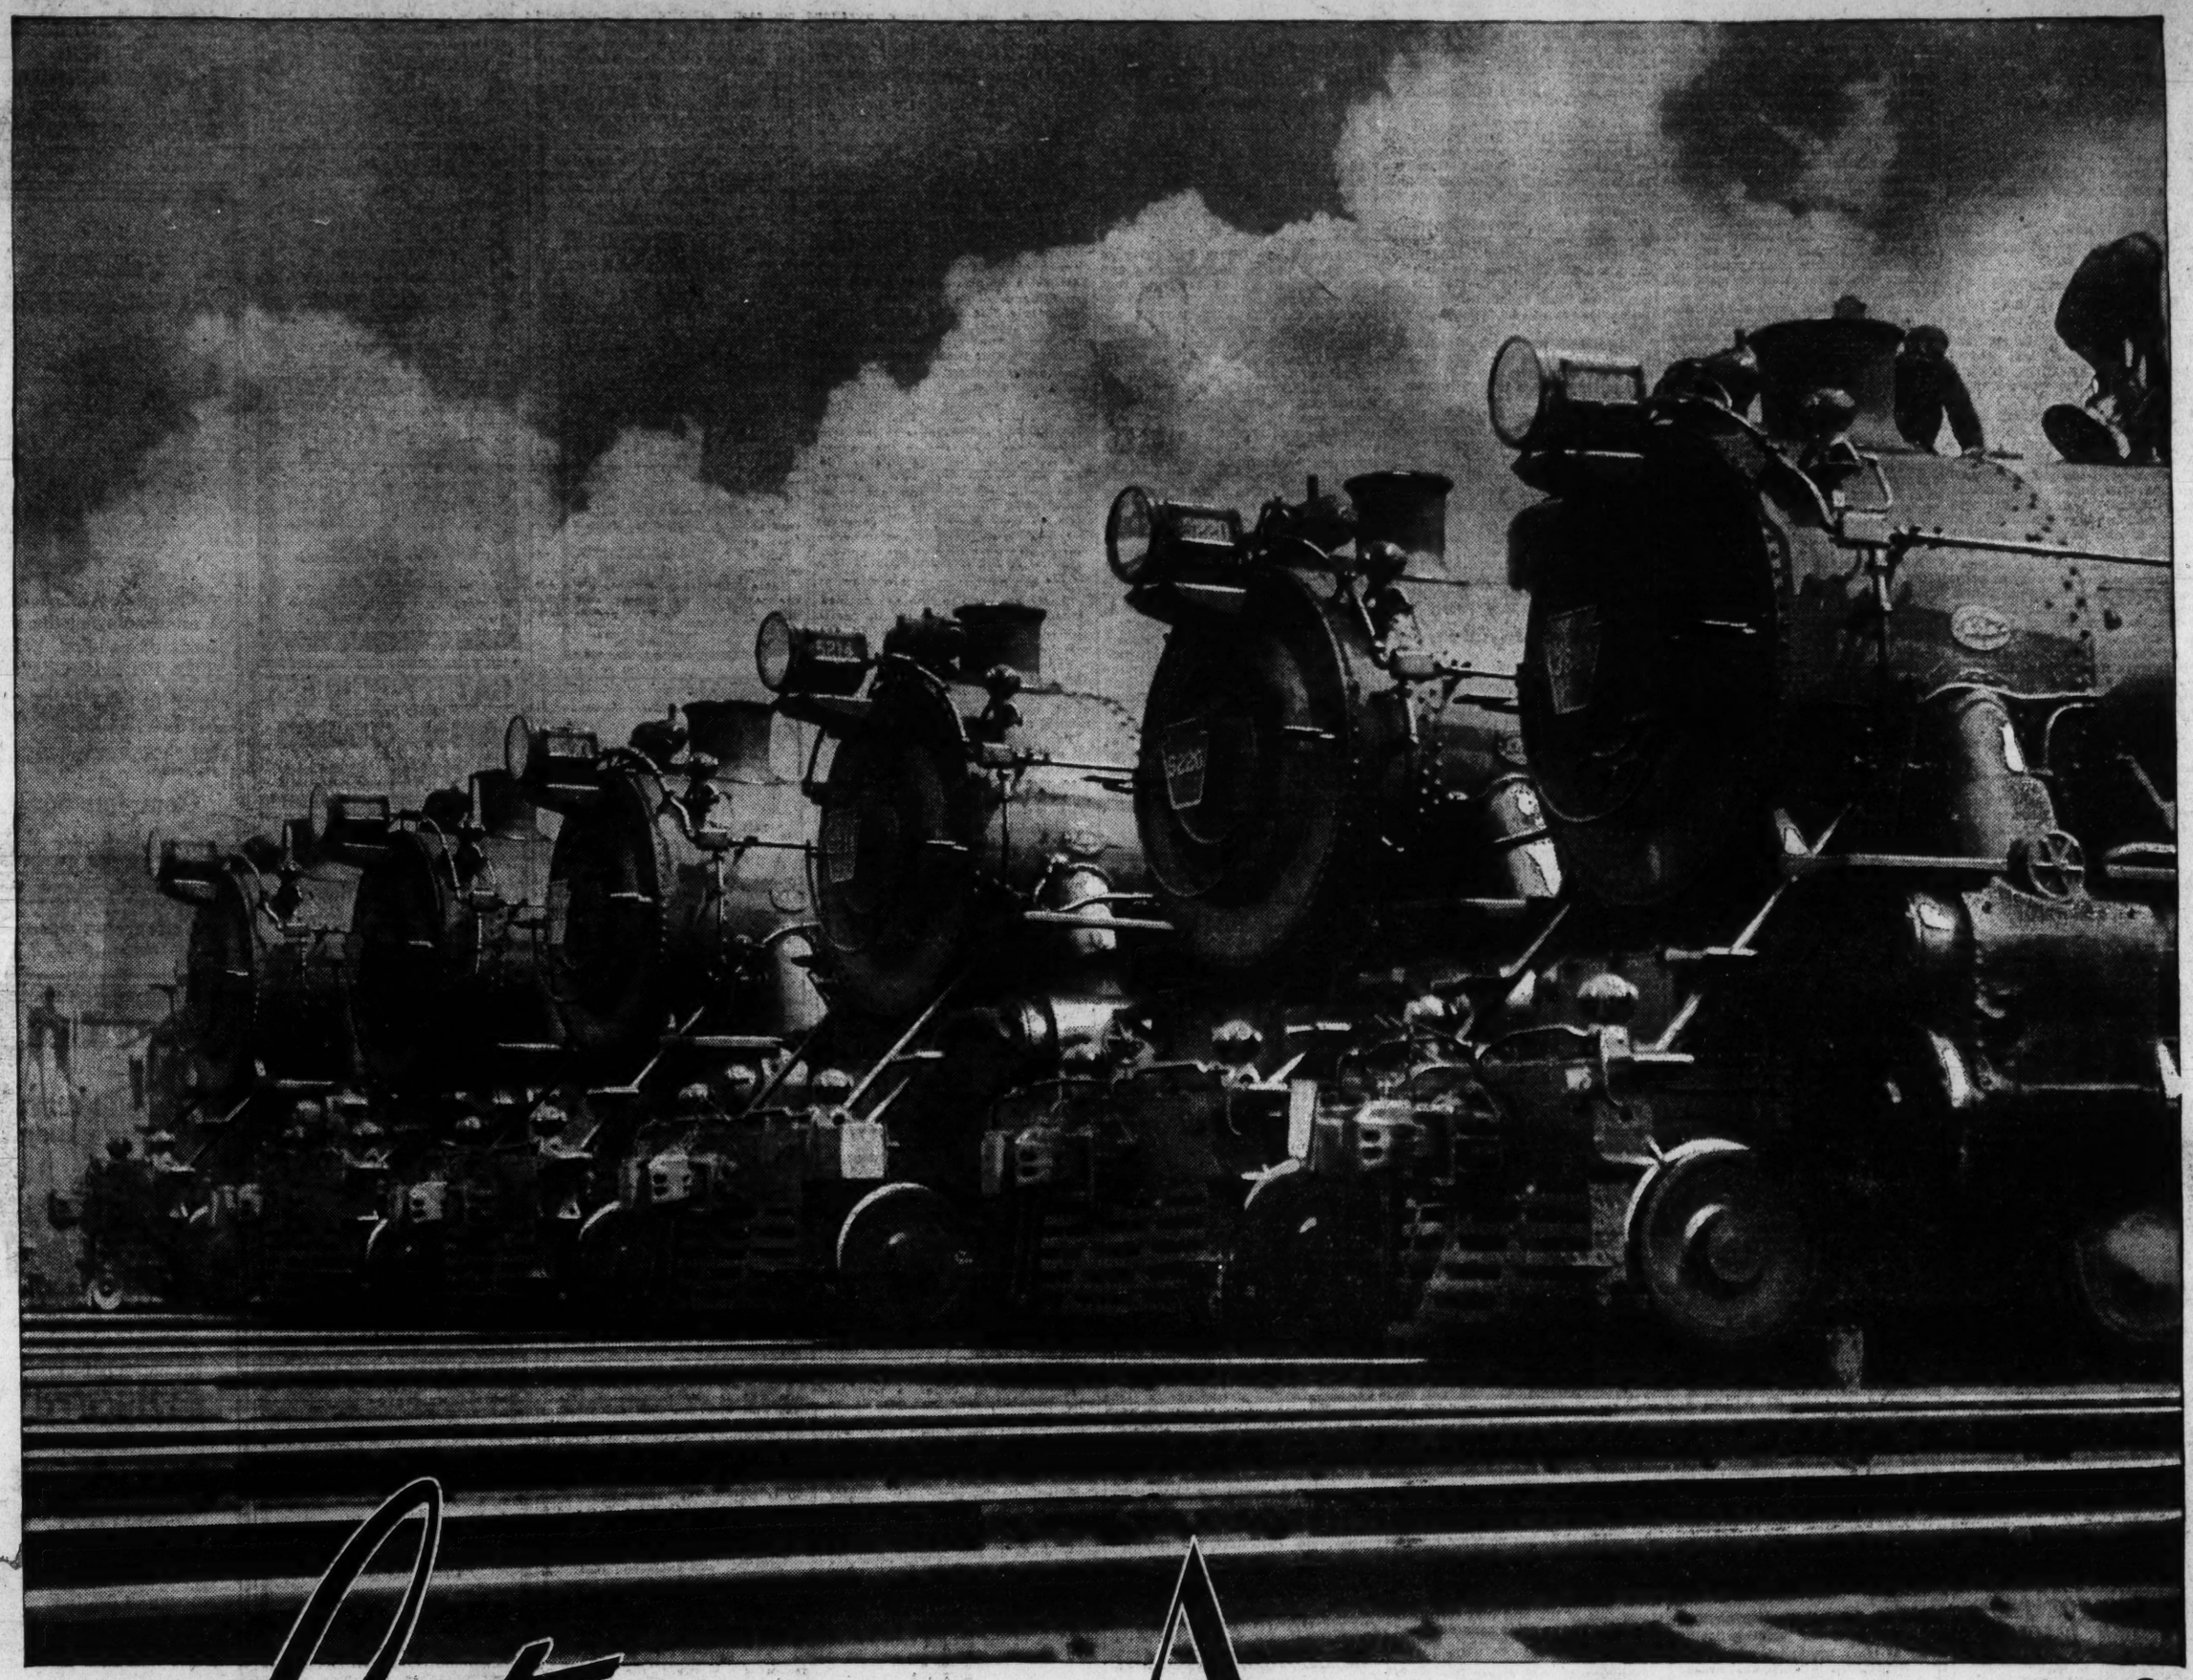
Women Are Buying Wisely, But Insisting on 'Quality'

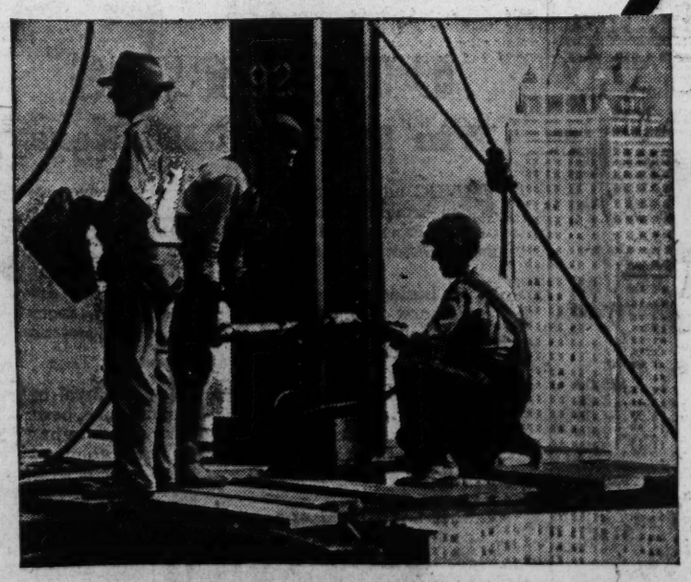
One feminine reaction to "hard times" is so interesting—so significant—as to be an object lesson for all the world. Woman — purchasing agent for the home—has turned, during the period of economic stress, not to bargains at spectacular low prices, but to well-known brands of merchandise at standard prices. She wants to be sure of what she is getting. She is buying wisely the product of proven merit, for even though she may be offered reputedly just-as-good substitutes at great price cuts, she isn't taking any chances!

Getting the most for her money is her aim—and that doesn't mean quantity at little cost, but quality at whatever quality must cost! This is especially true so far as cosmetics and face creams are concerned. With only one face—she must be very careful that what she puts on it is pure, fine, perfect. So she wisely turns a cold shoulder to the attempts of some retailers to substitute for the nationally known product she requests, a little known product which she knows nothing about except that it's "cheap," on which he makes a great profit. She is keen enough to appreciate that he has an ulterior motive. He uses the well-known product as "bait" to draw her inside his store—and then attempts the old substitution game.

All honor to the newly wise woman buyer! She argues logically that the product she sees advertised, with all its claims, as well as its price set forth for all the world to read, is backed by the priceless reputation and integrity of its maker. It must be good. It will do just what is claimed for it. And that's the product she wants—the full money's worth she demands in these days of smart spending!



Let's go... America!



Money at work means men at work. It builds factories . . . runs railroads . . . buys materials . . . hires men. That's why America must get its Idle Dollars back on the job. That's why we must keep our money in circulation. Put your money where it will produce interest for you and employment for others.

Put those Idle Dollars back to work and start things rolling

Come on, America . . . Let's go!

We're the richest country in the world. We have the men. We have the machines. We know how to work.

And we have the money . . . somewhere.

That's the problem. We have the money . . . but a lot of it is not working.

Withdrawn from circulation . . . lying idle instead of working . . . are a billion and a half dollars. Enough to put every unemployed man back to work. And enough to start every wheel turning again.

Money is the life-blood of business. It buys raw materials. It builds factories. It runs machines. And pays salaries.

It's a vicious circle. Every dollar withdrawn from circulation reacts through the retailer, the wholesaler and the factory right to the ultimate consumer who is thrown out of a job.

Every dollar you put to work . . . releases 5 to 10 more in credit.

Active money earns interest for you . . . and produces employment for others.

Keep your money safe, of course. Nobody wants you to act unwisely. But release it in a conservative way . . . and let everybody benefit.

If there's any question in your mind . . . talk to the ablest business men you know. Then get their advice and counsel.

Let's go . . . America! Let's get our dollars back to work and start things rolling.

BUTLER DENOUNCES ATTACKS ON HOOVER

North Carolinian Warns of Extreme Partisanship in Lauding President.

The "partisan notice served on the administration of President Hoover by Democratic leaders in Congress" was drawn as a parallel to the activities of Tories against Washington by former Senator Marion Butler, of North Carolina, yesterday.

Mr. Butler, who claims to be the first man in North Carolina to point out the qualifications of President Hoover for the White House, and urged his nomination, said Hoover carried the State by 68,000. He predicted the same thing would happen in 1932.

In referring to the recent statement of Speaker John M. Garner regarding possible abrogation of the "political truce," Mr. Butler said that "no one can read the glorious record of George Washington, crowned by that wonderful "Farewell Message" without realizing that if he were with us again in the flesh he would be toiling day and night with patient wisdom and dogged courage, to break the strangle hold of the foreign octopus and its Tory agents in our midst.

"George Washington especially counseled and warned us that our foreign enemies could never destroy the remarkable Government he had set up, except through these American Tory agents, who would use the insidious weapon of extreme partisanship to divide and confuse our people.

"Fortunately today we have a Chief Magistrate in the White House who has taken for his guide the noble and hallowed example of Washington. Like Washington he has called to his assistance the leaders of the extreme of partisanship. No one can question his wisdom and utmost good faith.

"The great relief and reconstruction measures which he has asked Congress to enact, are so obviously wise and effective that they have until today commanded the support of both political parties."

The appointment of Judge Cardozo to the Supreme Court bench, Mr. Butler said, is proof of the President's nonpartisanship.

For this act, the President has deservedly received the commendation of the rank and file of both parties, and it should have saved him and the country from this crude and untimely partisan attack," Mr. Butler declared.

(Associated Press.)

The charge of Speaker Garner that the administration was not cooperating with the Democratic House was said yesterday by Representative Snell, the Republican leader, to have been based, apparently, on a few Lincoln Day speeches by Cabinet members who praised President Hoover.

"I am surprised that an astute politician like Speaker Garner should be peeved over a few Lincoln Day speeches," the New York Republican said.

On the same day that the Republican speakers praised Mr. Hoover, Mr. Snell said, Democratic spokesmen charged the Republicans "with all the evils they could think of or imagine, and we were silent about their attacks."

"I have not decided, after reading Speaker Garner's statement whether it came from Speaker Garner or as from Garner, candidate for President.

"The Democrats have cooperated with the Republicans in passing the economic legislation for the benefit of the entire country and anytime they have any similar legislation they will receive the cooperation of the House Republicans."

KIDNAPING NOT TRUE, BLAGDEN DISCLOSES

ransom demand in his letter to Capt. Broadfield. The letter follows:

"Dear Captain: I have at last gotten myself straightened out. I wish to state that I was never kidnaped. I had been worrying about the times, my problems and the future. The load seemed so heavy that I could not bear it. There just seemed to be no way out until alone in the cottage at Lake Placid this kidnaping scheme suddenly came to me. I immediately acted upon it. The farther I got into it the more difficult it seemed to turn back.

"In Cleveland, after discovering the publicity and its effect upon others, I finally grasped the whole situation and used the story of my escape as the best way out.

"It has taken me till now to make this statement which I should have made in Cleveland."

Whereabouts Not Known.

When Glagden was found at the home of Claude Peck, a Cleveland friend, he told of having escaped from three men who had brought him that far in a truck, after overpowering him at the Harriman cottage.

Capt. Broadfield said tonight he did not know where Blagden was at present, but would not seek to question him further. He added that State police did not see any cause for further action.

Today's letter was written at Arden Homestead, home of W. R. Hunter, a New York broker. A butler told the Associated Press Blagden stopped there Saturday, leaving later to go "south." The camp operator was reported to have left the Peck home in Cleveland Thursday night.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

WITH the Bicentennial celebration of the birth of George Washington focusing attention upon the National Capital, and with such stage productions as "Of Thee I Sing" and "Face the Music" gently satirizing the intricate processes of our National Government, established on Broadway as substantial hits, Columbia Pictures Corporation announces that in keeping with the trend of the times it has purchased the sensational best seller, "Washington Merry-Go-Round" for early film presentation.

I am reminded by that high-strung Southern Beau Brummell, Mr. Sam Galanty, who presides locally over the affairs of Columbia, that his company is the first to perceive the possibilities of such-like entertainment upon the silver sheet.

It is the present plan of Columbia to have the adapter of the book fashion his screen play in collaboration with recognized authorities on Washington life resident in the Capital, thus insuring a high degree of authenticity, a strong element of human interest and the utilization of appropriate and authoritative backgrounds.

As a book, "Washington Merry-Go-Round" stepped immediately into the best-seller class and has remained there virtually ever since its first edition came off the press. The anonymity of its authorship has not in the least militated against the effectiveness of its barbed wit and salty satire.

A long-distance telephone message from Boston yesterday morning confirmed the tentative arrangement whereby Katharine Cornell, among the foremost of English-speaking actresses, will appear in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," at the Belasco Theater in this city, for one week only, beginning Monday, March 7.

So great was the demand to see this celebrated actress in Rudolf Besier's famous romance of Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett, in Boston, that the Shubert Theater was sold out for the first two weeks before the play opened, and the engagement, perforce, was extended to four weeks. From Boston the play moves to Philadelphia, and it is only owing to yesterday's last-minute decision that Washington is to be included in the short and select list of cities that will be privileged to see Miss Cornell in the role that has afforded her her greatest triumph this spring.

Guthrie McClintic, whose "Brief Moment" and "Distant Drums" have already been viewed by Washington audiences, staged the Besier drama, as he has directed all the plays in which Miss Cornell has starred. Jo Mielziner designed the settings and costumes.

The cast includes Brian Aherne as Robert Browning, Margalo Gillmore, as Henrietta, and Charles Waldron, as the father.

Maybe that is the way I wrote it, but somehow what I meant to be "and wages systematically slashed all along the line" came out in yesterday's column as "sympathetically clashed," and didn't seem quite to make sense.

But then, a lot of this stuff never does!

The scarcity of new plays with sufficient body to justify production on Broadway is forcing theatrical managers to dig down in their trunks for previously staged scripts that will stand revival.

According to current report, at least three repertory troupes are being recruited to present famous old dramas again on Broadway, an additional feature being that admission prices for these rehabilitated hits of an earlier era will be reduced to a $1 top.

Carl Reed and Arthur Wichfield already have one of these resuscitated melos in rehearsal. It is "The Round Up," which once ran for two years in New York.

Other ancient favorites which the Reed-Wichfield company will play again include "The Virginian," "The Heart of Maryland," "In Old Kentucky," "Under Two Flags," "The Girl of the Golden West," "The Littlest Rebel," "The Spoilers," "Shore Acres," "Kismet," "The Christian," "On Parole," "Secrets," "The County Chairman," and "Arizona."

Shades of the Farnums, Mrs. Leslie Carter, Blanche Bates, James A. Herne, Otis Skinner, Viola Allen, Macklyn Arbuckle and Robert Edeson!

And who, I wonder, will play their parts?

Yesterday's holiday, with an estimated 75,000 out-of-town visitors in the Capital for the opening of the Bicentennial celebration, plus the usual local outpouring of vacationing Washingtonians taking advantage of an elongated week-end, served to bolster the weekly box office statements of the downtown theaters no little.

As is habitually the case on such days, maximum business did not assert itself until midafternoon, but, with night prices prevailing all day, that was enough, thank you.

More than one of the amusement places most favored had to stop selling tickets to prevent oppressive lobby congestion.

And it may be of interest, too, that Ethel Barrymore played her Saturday matinee in Richard Brinsley Sheridan's "The School for Scandal," to standing room patronage at the Belasco—a tribute to the excellence of the performance of the star and her supporting cast that came later in the week than was deserved.

Anyhow, today doesn't seem like Monday, the way it does to you!

THE THEATER LAST NIGHT

By NELSON B. BELL

"THE SOCIAL REGISTER." A comedy in three acts and five scenes, by John Emerson and Anita Loos, starring Lenore Ulric, with Sidney Blackmer leading the support. Play staged by the authors; settings by Oden-Waller, after suggestions by Natalie Hammond.

THE CAST

Gloria Hall.....Betty Garde
Mr. Jones.....Wilfred Clarke
Lulu.....Elizabeth Taylor
Patsy Shaw.....Lenore Ulric
An Electrician.....William Boag
Kay Wilson.....Helen Tucker
Ruth Prescott.....Elizabeth Johnson
Lester Trout.....Cesar Romero
Claude.....Donald Stewart
Charlie Breene.....Sidney Blackmer
Chris.....Hans Hansen
Mr. Breene.....Oswold Yorke
Mrs. Breene.....Teresa Maxwell-Conover
Mr. Wiggins.....George Henry Trader
Muriel Devenant.....Hilda Heywood Howe
Mrs. Sherrard.....Madeleine Gray
Mrs. Vandervent.....Jane Farrell
A Debutante.....Vera Krug
Duc de Renan.....Marcel Journet, jr.

Perhaps this frivolous comedy's greatest virtue is that it consumes considerably less than two hours of playing time, entr'acte intermissions included.

Sketchily written, wasting no time on characterization and galloping along at such breakneck speed that time is not even taken to make some of the longest of the speeches easily intelligible, this breezy but excessively brittle collaboration on the part of the authors of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" is no more than remotely commensurate with the proved capabilities of the star of "Kiki," "Lulu Belle," "Mima" and "Pagan Lady." It is, however, at times extremely amusing in a blunt and blistering sort of way—as all farces are apt to be that seek to mix chorus girls and a haut monde suffering delusions of grandeur.

The argument in this instance is all in favor of the decorative coryphee with a heart of gold from the last row of Mr. Carroll's "Vanities." Persecuted beyond endurance by the family of the rich young man who will not take "no" for an answer, she is still able, as the final curtain falls, to look back upon a comparatively blameless life and forward to years of happiness as wife of the ardent lover who has just been disinherited by an irate mother, obsessed with every false notion of social eminence known to the decalogue.

Despite the long experience of John Emerson and Anita Loos in such things, the dialogue is not too cleverly written. Much of it is blatantly and explosive laughable, to be sure, but much of it, also, is difficult for the players to make flow trippingly from the tongue and to the degree that it can not be naturally rendered lack conviction. Miss Ulric finds it necessary, for example, to break many of her speeches in order to catch her breath, and she is racing through the lines most of the time, at that.

But if one will attend "The Social Register" with an eye single to its ludicrous situations and none at all for its melodrama, and an ear for its sheer ribaldry, but none for its pathos, there is much merriment of a sort to be found in the three acts. As a farcical carnival of wisecracks and frank speech it is an unequivocal success.

Neither the star nor Sidney Blackmer, her leading man, is confronted with any demand whatever upon the interpretative talents both are known to possess. Miss Ulric, to be sure, has a peculiar natural penchant for breathing something of reality into these hoydenish characters of the seamy side of life and that fortunate endowment is by no means obscured here. It is the play's single saving grace.

Perhaps not that either, for Betty Garde, Helen Tucker and Elizabeth Johnson comprise a trio of show ladies who know their way around and Teresa Maxwell-Conover contributes a frigid and admirably distasteful impersonation of the caste-conscious mother with an incomparable capacity for hurling monkey wrenches into the delicate machinery of romance. Hans Hansen, too, is among the histrionically sound, with a fine performance of the role of Chris, the serving man, who was cheated out of his evening with Toscanini and the Philharmonic by Mrs. Breene and her Twickenham Singers!

The piece is effectively staged and boasts the intermittent services of a jazz band that may be relied upon to have none too salutary an effect upon the nerves!

G. O. P. Wet Session Is Set for March 4

Repeal Plank to Be Aim of Two Business Meetings in Chicago.

Philadelphia, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Raymond Pitcairn, chairman of the Republican Citizens Committee Against National Prohibition, announced today that a call has been sent out for a meeting of the committee in Chicago on March 4. The purpose of the meeting is "to consider ways and means to place a prohibition repeal plank in the platform of the Republican party."

Two business sessions, a luncheon and a dinner will be held. Men of national prominence, it was announced, will speak at the dinner. Also on the conference program are resolutions demanding a repeal plank in the Republican party platform. Appointment of permanent officers for the committee and appointment of a ways and means committee.

Mr. Pitcairn also made public a letter to Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national committee, inviting him to attend the meeting.

N. W. Baxter Retained For Ritchie Campaign

Baltimore, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—The retention of Norman W. Baxter, Washington newspaperman, as director of publicity in the campaign of Gov. Ritchie for the Democratic presidential nomination, was announced here tonight by friends of the executive.

Baxter will maintain offices in Baltimore and Washington and will begin at once the preparation of Ritchie literature for distribution throughout the country. Mr. Baxter is a native of Tennessee and has been engaged in newspaper work for 22 years. He worked on various papers from 1910 to 1917, when he located in Washington.

GAYETY

Ann Corio is back!

Having fully recovered from the recent illness that made the canceling of an earlier booking necessary, the most beautiful girl in burlesque is again stopping the shows at the Gayety. As pretty as ever, Miss Corio quickly captures her audience with her manifold allurements. Arrayed in stunning gowns, wisely chosen to display her marvelous beauty to the best advantage, she is greeted with prolonged applause at every appearance.

Little Joe Derita and Harry Meyers are the funsters of this show. They, with Paul Martin and Al Baker, who feed the lines as straight men, present scene after scene, each funnier than the ones before. Their best are "A Study in Wax" and "The Woman Catcher." Al receives a good hand for his vocal number, "River Stay 'Way from My Door."

Lillian and Walter Wayne team well in several songs and a novelty dance "On the Stairs." Lillian's "Winnie, the Waller" made a big hit.

Specialties by Fritzie White were well received and that red-haired beauty, Charby Bonneau, has a way of presenting her numbers so that more is always desired. A charmer from the chorus, Floyd Bazil, handled a musical specialty with the aid of her cochorines in approved style.

RITCHIE CONFIDENT DEMOCRATS TO WIN

Charges G. O. P. Is to Blame for Slump and Foes Will Get Power Next.

Detroit, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland told a mass meeting of Democrats here tonight that "the Democratic hosts are on the march" and that "their goal is victory, and they can not, they will not be denied."

Accusing the Republican party of a lack of vision, understanding and alert leadership, and asserting that its economic policies "largely contributed to the overwhelming catastrophe suffered by the business men and farmers of America," Maryland's candidate for the Democratic nomination for President promised that "next November the Democratic party will receive a sovereign mandate from the sovereign people to give the country what it wants."

"All over the United States the people are turning to the Democratic party as their authentic voice," Gov. Ritchie said. "Our party is the party of the future."

Ritchie's Charges.

Gov. Ritchie said that President Hoover and his supporters in the campaign of 1928 failed to repudiate "the conditions brought about by the members of their party who had been false to their oaths of office."

"Instead," he said, "they became beneficiaries to the cash contributions to the treasury of the Republican party made by those who had been conspiring with public officials to loot the public assets.

"They believed, and unfortunately they were correct in the belief, that it was not necessary for them to repudiate the contributions and decline the contributions, because they had an issue that was not personal, and that issue was prosperity.

Absolves Democrats.

"Guilt was personal, but prosperity was not. The credit for prosperity, they said, belonged to the Republican party. Democrats had nothing to do with it.

"What honest alibi can the Republicans advance now to escape the responsibility for the dreadful situation that confronts the American people?" Gov. Ritchie demanded. "The widespread despair and distress, the ruin and chaos on American farms and in American business? Seven million unemployed men and women await an answer."

Smallpox Menaces U. S. Fleet's Force

Marine Private Stricken in Islands; Bicentennial Program Abandoned.

Hilo, Hawaii, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Precautions have been taken to prevent spread of smallpox in the United States fleet following discovery of a mild case on the battleship Arizona, at anchor off Lahaina, Maui Island. Private William W. Smith, of the Marine Corps, taken ill Friday, had been transferred to the hospital ship Relief, and no other cases have appeared.

A great storm which has lashed the Pacific for six days tossed a score of ships of the United States Navy anchored in the Lahaina roadstead, off Maui Island, and caused abandonment today of plans for celebration of the bicentennial of George Washington's birth.

With a 50-mile wind hurling torrential rain, personnel was confined to the ships. The sailing of the Cincinnati for Kahului, northeast Maui, was canceled. Streets of Kahului were flooded.

GARNER IS ENTERED IN GEORGIA PRIMARY

This has led him to refer to it as his adopted State.

Gov. Roosevelt's friends in Pennsylvania formed a State-wide campaign program at Harrisburg yesterday, working for an instructed delegation to the Chicago convention. They received a message from the governor urging a "united and militant democracy."

Out in Kansas, some of the Democratic leaders meeting for the State convention yesterday expressed themselves in favor of an uninstructed delegation and spoke of both Gov. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner as possibilities.

Meanwhile, the Republicans marked time. President Hoover has let the Illinois primary go by, refusing for a second time to enter into contest with Joseph I. France, of Maryland, who is the only candidate entered in that State. Mr. Hoover likewise stayed out of the North Dakota preferential primary.

Nevertheless, Hoover delegates are running in both North Dakota and Illinois. Senator Glenn (Republican), Illinois, predicted yesterday that a "big majority" of the Illinois delegates would be for the President.

The Blanton statement in the House of the Garner rally in Texas brought an assertion from Representative Schafer (Republican), Wisconsin, that "the same forces are at work in the Democratic party now that turned the Madison Square convention of 1924 into a madhouse."

Asked about the entry in Georgia by Judge Howard in his behalf, Mr. Garner said, "I know nothing about it, and I have nothing to say."

With Gov. Ritchie of Maryland stumping the Middle West and friends of Alfred E. Smith organizing in New England, particularly in Massachusetts, a free-for-all contest is in prospect.

Reports from New York that Mr. Smith would permit the use of his name in the Massachusetts primary brought the following statement from Senator Coolidge (Democrat), Massachusetts:

"That Massachusetts will continue to be loyal and elect delegates who will be favorable to Alfred E. Smith there can not be much doubt, since he has given his consent for his name to go on the ballot in the spring primary. His leadership did much for Democracy in the past two campaigns in Massachusetts, and I believe the enthusiasm which carried the party to victory in 1928 and 1930 in the Commonwealth will again assert itself."

INQUIRY COMMITTEE SEES AKRON CRASH

Lakehurst, N. J., Feb. 22 (A.P.).—A committee of members of Congress here to watch the Navy's great pride—Akron—glide gracefully into the skies to prove its airworthiness, saw it damaged in a gust of wind today and endangered a large crowd of spectators before it could even get poised for a take-off.

The members of Congress, headed by James V. McClintic (Democrat), Oklahoma, were planning to go aloft. They stood on the field shortly before 10 o'clock jesting among themselves as to what might happen to them if the dirigible were not, as charged, worthy of the air.

A restraining cable snapped. The rear end of the ship shot upward. Nearly two and a half tons of water ballast was spilled, but too late—a gust of wind squeezed the ship to the ground, wrecked its vertical fin and ripped its fabric.

Cables swung free and injured two of the ground crew. The tail of the big bag, before the wind gust pressed it down, swung toward the crowd of spectators. There were fearful cries, and the spectators made mad rushes for their automobiles.

Then the great ship, down and damaged, rolled listlessly to her port side, but quickly righted and lay quiet, except for the lifting of the broken tail in a gentle breeze.

Two hours later the ship, handled by enlisted men and civilians, was slid back into the hangar.

McClintic said the committee would not pass judgment until after a flight had been made. He believed the accident was unavoidable.

"It was a sad, but withal, a thrilling sight," he said, "to watch the great ship, helpless in the wind."

Lieut. Comdr. C. E. Rosendahl was deeply affected by the accident, and attributed it to the gust of wind. "It was unavoidable," said the skipper.

Admiral Is Sympathetic.

Rear Admiral Moffett, who arrived after the accident, expressed sympathy. The admiral said he would be present when naval experts attempt to determine the extent of the damage and find out whether the metal structure was damaged.

"The fin itself, 120 feet by 40 feet, may be replaced quickly by the builders, Rosendahl said.

The actual extent of the damage and the cost of repairs has not been estimated.

The injured men, struck by cables, were Lieut. C. C. Bolster, of the construction department, and F. L. Consior, an aviation machinists' mate. Lieut. Bolster was knocked to the ground and his right wrist fractured. Consior also was thrown to the ground.

Lieut. George W. Campbell was in the ship itself as it was being walked from the hangar. Commander Rosendahl was with the ground crew, directing their movements.

Rosendahl Leaps Into Action.

As the stern broke loose Commander Rosendahl leaped to the stairs leading to the forward control room, and sounded the signals to release the water ballast. Lieut. Campbell, at the same time, pulled the valve control which released 4,800 pounds of water.

This lessening of the weight at the stern made it rise slightly and reduced the force of the shock. The ship's tail, attached to the mechanical handling gear, came out of the hangar first. The nose was attached to the portable stub mast. About 100 members of the ground crew walked with the ship. Inside was a skeleton crew of about 20 men.

At one side of the field, held in check by marine guards, were several hundred holiday visitors, people from New York and Philadelphia, who had come down to see the big ship take off.

Several Hurt in Alabama Tornado.

Dothan, Ala., Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Cutting a path 5 miles long and approximately 400 yards wide, a tornado struck near Cowarts, Ala., 6 miles east of here, last night, destroying three homes and injuring several people.

UTILITIES
Win Praise of Bankers

PUBLIC utility securities should be given wide recognition because of the success of the utilities in resisting current business conditions, according to the Investment Bankers Association of America. The Association declares:

1 No business has more successfully withstood the violence of the economic storm or deserves more confidence than that of the well-managed electric light and power company.

2 "If confidence but grasps these facts, the level of many securities of light and power companies, both bonds and stocks, that are now so low as to bear but little relation to intrinsic worth, will not long remain so."

3 That not a bond of an electric light and power company has been dropped from the legal list of Massachusetts savings banks because of lack of earnings, and only one company has been removed for such reason in New York.

• Bonds of companies comprising the Associated Gas & Electric System offer sound investment opportunity at attractive yields.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Three world records were shattered, another equaled twice and two meet records broken tonight in a general outburst of brilliant performances in the national A. A. U. indoor track and field championships.

The orgy of record smashing by American athletic talent reached a new "high" for the indoor season.

It was capped by New York University's medley relay team, which whipped Pennsylvania and the New York Athletic Club, over the route of 1⅛ miles in 7 minutes 29 3-5 seconds. This displaced the former world indoor mark of 7 minutes 30 2-5 seconds, set in last year's championships by Pennsylvania.

In this rousing finale, Frank Nordell, of New York University, outran Carl Coan, of Pennsylvania, to win by 3 yards. Leo Lermond, the N. Y. A. C. anchor man, failed to make up a 40-yard deficit, despite running his mile in the remarkable time of 4 minutes 14 2-5 seconds.

McCluskey, Pecora Set Records.

Two world records were hung up previously when Joe McCluskey, of Fordham, romped to victory in the 2-mile steeplechase in 9 minutes 46 2-5 seconds, and Mike Pecora, of the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A., stepped the mile walk in 6 minutes 27 1-5 seconds.

McCluskey dislodged the record set by the Finnish star, Eino Purje, at 9:55 2-5 in 1929. Pecora, in the walk, broke the 20-year-old mark of 6:28 set by the famous George Goulding, of Canada, at Buffalo in 1911.

Emmett Toppino, gallery favorite, was crowned national indoor sprint king. The bundle of speed from Loyola University of New Orleans twice equaled the world indoor mark of 6 1-5 seconds in winning the 60-yard dash from the Negro star, Eddie Tolan, of Detroit.

Toppino was in command of the short dash at the halfway mark and easily stood off the closing challenge of Tolan as well as Al Kelly, of Georgetown. The defending champion, Ira Singer, of New York, was fourth and last. George Simpson, of the Los Angeles A. C., was eliminated in the semifinals.

For the first time in weeks, the sensational mile-runner, Gene Venzke, failed to furnish any record-busting fireworks. The Pottstown, Pa., boy, who lowered the world indoor mark five days ago to 4:10, won his first national championship at his favorite distance in 4:15, but he had a virtual walk-over. Only two runners in an original entry of ten opposed Venzke. They were Bill McKniff, of Pennsylvania, and Arthur Pendleton, of Greenwich, Conn., who finished in that order without extending Venzke.

Crowd Disappointed By Scratches.

The crowd of 10,000 booed lustily as the expected opposition to Venzke faded. Leo Ermond was among those scratched from the mile field and the New York A. C. star was jeered when he ran the anchor mile in the relay.

Meet records toppled when George Spitz, of New York University, high jumped 6 feet 7 inches, and Herman Brix, of the Los Angeles, in turning the tables on his New York rival, Leo Sexton, hurled the 16-pound shot 51 feet 4½ inches.

Percy Beard, lanky New York A. C. hurdler, and Fred Surdy, pole vaulter representing Los Angeles A. C., were the only athletes to defend their national titles successfully.

The team scores: New York Athletic Club, 27½ points; New York University, 14; Los Angeles A. C., 12; Illinois A. C., 10½; University of Pennsylvania, 8; Bowdoin, 6; Yale, 5½; Millrose A. A., Brooklyn Central Y, Loyola University (New Orleans), Notre Dame, Colgate, Fordham, Pittsburgh, 5 each; Newark A. C., 4; Meadowbrook Club, Boston A. A., Georgetown, Naval Academy, University of Oklahoma, 2 each; Ninety-second street Y. M. H. A., Detroit Police Department, 1 each.

1,000-YARD RUN, first heat—Won by Goerge Bullwinkle, N. Y. A. C.; second, Ward Hardman, U. S. Navy; third, Ray Conger, Illinois A. C. Time, 2:17.8.

600-YARD RUN, first heat—Won by Laszio Barsi, Hungary; second, Harold Lamb, New York University. Time, 1:15.4.

Second heat—Won by Edwin Roll, Newark A. C.; second, Eddie Blake, Boston A. A. Time, 1:14.

Grove, Walberg Holdouts, Mack Angrily Announces

Lefty Seeks $35,000 and Rube $15,000 for Season.

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 22 (U.P.).—Robert Moses Grove and George "Rube" Walberg, southpaw stars of the Philadelphia Athletics, joined the holdout ranks today when the American League champions held their first spring training workout.

Manager Connie Mack angrily acknowledged that the two hurlers had rejected terms offered them, and labeled them "smart fellows, but big fools for not signing." Grove is said to be demanding $35,000, and Walberg is reported asking $15,000.

Both pitchers, among the early arrivals on the training scene, maintained discreet silence this afternoon. They remained in town when the first detachment of players took the bus to Terry Field for practice.

Mack Threatens Ban on Pair.

Connie Mack, unusually frank in discussing the holdouts, asserted flatly that Grove and Walberg will sign at his terms or stay out of baseball. Neither man is for sale or trade, he said.

"We didn't cut them any," exclaimed Connie, "but neither are they going to get an increase. They've been offered all we can pay. And I don't expect to hold any conferences with them. I'll talk to them when they sign."

Between them, Grove and Walberg turned in 51 victories for the Athletics last year. Grove's mark of 31 established an American League record for left-hand pitching. The lanky Marylander is reputed to have received, under a bonus agreement, a

Weiner Aiming to Upset Brown's Ring Plans Tonight

Natie Faces Left Hook Artist in Nursery Feature; Kirkwood Meets Raymond; Four Other Bouts.

ONE of the most promising heavyweights in the country today, Natie Brown, will climb in the ring at Portner's Arena tonight to see what can be done about disposing of Herman Weiner, dangerous left-hook artist from Baltimore, in the windup of an attractive card to be staged for the benefit of the Alexandria Day Nursery.

Brown, as usual, will be on the short end of the weights. Herman is expected to scale 196, with Natie in at 187.

Much depends upon Natie's showing against Weiner. Two weeks ago he gave Tony Galento a stiff shellacking at Motor Square Garden, in Pittsburgh. On the strength of that battle he was matched with Vince Parelli, rising young South American heavyweight, whom he meets at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Natie Aware of Task.

Natie is well aware that he can not afford to dub this meeting tonight. However, there is every indication that this battle will be one of the hardest ever fought before a local gathering of boxing fans.

Herman is strictly a left-hook puncher with short shots to the body as weakening process. These are his two best weapons. Against Brown, who is always boring in, Herman is rated a nice chance of catching his adversary on the right spot and flooring him for keeps.

Walter Kirkwood and Joey Raymond, middleweights, are paired off in the semiwindup. Kirkwood established himself recently with a fine showing against Henry Irving.

Raymond, a brother of Phil and Lou, is a rugged, smart boxer who may give Walter more trouble than he expects.

The main preliming brings together Jesse Belt and Jack Quigley. Belt is a slugger and Quigley, a boxer. Both are willing mixers.

Perry and Tillman Clash.

Joey Schwartz and Lenny King open the show.

Ruth Steals Workout; Slams Ball Over Fence

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 22 (A.P.).

Nattily attired in golfing costume, he came around to watch the boys work and ended up by taking half a dozen swings at the ball. He sent one of Johnny Allen's deliveries out of the park. Herb Pennock, Charley Ruffing and Bill Dickey were the only absentees.

Sande Picks Tick On For Kentucky Derby

Sande, stopping here en route to Florida on his honeymoon, said the black colt owned by the Loma Stable of Mrs. L. G. Kaufman has the best chance in the turf classic.

He said he weighs 120 pounds, too heavy to ride in the derby, but he hoped to get down to 115.

Squash Racquets Title To Harvard U. Team

"Michigan Kid" Wins $25,000 Lipton Cup

New Smyrna, Fla., Feb. 22 (U.P.).—Michigan Kid, driven by B. W. Widegren, of Long Island, won the $25,000 Sir Thomas Lipton Trophy here in the feature race of the two-day Washington Birthday regatta here today.

Sir Malcolm Campbell, world's land speed champion, presented the trophy to Widegren, who was greeted by Gov. Doyle E. Carlton, of Florida, and other notables.

Crisler to Accept Position As Princeton Grid Coach

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—H. O. ("Fritz") Crisler, athletic director at the University of Minnesota, said today he probably would become head football coach at Princeton.

He awaited, he said tonight, arrival of a contract from President J. G. Hibben of the New Jersey institution before making a final decision. He said terms President Hibben offered by telephone were so flattering he could not well reject them.

He must take into consideration also proposals that he take charge of football at the Universities of Wisconsin and Iowa, Crisler said.

He said he was not seriously looking over either field, but had been asked to meet the Wisconsin athletic council at Madison before signing with another institution. He said late today he had no plans for such a conference.

Crisler's close friends expected he would go to Princeton, despite his statement in December that he had decided definitely to remain at Minnesota.

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 22 (A.P.).—If H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, athletic director of the University of Minnesota, is named head football coach at Princeton it will mark a departure from the time-honored Tiger policy of alumni coaching.

Thurston J. Davis, supervisor of university sports, on behalf of the special committee considering the football situation, issued the following statement today:

"Following the established policy formulated by the board of athletic control in anticipation of many ru-

Spencer and Marberry In Line

Burke Still Missing; Players in Light First Workout.

Special to The Washington Post.

BILOXI, Miss., Feb. 22.—President Clark Griffith, of the Washington Club, long noted as a famous debater, evidently was in his best form here today, for, after short conferences with Pitcher Fred Marberry and Catcher Roy Spencer, he announced that both have agreed on salary terms for 1932. As today is a legal holiday, the actual signing of the contracts will take place tomorrow.

Spencer was the first to enter the fold, he and the Nat owner being closeted for some time this afternoon. After a short rest period and the evening meal, the Nat owner took on Marberry and swung him into line. Both, it is understood, were given salary increases, but not as large as the ones they demanded, both sides doing a little compromising.

With this pair signed, only Bob Burke, who has declared himself as a holdout, is missing from the squad ordered to report for work here today. The southpaw wrote Griffith that he does not intend to report until offered a better salary. The Nat owner's comment after reading this letter was: "Well, it looks as though Burke will never report," indicating that he has made his best offer to Bob.

Myer, Manush, West Unsigned.

Buddy Myer, Heinie Manush and Sam West are still unsigned, but the Nat owner is not worrying about this trio at this time. "They don't have to get in line until reporting time, March 1," said Griffith, "and I'm sure we'll reach an agreement by that time."

Life is getting to be just one fat man after another to Mike Martin, the Washington Nationals veteran trainer.

Mike lost one burden when Bump Hadley (always a hard fellow for Mike to get down to fighting weight in the spring) was traded to the White Sox. But, when the squad trailed into Biloxi Stadium this morning for the first workout, Mike found another overweight boy had been dumped on his hands in the person of Howard Maple, recruit catcher.

Maple, a short, chunky individual with a neck like a rassler, and a physique like a Mack truck, admitted that he was at least 10 pounds overweight, but thought that it might be taken care of easily enough. But Mike, once he was revived, began taking measurements of the rookie and training camp is no longer a pleasant vacation for Maple.

Soggy Field Limits Workout.

The first workout this morning was rather brief, due to the soggy condition of the field, but there was the usual chorus of somber undertones emanating from complaining muscles. Carl Fischer discovered a few blisters on his feet but blames it on golf. The other players could develop nothing definite except a general desire to take things easy for the rest of the day.

The pitchers tossed balls around, started the usual pepper games and bravely attempted to do a few laps around the marathon track that skirts the outlying precincts of Biloxi Stadium.

Campbell May Attempt Trial, Beach Improves

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Sir Malcolm Campbell, here seeking to break his own world's automobile speed record of 245 miles an hour, tonight instructed his mechanics to be prepared to take his Bluebird racing car onto the beach for possible trials tomorrow.

The sandy 12-mile course, which has been rough and bumpy for more than a week, showed signs of improving late today.

Campbell said he did not believe the course would be good enough by tomorrow to break his record for the mile, but that he might be able to attain a speed high enough to break the world's record over 5 kilometers, 5 miles, and possibly 10 kilometers.

The present record for 5 kilometers is 216.045, set by Campbell at Vernauk Pan, South Africa, April 26, 1929. Campbell also holds the 5-mile record of 211.491, set at the same time. The 10-kilometer record is 152.9 miles an hour, established by M. Borzacchini at Cremona, Italy, September 28, 1929.

15 Colleges Enter Catholic U. Meet

Mile Relay Between Virginia, Navy, Princeton to Feature Saturday.

District field and track fans are anxiously awaiting for the days to pass until Saturday looms, when they will be given their first taste of college competition at the third annual Catholic University games, to be staged in the Brookland gym. Thirty-five events make up the program, these including half a dozen District A. A. U. championships and several for school and prep athletes. Hostilities start at 7:30, and there will be something doing until 11:30.

Fifteen colleges are sending entrants, with Navy leading the pack with 28 and with William and Mary putting 19 in competition. Among the other colleges which will be represented are Princeton, Virginia, Maryland, Lehigh, Lafayette, St John's of Annapolis, Villanova, and Akron U.

COLUMBUS U. RINGMEN SCORE

Four Knockouts Registered as S. Carolina Bows, 5-2.

IN a series of bouts that included four knockouts, Columbus University's boxing team outclassed the University of South Carolina's Gamecocks on the stage of the Strand Theater last night. The score was 5 bouts to 2. While 700 looked on, Dick O'Connell's Columbians stepped into an early lead that they never relinquished.

Capt. Eddie Marmel, making his first official collegiate appearance locally, stowed away Calhoun Lemon early in the second round, Referee Goldie Ahearn stopping the bout to save Lemon further punishment.

Tardugno Knocks Out Clarkson.

Mike Tardugno, clever 128-pounder, erased Haywood Clarkson via the technical knockout route in the opening heat, and Gus Mirman, light heavy, similarly slammed Henry Willard, South Carolina, into the discards after 1 minute and 30 seconds of mixing.

The outstanding upset of the evening was delivered in the 145-pound event, in which John Scott, South Carolina's rangy welter, punched out Leo Covaleski in the third round.

128 POUNDS—Mike Tardugno (Columbus) scored technical knockout over Haywood Clarkson (S. C.) in first round. Time, 1:30.

175 POUNDS—Gus Mirman (Columbus) scored technical knockout over Henry Willard (S. C.). Time, 1:30.

UNLIMITED—John De Vaughn (S. C.) defeated Raymond Burke (Columbus). Extra round.

G. W. Mermen Hosts To Virginia Tonight

The George Washington University Swimming Team is scheduled to meet the University of Virginia tonight at the Ambassador Hotel Pool. The public is invited to attend and there will be no admission charge.

The G. W. team scored its first victory in three starts against William and Mary College last Friday and now will attempt to even up their score, by making it 2 and 2. The Virginia team is strong this season and, so far, has not lost a 1932 meet.

The probable line-up for G. W. is:

FANCY DIVING—Gale Heslop, A. G. Love.

50-YARD DASH—Gale Heslop, Dick Garrett.

100-YARD DASH—Max Rote, Bob McMillen.

4 Referees Named For Feb. 29 Bouts

Miller, Short, Ahearn and Whipp to Officiate at Md. Coliseum.

The arbiters for next Monday night's card of bouts at Ritchie Coliseum were chosen last night: Heinie Miller, Charlie Short, Bill Whipp and Goldie Ahearn, each of whom will take one of the 8-round bouts on a program which is headed by a fist tangle between Antol Kocsis and Dick Welsh for the bantamweight championship of the South.

While Miller, Short and Ahearn are active pug separators in this region, Bill Whipp, coach of the Maryland boxing team, has not appeared as an official for three years. His application for referee is still before the Maryland Boxing Commission.

Tickets for the bouts are on sale at the Willard Hotel, Spalding's, Vic's and Goldie Ahearn's. Prices range from $1.50 to $2.50. Besides Kocsis and Welsh, Matchmaker Mann has mated Billy Strickler and Al Trainer, Buster Brown and Louis Jallos and Eric Lawson and Vince Forgione. Young Van, sensational recruit from amateur ranks, may appear in a preliminary.

HOWARD U. BOWS.

MARYLAND U. IS HOST TO HOPKINS

Ends Season on Court Tonight Prior to Tourney Play.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND and Johns Hopkins, traditional State rivals, are to come to grips tonight in Ritchie Coliseum at College Park in a game that will complete the Old Liners' home basket ball schedule. The battle is listed to start at 8:15 o'clock, following a preliminary between the freshmen quints of the schools, slated for 7 p. m.

It will be the final test for the Old Liners prior to making their debut in the Southern Conference tournament at Atlanta, where they are slated to face University of Florida in a first-round contest Friday afternoon. Maryland is the defending conference title holder and, with Kentucky, Alabama and Auburn, is among the favorites in this year's tourney.

Maryland is the favorite in tonight's fray with the Blue Jays, although the latter are sure to give the Terrapins plenty of opposition. In a game between the teams earlier in the season at Baltimore the Blue and Gold triumphed by a 33-to-26 margin.

Victory will give Maryland undisputed possession of the Free State court title, it having dropped only one decision to a State rival, Loyola, in the second game of the season. To date the Old Liners have won fifteen games and lost three, two of the latter coming at the start of the year.

Improved form over that shown the past week-end will have to be shown by Maryland if it is to stand a chance in the Atlanta tournament. The quint was off color in the North Carolina game, which it lost, 32 to 26, and was not much better against Duke, although winning in an overtime contest, 22 to 20.

Raymond Defeats Young In Feature He-Nite Bout

WITH an enthusiastic gallery of 2,000 looking on, in the big airplane hangar at the Congressional Airport last night, Rockville staged its annual He-Night entertainment which was topped by a slugging eight-round decision of Lew Raymond over Pepper Young.

Raymond, a Baltimorean, showing all the form he displayed when he licked Sammy Braunstein a week ago at Portner's Arena, was all over Young from the start. The Norfolk battler was game, but superior aggressiveness and experience ruled the ways.

Arthur De Beve, former French featherweight champion, was outboxed for one of the few times in his life, by Sailor McKenna, in the eight-round semiwind-up. Jimmy Tramberia, Baltimore "pepper pot," drew with Marino Marini, and Billy Britton did the same with Soldier Clarke in other bouts. Billy Essinger knocked out Sailor Odon in the third round of their proposed four-round bout, and Tom Horn was given the nod over Jack Portner in the opener.

Charlie Short refereed the bouts.

Fred Grobmeier, star wrestler, downed Mike Polo in eight minutes in a mat bout, and two dusky ladies of unknown affiliation staged a glove-fest which the fans seemed to like.

Baer Gets Decision Over Tom Heeney

The United Press score gave Heeney the first three rounds.

Prep Tourney Games Are Thrillers

Emerson Bows 23-14; Semifinal Games Listed Today.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Georgetown Prep, 23; Emerson, 14.
St. Alban's, 27; Landon, 12.
St. John's, 18; Devitt, 13.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE.

4 p. m.—Georgetown Prep vs. Gonzaga.

8:15 p. m.—St. John's vs. St. Alban's.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

WITH a terrific detonation of the timekeeper's gun, the first day of The Post's prep school basket ball championship came to an end at a late hour last night, when St. John's Cadets topped a day of sterling competition by polishing off Devitt Prep, 18-13, in a game that had a capacity house howling full blast.

Survivors of yesterday's four spectacular games were, besides St. John's, Georgetown Prep, the second-seeded team; Gonzaga and St. Alban's. Georgetown Prep ousted Emerson from the running by the score of 23-14. St. Alban's triumphed over Landon, 27-12, and Gonzaga nosed out Friends, 19-18, in a game which will live long in the memory of those who witnessed it.

Two Games Listed Today And Tonight.

This afternoon and tonight the four victors will go back into action in two games, from which will emerge the two teams which tomorrow night will fight it out for the prep school championship of Washington and possession of The Washington Post's trophy.

In the afternoon Georgetown Prep will go against Gonzaga, at 4 o'clock, and at 8:15 St. John's will meet St. Alban's. Both games are "naturals" and both will pack the George Washington University Gymnasium past its capacity.

Devitt Quintet Extends St. John's in Feature

Devitt, showing flashes of spectacular form, threw a real scare into St. John's in the final feature game of the night. The score of 18 to 13 in no way expresses the vim with which the battle was fought. The first quarter ended 4 to 0 in favor of St. John's, but it was one of the most fiercely contested sections of any high school or college game this year.

Players tumbled about the place, caromed into the packed galleries and displayed a guarding game of downright excellence from the start. St. John's lengthened its lead to 10 to 3 at the close of the first half, but Devitt came along with a rush in the third period.

Led by the one-handed shooting of Paul Clements and a fine all-round game of passing, Devitt tied up the count at 11 to 11 amid a bedlam of noise near the end of the third period, but before the whistle sounded ending the period St. John's went out on top, 13 to 11.

With half a thousand throats urging them on, St. John's pulled painfully away as the fourth quarter ticked along. Clements and Miller sank foul shots for Devitt's remaining scorers, but St. John's was beginning to puncture the tiring Devitt defense as Hartnett fired in a thriller from the side and Scanlon was good for 2 points from the charity stripe. The gun stopped the fiercest sort of rivalry on the floor

St. Alban's Show Speed In Routing Landon, 27-12

St. Alban's showed strength in doing away with Landon, 27-12, in the first game of the night. Landon made a fight of it in the first half, and trailed only by 4-6 at the quarter and 6-8 at the half, but the superior team play and stamina of the Saints began to tell once the second half got under way. Against the invulnerable St. Alban's defense, Landon could score only five points in the third period and one in the last.

Lao Stars as Gonzaga Beats Friends in Thriller

The tournament got away to a thrilling opening when Gonzaga triumphed over Friends by the score 19-18 in a game which was not decided until a beautiful timed Gonzaga rally had borne fruit in the last minute of play.

Friends, after a good offensive in the second quarter, went into the final half with a score of 12-9 and boosted their advantage to 16-9 before Gonzaga began a long pull back. Friends held a 17-16 lead at the end of the third quarter.

Checking every scoring attempt of the Friends warriors from the floor, Gonzaga went out in the last quarter. Friends led 18-16 when Goodloe dropped in a foul shot, but with two minutes left of the fast milling Gaff, Gonzaga guard, dropped in two fouls

HIALEAH FEATURE TO PRINCESS ZELDA IN FLORIDA DEBUT

Six-Year-Old Mare Wins By Nose

Jockey G. Riley brought the E. J. Reed representative home by a nose to earn a double for the day. Silvery took the place from Lionhearted by a length and a half. There was plenty of money bet on the winner, which returned $8.70. The time was 1:53 2-5. Silvery was favorite.

Princess Zelda Off to Early Lead.

Princess Zelda showed high speed to race into first position approaching the first turn. She appeared to interfere with Silvery as she sped to the front, but not enough to cause disqualification. After opening up several lengths advantage entering the back stretch, Riley took the pacemaker under snug restraint while Lionhearted and Silvery followed closest in pursuit. Hank Mills was on the inside and took back briefly at the far turn to come around the outside. The choice began to steal up on Princess Zelda half way through the stretch and it appeared she would win, but Riley rode hard and his mount stuck gamely to her task. Lionhearted had no excuse.

Players of the field collected in the juvenile dash for maiden fillies when E. R. Bradley's Bun D. lasted to beat Shavings, the favorite, by a head. Royal Purchase was third, a half length farther away. The winner returned $7.70. G. Riley sent her to the front shortly after the break and the bearer of the green and white silks gamely held a slight lead under strong pressure. Shavings, after breaking well, dropped back temporarily, but closed with a rush. Royal Purchase was a forward contender from the start.

Campeador Wins 3rd in Run At Havana.

HAVANA, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Campeador, 7-year-old son of Capanazo bred in Chile, won his third successive race at Oriental Park when he carried the silks of E. Navarro to victory in the George Washington Handicap today.

G. Moore, the Papana jockey, broke the South American horse from the rear to beat John Lowe's Honest John in the final strides. N. B. Stewart's Brick Kiln was third.

As the result of his previous victories, Campeador paid 6 to 5. He ran the 1 1-16 miles in 1:47 2-5.

Petabit, 4 to 1, Victor at New Orleans.

New Orleans, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Jockey J. Guerra, who rode five winners on Preakness day last year, piloted the Colgate stable's Petabit to victory in the George Washington Purse, decided over 1 mile at the Fair Grounds today.

The little Cuban jockey sent the 4-year-old filly over the distance in 1:42 to beat Piumage, from Gallaher & Combs' stable, by one length, with E. R. Bradley's Harlem, the favorite, third.

Majestic Baseball Team Meets Sunday

The Majestic Radio baseball team will hold its first 1932 meeting Sunday night at 1269 Penn street northeast, to make plans for the coming season. All players under contract are asked to report.

Strong District teams wishing to book early spring games should call Atlantic 1073 during the day. The Majestics have Easter Sunday and Sunday, April 3, open before their first road trip, on April 10, when they journey to Richmond.

Potomac Boat Club Adds to Sports Card

The Potomac Boat Club, until recently confined to boating and basket ball, will branch out in more numerous directions in the near future, and will sponsor, among other sports, a football team for the coming season.

The impending athletic calendar will open next Saturday night, when the club will stage a card of amateur boxing and wrestling matches. The Arundel Boat Club basketers will be played after the District A. A. U. basket ball tournament. Several choice regattas spot the program.

CRISLER WILL TAKE JOB AT PRINCETON

mors of this nature, I must decline to comment on any such report. I will merely reiterate that no official announcement about a football coach will be made until negotiations are completed with the man who is selected for the position by the board of athletic control."

The committee has been canvassing prospects since last fall, when a five-year contract with Al Wittmer, former star player, for several years assistant to W. W. (Bill) Roper at the Tiger school, was broken after a disastrous season in which Princeton won only one game.

It has been apparent for some time the committee was not confining its canvass to Princeton men. All of the available Tiger alumni are graduates of the Roper system, which did not prove so successful last year with Roper gone. He retired to his Philadelphia law practice at the close of the 1930 season.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPANISH FLIRT, $33.30, $10.40, out; LADY ARA, $27.20, out; NATIVE WIT, out.

SPANISH FLIRT shook off NATIVE WIT rounding the far turn, drew away after saving ground entering home stretch. LADY ARA wore down the tiring NATIVE WIT last furlong. She finished out in the middle of the track. NATIVE WIT was hustled along all through home stretch and just lasted long enough to stall off STRATEGY.

SECOND RACE—Three furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For maiden 2-year-old fillies. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:40. Off at 2:50½. Winner, E. R. Bradley's b. f. (2), by North Star III—Sweep Park. Trained by L. Gentry. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $100. Time, 0:36.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUN D. (field), $7.70, $3.10, $2.10; SHAVINGS, $3.20, $2.20; PURCHASE, $2.30.

BUND D. moved in resolute fashion after going a furlong and, passing the pacemakers a furlong from home, hung on well under punishment at end. SHAVINGS, off forwardly, dropped back first sixteenth, came again under a drive to finish in resolute fashion. She was wearing the winner down and would have won in a few more strides. ROYAL PURCHASE began rapidly, but bore over to inside after going a furlong. LADY BRACADALE ran a good race.

THIRD RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 3:20. Off at 3:24½. Winner, Jack Howard's br. g. (5), by Jim Gaffney—Little Black. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $100. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47, 1:12, 1:38 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MIKE CAREY, $15.20, $7.40, $3.60; CHOLLA, $6.60, $4.00; CHICSU, $3.10.

Corbett nursed MIKE CAREY along off the pace until rounding the far turn, where he moved up on the inside in resolute fashion, fought it out with CHOLLA all through home stretch and was drawing away last twenty yards. CHOLLA broke fast and hugged the inside rail all the way. CHICSU came again at end and was up in the final strides to outlast the tiring PASS IN REVIEW. SIR BYRON began slowly.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:52. Off at 3:55. Winner, T. McCarthy's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROADWAY LIGHTS, $16.80, $6.50, $3.50; CATHERINE FOX, $4.50, $3.10; LINE OF FIRE, $2.50.

BROADWAY LIGHTS, the forward contender from the start, easily disposed of opposition in stretch run and drew away into a commanding lead last furlong. CATHERINE FOX saved ground all the way. She tired when put to a drive. LINE OF FIRE, shuffled back first furlong and taken to outside, went wide rounding far turn and entering home stretch, closed stoutly and would have been second in a few more strides. DIANA D., PREPARE and FLASH O' WHITE all stopped.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. George Washington Purse. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:24. Winner, E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRINCESS ZELDA, $8.70, $3.80, $2.70; SILVERY, $3.30, $2.30; LIONHEARTED, $3.00.

PRINCESS ZELDA broke rapidly and cut across to inside at first turn. She hugged the rail remainder of trip and hung on well under punishment to last long enough. SILVERY moved up stoutly after rating under slight restraint to top of home stretch. She hung after getting to the leader a sixteenth from home. LIONHEARTED, under stout restraint first half mile, weakened when called on.

SIXTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:52. Off at 4:54. Winner, F. E. Kraft's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MEMORIES DEAR, $11.90, $7.00, $3.50; PORT HARLEM, $2.90, $2.30; KENSINGTON, $3.30.

MEMORIES DEAR raced on the inside to stretch turn, where she came around PORT HARLEM, wore latter down and outgamed her in final drive. PORT HARLEM held dren away rounding the far turn but tired last furlong. KENSINGTON was pulled up at start. She closed a big gap. FLOSSINE moved up stoutly coming into home stretch, where she bore out, caused a jam in which MECLONA was crowded out of it. ELLICE lacked early speed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 5:20. Off at 5:21. Winner, G. W. Ogle's ch. g. (5), by Golden Guinea—Blume. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $100. Time, 0:24 4-5, 0:48, 1:13, 1:39 3-5, 1:53.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FORT DEARBORN, $4.40, $2.80, $2.20; MOSAFABO, $3.00, $2.30; NEALON KAY, $2.60.

FORT DEARBORN was perfectly rated, began to move up half way through back stretch, came around BOSAFABO and, taking lead in final furlong, held race safe. BOSAFABO showed fine speed, saved ground, but could not withstand winner's closing challenge. Although NEALON KAY began move around bend, but could not make up ground on leaders. GORMOND ran fair race. PLAY FURIOUS showed brief flash of early speed.

HOLIDAY GUN FEATURE TO FAWSETT

Field of 35 Enters Bicentennial Trap Event.

THE Washington Gun Club staged a very successful Bicentennial tournament in commemoration of Washington's two hundredth birthday over its fine grounds near Benning, yesterday afternoon. Thirty five shooters faced the wind-swept field and made very creditable scores under difficult conditions. Twelve sterling silver trophies, engraved suitably to commemorate the occasion, were competed for, a number of them being won by visitors to our city and to the Washington Gun Club.

Three trophies in classes A B and C rewarded the skill of the three high guns in each class. The first class, A, of shooters averaging 90 per cent or better, saw C. C. Fawsett, of Washington, win high prize, with 93 although Dr. Tabler, also of Washington, who was not competing for trophies, broke 95.

Second Prize Won by Cook.

President Parker Cook, of the local club, annexed second prize for breaking 90 targets, while R. D. Morgan, Washington, and G. B. Woelfel, Annapolis, tied with 87, tossed for choice, Morgan being the lucky winner.

H. H. Shelton led class B with 89; Ray Rinaldi, visitor from New Jersey, took second with 88, and E. J. Hartge, 82, carried the third prize back to Annapolis with him. R. Stallings, Annapolis, was high in class C, with 89; Dr. N. C. Nitsch, sr., Baltimore, won second, 83, and an 82 tie between Dr. A. E. Rush and W. E. Saxton, both of Washington, was won by Dr. Rush. Treasurer Walter Wilson, of the home club, showed the way in the doubles, with 36-50; W. F. Burrows, J. Marcey, Dr. Neill and Ray Rinaldi, each with 33, drew for choice, Burrows winning. C. C. Fawsett won the third award, with 31. Next Saturday, February 27, Annapolis is coming to Washington for another of the popular 10-man team races that have done so much to build up trapshooting interest.

A. A. U. ENTRIES CLOSE TONIGHT

District Fives To Play for Crowns

Tournament to Open March 1 at Tech High Gym.

FOUR of the seven weight classes of teams eligible for the District A. A. U. basket ball tournament can register and enter up until midnight tonight with Walter Haight, of the basket ball committee, at the sports department of The Post. They are the 100-pounders, 115-pounders and the two women's classes, junior and senior.

While unlimited and 145 and 130 pound teams may enter until the stroke of midnight tonight, provided their players are all registered as amateurs, the majority of the heavier tems already are safely within the corral. It is a field bristling with good teams, and one which probably will exhibit a brand of basket ball which will surpass that displayed in any of the six other A. A. U. tournaments which The Post has sponsored.

Wide Open Race For Title.

The fact that almost guarantees a raft of good games is the fact that the race in the upper divisions, especialy, is wide open. Even the entrance of the Quantico Marines, a giant team of excellent basket ball players, in the unlimited division, is not striking terror in the hearts of the other unlimited teams. They point out that the diminutive Saks Clothiers beat the Leathernecks, and that they in turn were beaten by the Potomac Boat Club, Delaware & Hudson and Mount Vernon.

There should be no lack of competition in the 100, 115 and the women's classes. The smaller boys generally spring many of the surprises of the tournament. Recently formed teams seem to have as much chance in these lower weight divisions as do the teams who have played together so long that their teamwork is comparable to that of first-rate men's clubs.

This is true, too, of the women's classes, where one good markswoman can drag an entire inferior team with her.

The decision of the basket ball committee which eliminated the practice of forming all-star teams at the closing of the college and high school seasons has served to aid the chances of the independent clubs in the coming championship games. While a majority of the high and prep school fives are entered or will be by tonight, the only college represented is the Bliss Electrical school.

Tourneys Spotted With Upsets.

The uncertainties of tournament play again is serving as a magnet to many teams. The tournament in the past has been dotted with upsets, a fact that gives every team a chance to figure in some of the glory. Last year, two of the surprises were the first round defeats of the Jewish community Center Unlimiteds and St. Martin's. The Calvary M. E. five, a dark horse, contributed a tourney sensation by advancing to the semi-finals.

The rout of the University Shop Boys was the big jolt in the lighter classes with the defeat of the Als A. C. one of the high points in the girls' divisions.

Tournament history shows that 50 percent of the champions have been from among the teams not considered favorites.

At midnight the bell sounds! Decks will be clear thereafter for the start of the big joust March 1 at Tech.

Lao's beautiful floor play was an outstanding feature of the game, as was the fine offensive and defensive work of Kent Boyle, captain for the losing side. The game set a high standard of competition for those to follow.

Keating and Nee Leaders As G. U. Prep Five Wins

Georgetown Prep rolled smoothly over Emerson, 23 to 14, in the second game of the afternoon, showing at all times a quantity of reserve strength and always able to keep the eventual losers at a safe distance behind.

Led by two youths who promise to write their names indelibly in the tournament records, Tom Keating and Maurice Nee, Georgetown Prep, strode to 9 to 2 in the first half, showing a brand of teamwork that Emerson could not combat.

The two teams raced evenly along in the second half, after which the Prepmen led, 13 to 6, but in the third period, Georgetown Prep, with Keating giving an exhibition of shooting that sent cheers through the closely packed house, the eventual winners went to 19, while Emerson could score but one point.

Emerson rallied in the last half, but the seven points they scored did little to undermine the Prepmen, who rang in substitutions near the end.

Keating scored six baskets and a foul shot before he was through, and took the lead in the individual scoring race.

S. Atlantic Race Annexed by Agee

Richmond, Va., Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Bill Agee, national 15-mile champion and Olympic representative, running under the colors of the Stonewall Democratic Club of Baltimore, held the lead from start to finish to win the Washington's Birthday feature of the South Atlantic A. A. U., sponsored by the Virginia Golden Gloves. He won in the fast time of 57 minutes 19 seconds for the 10.4-mile course.

Agee paced his club to a victory for the team trophy while Jerry Bray, Duke University harrier, entered from Norfolk, placed second, 38 seconds behind the winner. Arthur Dewhurst, of the Washington Y. M. C. A., was fourth.

PIN STAKES WON BY SANTINI

Has 1,868 Total for 15 Games to Nose Out Pacini.

TONY SANTINI yesterday beat a large field in the George Washington sweepstakes, rolled on the Lucky Strike alleys, his 1,868 total for 15 games giving him the $150 first prize. Three points behind Santini was Ollie Pacini, while Wesley Askew, of Baltimore, took third honors with an 1,845 total. Louis Pantos was fourth, with 1,821, while the last of the five prizes went to Ray Barnes, of Baltimore. He had an 1,816 to show for his day's work.

Santini tied with Barnes for the leadership at the end of the first block, rolling 651 and dropped back in the second set. He stepped out in the third, however, with a 628 which enabled him to cop by a three-pin margin.

Pacini, a hot favorite to win, scored 578 in the first set, which left him far behind. He came back with a 628 in the second block and then staged a brilliant 659 which all but caught the leader. In fact, it looked as though Ollie would win the pot when he started his final game. In the first four games of the third block, he had totals of 131, 152, 134 and 139 and needed but 106 to tie and 107 to win. He was the victim of some bad breaks, however, and had to be satisfied with a sorry 103.

Western Wildcat Five Wins Southeast Tourney

Courtmen from the Golden West, known as the Western Wildcats, won the basket ball championship at Southeast Community Center yesterday afternoon and were presented with the Pearson & Crain Trophy, a silver loving cup.

In their first contest the Cats defeated Congress Heights, 20 to 1. In the semifinals they put the kibosh on the Kelly's, 36 to 6, and in the finals they overwhelmingly defeated Marion A. C., 40 to 12. In their three games they scored a total of 96 points to their opponents' 19.

ARLINGTON'S POLICE SPEED FETE TRAFFIC

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With a major portion of the population of the county in Alexandria yesterday, where they joined in the huge celebration of the 200th birthday anniversary of George Washington, everything in the county virtually was at a standstill.

Traffic on all highways leading to Alexandria, taxed with thousands of automobiles, was kept regulated and void of all accidents as a result of county police stationed at all intersections by Sheriff Howard B. Fields.

To meet all emergencies, Sheriff Fields kept four officers at the county jail to answer calls, but up to a late hour last night no call of any character came to the jail. The county was void of disorder and no arrests were reported by the police.

A charter has been granted by the Virginia State Corporation Commission to the Columbus Club Association, of Clarendon, Arlington County. The membership of the association consists of the Edward Douglas White Council, Knights of Columbus, of Clarendon. The association was organized to acquire, hold and maintain property to be used as the home of the council.

The officers and trustees of the association are Louis W. Metzgar, president; Hugh J. McGrath, vice president; Arthur A. Moore, secretary; J. R. Raeburn, treasurer; J. Thomas Manning, Thomas J. Crack, B. F. Toulotte, William McCauley, John M. Fraber, John R. Mulligan and A. A. Kirchner, trustees.

The association has acquired the property located on Garrison road, in Clarendon, adjoining the Hedrick block, which is improved by a two-story residence. After extensive improvements, this property will become the new home of the council.

With plans going forward by the Federal Government to construct the roadway leading from the Arlington Memorial Bridge into Arlington National Cemetery, county officials are making a careful study of what will be the county's most adequate approach.

The officials, it is learned, are considering one of three proposed routes which will be determined upon.

It is known that the policy in determining the approach will be that the road giving service to the most number of people and one that can be constructed at the most reasonable cost will be chosen.

It is expected that County Manager Roy S. Braden will be in a position to make his recommendations to the county board at its meeting to be held the first Saturday in March.

Mrs. Norbert Melnick, county chairman of the Arlington County Tuberculosis Association, with Mrs. R. N. Davies, county school nurse, will go to Richmond, Va., today to attend the annual Virginia Tuberculosis Association.

W. R. Beattie, of the United States Department of Agriculture, will give an illustrated lecture on home and garden before the Arlington Citizens Association at its meeting to be held this evening. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Patrick Henry School at 8 o'clock.

Man Gets Six Months For Maryland Assault

Convicted of assault and battery on Benjamin Hibeon, at Contee, Md., yesterday, Walter Boyd was sentenced to six months in the Maryland House of Correction in Hyattsville police court.

A Laurel, Md., youth, who pleaded guilty to taking a truck without the consent of the owner, was fined $25 and sentence on three others was suspended. George Divens was the young man who drew the fine, and three young brothers, Dallas, Stewart and Kenneth Nicholson, were freed until next week.

Man Seized After Purse Is Taken From Visitor

George West, 27, was arrested by First Precinct police yesterday morning after snatching the purse of Mrs. Florence B. Greer, a Bicentennial visitor. The purse contained $70 and was recovered after West was caught by George A. Watson, a garage employe.

The arrested man said he was hungry and had been unable to obtain employment. The incident took place in front of the Grace Dodge Hotel, where Mrs. Greer is a guest. She is from Mount Vernon, Ohio.

Representative Norton To Return to Her Duties

Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat) New Jersey, chairman of the House District Committee, who has been ill at her apartment in the Mayflower for several weeks, will be back on the floor again today, her office announced yesterday.

Work of the District Committee and subcommittees has been going forward during her absence, Mrs. Norton directing much of it from her sickroom. Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat) Maryland, has been presiding at committee sessions during her illness.

Public May View Gadsby's Tavern

Historic Alexandria House to Be Open to Visitors for Two Days.

Gadsby's Tavern, where Alexandria held its ball of balls last night, will be opened to the public today and tomorrow, the committee in charge of restoring the old tavern announced yesterday.

The Tavern last night was the scene of the ball which climaxed Alexandria's inauguration of its celebration of the anniversary of Washington's birth. Because of limited space requests for tickets were refused to hundreds.

To permit those visitors who wish to inspect the old place, which temporarily is furnished with portraits, mirrors, chairs, tables, and other things loaned by families who prize them the restoration committee has decided to keep the tavern open to the public today and tomorrow. The admission charge of 50 cents will go to the tavern restoration fund.

FAIRFAX BOARDS ASK VOICE IN ROAD PLAN

Also Favor State's Paying All of Teachers' Salaries; Rust Is Visitor.

The Board of Supervisors and the School Board of Fairfax County, Virginia, yesterday morning adopted two resolutions. The first advocated paying the entire salary of teachers by the State instead of the State taking over the county roads, and the second asked the State Assembly now in session to include a provision in the proposed bill for taking over all county roads, to allow citiens of Fairfax County to vote as to whether or not the county would be included in its provisions.

State Senator John W. Rust, of Fairfax, attended the meeting and stated that he was interested in relieving local taxation and the so-called Byrd proposal under which the State Highway Department would take over all road maintenance and construction in the State was the most feasible being considered.

Members of the two boards expressed themselves as being opposed to the proposed centralization of power at Richmond. They declared that if a road was wanted in any section of the county the people would be forced to go to Richmond to plead their cause and could do nothing if their request was refused. It was argued that the maintaining of schools is a State function recognized in the State Constitution.

Members of both boards declared that local taxes could be relieved without chaos and uncertainty if the State would leave the county roads alone and with the present State school organization increase local aid for schools.

Members of the Board of Supervisors stated that if the people did not want to pay a county road tax, depending only on the State gasoline tax to maintain the county roads, as under the proposed State plan, the county levy for that purpose could be eliminated from the budget and no further road construction would be done.

Fairfax Hunt Club Holds Fox Chase

More Than 200 Witness Event Participated in by 100 Riders.

More than 200 persons besides the 100 riders gathered yesterday morning at Mocks Corner, on the Alexandria-Leesburg pike, about 3 miles west of Herndon, Va., to witness the start of an exciting Bicentennial fox hunt by the Fairfax Hunt Club. Along the banks of the Potomac River, above the historic Great Falls, Sly Renaud led the riders a merry chase, finally denning in the rocks along the river more than 4 miles from the start. Many socially prominent sports men and women from Washington, Maryland, and Virginia were among the riders.

Following the chase a hunt breakfast was served in the clubhouse at Sunset Hills, about 17 miles from Washington, on the estate of A. Smith Bowman, M. F. H. Almost 500 members and their guests were present to celebrate the event in old English style. The clubhouse was decorated with the national colors and pictures of Washington, who is accredited with being an ardent lover of the chase, owning one of the best packs of fox hounds in northern Virginia.

The course over which the club hunts has been pronounced by hunting experts as being one of the best and most natural in the State, fox being plentiful in their natural state among the hills and along the tributaries of the Potomac above Great Falls.

Woman Is Arrested In Prince Georges Raid

Mrs. Virginia Stacks was arrested and a still, mash, and alleged liquor were seized by Prince Georges County police who raided a house on the Walker Mill road about a mile over the District line in Maryland. Hidden in the cellar of the house were, it is alleged, a 25-gallon still, about 1,000 gallons of mash and 15 gallons of reputed whisky, according to Policeman G. William Gray, who led the raid. He was assisted by Policeman Oscar Beall. The woman was freed on bond of $1,000.

Amateur Weather Forecaster Right

H. J. Browne's Prediction for Feb. 22 Held Made on Mathematics.

Herbert Janvrin Browne, Washington's unofficial long-range weather forecaster, scored a point on the Weather Bureau when his prediction, made on Sunday, February 14, that George Washington's birthday would be a bright, clear day came true.

Mr. Browne offered to forecast the weather for yesterday to support what he claims is the soundness of his system of weather forecasting. Mr. Browne undertook the work of predicting yesterday's weather in the presence of a Post reporter, and at that time explained how he reaches his conclusions.

The unofficial forecaster, who has made a study of meteoreology for the last ten years, proved that he has a scientific method, in which weather conditions in every part of the country are studied, and that his predictions are far from being guesswork. The United States Weather Bureau, in its final forecast Sunday night, predicted that it would rain yesterday morning with possible clearing in the afternoon.

Inquest Set for Today In Man's Poison Death

An inquest will be held at noon today in the death of Alexander J. Gill, Evening Star employe, who died at Garfield Hospital after drinking a quantity of poison in the bathroom of his home at 3614 Connecticut avenue.

The man was found unconscious by his wife, who summoned the Fire Rescue Squad, but efforts to revive him failed. Beside his widow, Gill is survived by a 5-year-old daughter.

Rum Theft Report To Be Made Today

Chief of Prince Georges Police Not to Comment on Robbery.

The report of Prince Georges County Policeman Arthur Brown on the liquor robbery at the Hyattsville Palice Station Sunday morning will be transmitted to the county commissioners today without any comment on Brown's statement, Chief J. J. Crowley said yesterday.

It is understood that he will make certain recommendations regarding the storage of liquor in the police station, however. Chief Crowley explained yesterday that the eight-hour duty in the police station was only a part of the work of the county police, who work many more than eight hours a day. For this reason he will not issue any order forbidding men on station duty to sleep in the early morning hours. Brown was asleep when robbers entered the liquor store and stole 130 gallons of whisky being held as evidence.

State's Attorney Alan Bowie said yesterday that his order to keep all seized liquor until after trial of the owner was made necessary by Maryland law. Previously seized contraband was destroyed at once, only enough being kept to be used as evidence.

SIX MEN ARRESTED ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Fairfax Deputies Also Seize Quantity of Intoxicants in Automobiles.

Six persons ran afoul of the Virginia State prohibition law in Fairfax County yesterday.

Thomas Struder, of Franconia, Va., was arrested and charged with driving while under the influence of ardent spirits and the transportation and possession of liquor. His companion, Herbert Pettit, of Accotink, was charged with the transportation and possession of liquor. The two were taken before Justice of the Peace Harry Shepherd, at Accotink, who ordered them held for the action of the grand jury at the March term of the Fairfax County Circuit Court. Struder was charged with the second offense of violating the State law.

William Finchman, of Culpeper, Va., was arrested on charges of driving while drunk and transporting ardent spirits, with firearms, which is a felony under the State law. His companion, M. L. Rue, of Washington, was charged with the possession of liquor. The two were arrested by Deputy Sheriff John B. Dowden, of Fairfax County, on the Columbia pike, near Baileys Cross Roads, and a gallon of alleged liquor was seized by the police. They were taken before Justice of the Peace A. C. Ritchie, at Fairfax, who ordered the two held for the action of the grand jury next month.

Leon Wilkins and Alan Roy, both of Alexandria, were arrested near Accotink, on the Washington-Richmond highway, by Deputy Sheriff George McCann, of Fairfax County, and charged with the possession and transportation of three cases of alleged liquor, which was said to have been found in their car. Both are held for the grand jury action by Justice Shepherd, of Accotink.

Map Shows Places Washington Visited

Maryland Group Prepares Data for Distribution; Sites Described.

The Maryland commission for the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington has prepared a map showing the roads in Maryland over which George Washington traveled and 90 places where he is known to have stopped.

The map, prepared by J. Spence Howard, has short descriptions of the places by J. Alexis Shriver, of Bel Air, Md., chairman of the committee on county celebrations, roads and houses.

The maps are printed in color and are available for free distribution. They may be had by applying to J. Alexis Shriver, Bel Air, Md., and inclosing 10 cents in stamps to cover the expense of mailing.

Every school in the State will be provided with one of the maps by Dr. Albert S. Cook, State superintendent of schools, and each Baltimore City school will be supplied with a map by Dr. David E. Weglein, superintendent of Baltimore schools.

Three Women Are Hurt In Crash; 2 Men Held

Three women, passengers in a taxicab, were injured and two men were held on reckless driving charges as a result of a collision last night at Vermont avenue and Q street northwest.

Miss Fannie Levy, 25 years old, of 2151 Eighth street northwest, was the most seriously hurt. She has a severe head injury and lacerations. Miss Helen Kaplan, 23 years old, and Miss Lillian Zallyman, 25 years old, of 1834 Seventh street northwest, suffered lacerations. They were passengers in a cab operated by Clifford Smith, colored, 25 years old, of 221 Florida avenue northwest. His cab was in collision with a car driven by Otis Robinson, 29 years old, of Mount Rainier, Md.

U. S. Flag Association Praises City's Display

The United States Flag Association issued a statement yesterday in which it declared that the City of Washington, as evidenced by the display of flags yesterday in honor of Washington's birthday anniversary, has of late years made commendable progress in both the extensiveness and correctness of the display of the flag, but that there is still room for improvement.

The association said that evidently many people do not know that it is permissible to wash or dry clean the American flag, and that they are not aware of the fact that it is a violation of the flag code to display torn, soiled or faded flags.

Hadassah Birthday Party Today.

The fourteenth birthday party of the Washington Chapter Hadassah will be held this afternoon at the Jewish Community Center with Mrs. Selma Selinger Klein as guest artist. Mrs. Klein will give a costume song recital with the Washington Bicentennial as the theme.

MATCHES ARE USED IN HOME ROBBERIES

Two New Thefts Reported in Mt. Rainier; Children Believed to Blame.

Two new "burnt match" robberies were reported to Mount Rainier, Md., police yesterday as the latest activity of a gang which has been conducting its maraudings by the light of numerous matches over a period of several weeks.

Each of four homes has been entered by means of a duplicate key and each raid was made early at night, between 7 and 10 o'clock. Chief Eugene Plumer, of the Mount Rainier police force, believes that the crimes were the work of children living in the neighborhood, pointing out that the robbers were apparently familiar with the activities of the persons whose homes were entered. LEADERS ADD SERVICE TO MORRIS BANKERS

Founder Assigns Success to Basic Honesty of Nation's Population.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

In connection with the convention of the Morris Plan Bankers Association, to be held in this city in October, it will be of interest to know some of the nationally and internationally prominent men who have been connected with Morris Plan institutions.

They are: Former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War; Walter C. Allen, president of Yale & Towne Manufacturing Co., New York; Thomas F. Bayard, former United States Senator from Delaware; Coleman du Pont, former Senator from Delaware; Robert S. Bradley, chairman, American Agricultural Chemical Co., Boston; Newcomb Carlton, president, Western Union Telegraph Co., New York; Henry M. Dawes, former comptroller of currency; Myron T. Herrick, former Ambassador to France; George von L. Meyer, former Secretary of the Navy; Charles H. Sabin, chairman, Guaranty Trust Co., New York; A. B. Swift, Swift & Co., Chicago; Robert P. Lamont, Secretary of Commerce; Justice Harlan F. Stone, formerly of New York and now judge of the United States Supreme Court; Walter W. Head, a director and member of the finance committee of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Co.

Arthur J. Morris, founder of the Morris plan system of banking, states the best kind of risks are those people who have discovered what they can do, who are satisfied in doing it and who have a steady income. Two things to be considered in passing on a loan in a Morris plan bank, Mr. Morris declares, are character and capability. He declared that an overwhelming majority of people are honest and that almost every person pays his debts if they are incurred on terms consistent with his ability to meet them, and that the nonpayment of debts is not so liable to result from intention as from a person's having contracted for more than he can do.

Mr. Morris' idea has been proved to be correct, as shown by the remarkably small losses from credit risks which Morris plan banks throughout the country have sustained in a period of 20 years, covering good times and bad.

Gross revenue, net railway operating income and net income of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co., together with operating ratio, are shown in the statement of operations for the month of January, 1932, report for which has been sent to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Gross revenues for the month were $7,998,232, a decrease of $2,379,981 under January of last year; operating expenses were $5,252,845, a decline of $1,617,511, as compared with January of last year; net railway operating income was $1,951,526, a recession of $810,120 under January of last year.

Net income after all charges, including sinking fund appropriation for the month of January, was $1,-196,638, a decrease of $891,211 under January of last year. The operating ratio is 65.7 per cent, compared with 66.2 per cent for January of last year, or a decrease of 0.5 per cent.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Wall street financial markets and banks were closed today in observance of Washington's Brithday, the last of the winter financial holidays. The New York Stock Exchange's next vacation comes on Good Friday.

Large financial settlements are usually made on March 1, when monetary demands of the interior, especially the agricultural districts, are normally large. However, banks are expecting little reflection of these requirements on the money markets this year, believing that needs can be supplied without much, if any, effect on rates.

Unofficial estimates say that the large New York banks will cover their dividends with something to spare in the first quarter of this year. January was said to have been a profitable month, notwithstanding declines in deposits. This downward trend has slackened, and some banks reported net gains last week.

Recent improvement in bonds has drawn much favorable comment from bankers, who point out that the investment market has lost much of its thinness. Little is heard of prospective new issues, but high-grade offerings recently made are reported to have been well received.

Operating profits of $1,002,334, before deductions, was reported in Kelly Springfield Tire Co. for the year ended December 31. It said all bank loans were eliminated and the ratio of assets to liabilities now is 30 to 1.

Formal announcement of the reentry of Lee Stewart & Co., in the investing business is made by Thomas F. Lee, Walter Stewart and Mal F. Lee. They open now offices at 40 Wall street Tuesday.

About fifteen additional applications for loans from the new Railroad Credit Corporation are said to have been filed. These loans are sought for the purpose of meeting forthcoming loan maturities.

To help the national campaign against hoarding, many savings banks of this city have raised the maximum limit previously set on single deposits they would accept. Several banks which had placed $1,-000 as the largest individual deposit acceptable have advanced the figure to $7,500. Precautions have been tightened, however, to prevent deposit of regular commercial money in the mutual banks.

The outstanding $3,200,800 first mortgage fifteen-year 6 per cent sinking fund gold bonds due April 1, 1940, of Cuyamel Fruit Co. have been called for redemption on April 1 next at 104½ with interest. The company is a subsidiary of United Fruit.

Dow Jones reports that Republic Steel Corporation, operations this week will be at 25 per cent of capacity against 35 per cent last week.

The New York Cotton Exchange membership of George A. Garrett has been sold for $14,500 to Herman J. Phillips.

State Tax on Incomes Becomes Illinois Law

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 22 (A.P.).—A State tax on incomes became law in Illinois today with the signing of a bill passed at a special session of the General Assembly by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson.

The measure, advocated by the Governor's tax conference committee in response to demands for agricultural interests for real estate tax relief, provides for a levy graduated upward from 2 per cent on $1,000 income. It met strenuous objection from Chicago and Cook County delegations in both Houses during the special session on the ground that it was aimed particularly at the metropolitan area.

EARLY AGREEMENT SEEN ON BANK BILL

Credit Expansion Measure Is Expected to Become Law Before Week Ends.

(Associated Press.)

An early agreement between the Senate and House on the credit expansion bill was predicted last night on Capitol Hill on the eve of meetings by the conferees.

The legislation putting to work more than $408,000,000 in "free gold" and opening new avenues for the banks for credit from the Federal Reserve is expected to be law before the end of the week.

The American Bankers Association, in a formal statement last night, lauded the nonpartisan economic program nearing completion as one which "should immediately inspire our people with renewed confidence in the ability of this country to lead in working out a sure, sound restoration of normal business and financial relationships."

"By the exercise of broad-minded, nonpartisan statesmanship at Washington," said the statement, "the Nation has been provided through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Glass-Steagall bill, with a comprehensive plan of action against the utterly abnormal financial difficulties that confront the United States in common with all the countries of the world."

The principal difference between the Senate and House is on the length of life of the measure. The Senate would make the provision allowing banks in groups of five to rediscount ineligible paper upon their promissory notes a permanent thing. The Senate voted two years of life for the other two provisions allowing individual banks to take advantage of the emergency rediscount privilege and allowing use of Government obligations as collateral for new note issues.

The House voted just one year of existence for the entire measure. Little concern is felt at the Capitol over the Senate provision limiting the rediscounting privilege for individual banks to institutions of less than $2,000,000 capitalization. The House put no restriction on this, and its measure finds favor in this respect: Only 736 of the 7,600 member banks of the Federal Reserve System have a capitalization of more than $2,000,000.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 202

National Photo.

FOR a short length of time back in 1915 or 1916, it was a common sight to see these special delivery messengers of the Postoffice Department scooting around the streets of the downtown section of the city on the "auto peds."

They were used as an experiment for three of four months and then abandoned as being impractical. They could not be used when the streets were covered with snow or ice, or when it was raining as they skidded too easily. It was also found that the messengers could not drive safely and carry a large package, so they were sold and the boys went back to their bicycles and motorcycles.

AUCTION SALES

TUESDAY, MARCH 1, 1932—
THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers.
1431 Eye Street Northwest.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF THE VALUABLE ELEVEN STORY, BASEMENT AND SUBBASEMENT BRICK AND STONE HOTEL PROPERTY KNOWN AS THE HAMILTON HOTEL LOCATED AT THE NORTHEAST CORNER OF FOURTEENTH AND K STREETS NORTHWEST.

Because of default in the terms and conditions of, and by virtue of a certain deed of trust executed by The Rochester Corporation, a Delaware corporation, dated July 1, 1927, and recorded among the land records of the District of Columbia in Liber 5908 at folio 183 et seq., and at the request of over twenty-five per centum of the holders of the bonds secured thereby, the undersigned substituted trustee, by appointment of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in Equity Cause No. 51379, will offer for sale at public auction, in front of the premises, on TUESDAY, THE FIRST DAY OF MARCH, A. D. 1932, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following described land and premises situate in the City of Washington, District of Columbia, and which is described as follows: Lot 19 in hrs of John Davidson's subdivision of square 248, as per plat recorded in Liber N. K., folios 67 and 68 of the Records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia. Also lot 60 in the subdivision made by Charlotte M. Bridge, acting by her attorney, Thomas H. Hume, of subdivision lots 20, 21 and 22 in square 248, as per plat of said subdivision recorded in Liber 28, folio 117, of the Records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia; together with the improvements consisting of the "Hamilton Hotel," and all furnishings, fittings and fixtures contained therein, as described in said deed of trust.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash on or before March 31, 1932, balance in two equal installments payable in one and two years from date of sale, with interest thereon at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from day of sale, said interest payable semiannually, and to be secured by first deed of trust on the property sold; or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. The trustee will receive no bid from anyone offering to bid who shall not at or before the hour of sale, or any adjournment thereof, deposit with said trustee, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, a deposit of $25,000, either in cash or certified check on a local bank or trust company, made or endorsed payable to the undersigned trustee, or in lieu thereof bonds of the par value of $50,000, in form transferable by delivery, secured by said deed of trust, said bonds to have all unpaid coupons attached thereto. The deposit of any unsuccessful bidder will be returned to him immediately after the sale. In case any successful bidder shall fail to complete his purchase by March 31, 1932, in accordance with the said terms of sale, said deposit may be forfeited at the option of the trustee. The trustee reserves the right to reject any and all bids and withdraw the property from sale. All adjustments with respect to taxes, assessments, insurance, rentals, income from operation of property, interest and all other adjustments shall be made as of the date of sale. The trustee, however, will continue to manage and operate said property, and collect the income therefrom from date of sale to date of transfer upon existing terms and set forth in said deed of trust. After settlement of sale said trustee will not be responsible for any bills or expenses incurred in the management or operation of said property. COLGATE'S DEAN POINTS TO DUTY OF EDUCATORS

Chicago University Official Decries Criticism Heaped on School System.

Looking beyond the depression to the days when prosperity again will blossom in the land, the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association was presented last night with a picture of a huge adult class with plenty of spare time and without the intelligence to know what to do with it.

With the coming of shorter working hours and a job for everyone, there will be a need for educating the public in a better utilization of leisure hours than joyriding, indulgence in superficial amusements and cocktail drinking, the educators were told by William F. Russell, dean of the Teachers College at Columbia University, New York; George B. Cutten, president of Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y., and in a paper read to the convention and prepared by L. P. Jacks, of Oxford, England.

Excitement Is Deplored.

The Colgate University dean pointed to the danger of people demanding "faster and more furious excitement" after they have become saturated with cocktails, moving pictures, the radio and automobile riding.

The machine age, he said, will bring us to a condition dreaded by societies of the past. "We can not deport those who are not at work," he pointed out. "We have no distant frontier to which they can go, no free land to give to them. We can not divert their minds by athletic spectacles. We will not tolerate opium. We have legislated against alcohol and lotteries. We have neither a body of ancient customs and games nor any organized set of religious observances. We do not want war. All the usual social medicines used to operate upon idle crowds are denied to us in the United States. Our only hope is education."

"The most valuable asset that we have at the present time is our leisure," Dr. Cutten told the delegates.

Mental Strain Discussed.

Dr. Cutten also discussed the increasing mental strain in modern life and its probable affect on the human brain. "The great danger now is not inability to adapt ourselves to physical environment," he said, "for our intelligence helps us to do that. But the fact that we are intellectual beings demands of us that we shall conform to a mental environment, which is an entirely new experience on the part of animal life."

Dr. Cutten observed that if we are to escape from the results of this mental stress it must not be in an artificial way, such as by the use of alcohol and drugs, but by the temporary removal of the strain in a way which fits us better to meet the prospective demands which shall be made upon us.

Texan Presides.

Norman R. Crozier, superintendent of schools at Dallas, Tex., and first vice president of the department of superintendence, presided at last night's session, which was held at Constitution Hall. James A. Moyer, of the State department of education, Boston, Mass., was the program chairman. A musical program was presented by the Interhigh School Festival Orchestra, under the direction of Ludwig E. Manoley.

Dean Charles H. Judd, of the School of Education, University of Chicago, told the superintendents at the morning session that "the veritable avalanche of human life which has descended on the schools has precipitated in these institutions a whole series of problems more momentous for the welfare of the country than are the problems which have come with the present economic crisis."

Dean Judd said he "was filled with resentment" when he heard the criticisms of those who say that the American schools are failures. He described these critics as "smug exploiters of society who have been driving communities to the brink of ruin by their greed and self-seeking.

New Systems Ignored.

"They have refused to adopt new taxing systems," he said. "They have refused to study social movements. They have been parsimonious with the schools, and they have had the effrontery to pass adverse judgment on the experiment which the schools have been trying in the effort to prepare society for its new day. * * * If the worst that our critics say were true, there would still be ample ground for pride in what has been achieved."

Dean Judd expressed the belief that instruction in high schools and colleges can be reorganized "so as to provide more compact and therefore more useful courses."

Yearbook Is Presented.

The tenth annual Yearbook on Character Education was presented at the morning session by A. L. Threlkold, superintendent of schools at Denver, and chairman of the 1932 yearbook commission on character education. The yearbook viewed the press, radio and moving picture industry as tending to harm the character and morals of young people rather than contribute toward their uplift.

Frank N. Freeman, of the School of Education, University of Chicago, discussed character education from the point of view of psychology, while Mrs. John K. Norton, of this city, associate director of research, National Education Association, spoke on the school and character education. Charles B. Glenn, superintendent of schools, Birmingham, Ala., discussed the yearbook as a workbook.

EDUCATOR PRAISES SOVIET FAMILY LIFE

Socialization System Held Beneficial in Talk at Economics Session.

The system of family life in Russia under the Soviet government is one that might well be introduced in the United States, Dr. Lucy Wilson, principal of the South Philadelphia High School for Girls, told the department of supervisors and teachers of home economics of the National Education Association at its annual banquet at the Willard last night.

Dr. Wilson, who visited Russia last summer, spoke in laudatory terms of the socialization of the home in Russia, under which efforts are made to put a radio in every home, where parents may go to parks of culture and devote their time to their own interests while their children are looked after in schools.

Dr. Wilson declared that a fine family life will probably emerge in Russia as quickly as it will in the United States. She described the recreational facilities placed at the disposal of Russians, praising the movies that have no emphasis on sex appeal, the radio without advertisements, the libraries, athletic facilities and theaters.

Urges Study By Men.

The illegitimate child is an unknown thing in Russia, Dr. Wilson said.

Dr. William John Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education, told the home economics teachers that in his opinion men should be taught home economics, and that it would be a good idea to introduce such a course for boys in high schools. This would give men a knowledge of diet and an appreciation of home furnishings, he pointed out. "Most of our homes are terrible because of an absence of instruction in the matter of art," he added.

Dr. Cooper declared that the loss of unity in family life has resulted in serious changes in society and in the economic world, a situation that offers a challenge to the home economic departments of the schools to remedy.

Concerned on Pay Cuts.

He expressed concern over the threatened reduction in salaries for home economic work, but pointed out that the work can be carried on to the ultimate improvement of the home in spite of financial limitations.

Dr. Wilson and Dr. Cooper were introduced by Miss Helen Goodspeed, president of the department of superintendents and teachers of home economics. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, a member of the District Board of Education, extended greetings to the delegates.

The department will hold sessions today in service hall of the District Red Cross Chapter House. A breakfast will be held tomorrow morning at McKinley High School.

Woman Sent to Hospital By Falling Flashlight

A flashlight which toppled from the pocket of a man on the second floor of a building at Seventh and F streets northwest yesterday sent a woman to the hospital to be treated for a severe bruise on her head.

Mrs. Mary McCaffrey, 50 years old, of 602 A street northeast, was walking on F street when she was struck by the light. Police said it fell from the pocket of William Kirk, of 612 H street northwest, who was taking a short cut to the street by using the fire escape. Mrs. McCaffrey returned to her home after receiving first aid treatment at Emergency Hospital.

Drug Store Owner Is Holdup Victim

William C. Furr, owner of a drug store at 500 E street northeast, was held up and robbed of $3 in cash and a watch and chain yesterday morning by two roughly dressed white bandits.

The men at first asked for narcotics and Furr informed them he had none. One of the men then ransacked the cash register, obtaining the money. The same men then went through Furr's pockets and extracted his watch and chain, which the druggist valued at $40.

Furr said he was not sure that the men had a gun, but that the man who commanded him to "stick 'em up" had his hand in his pockets as if armed. A discription of the men was broadcast by police.

"Welcome Stranger" Staged Tonight.

Auto Driven By Brookhart Levels Tree

Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, emulated the Father of His Country yesterday and told on himself when he cut down a tree. Instead of a hatchet, however, the senator did it with his automobile.

Senator Brookhart was on his way to the Senate Office Building yesterday morning about 9:30 o'clock from his home in Hyattsville. All went well until he reached South Dakota avenue, heading south, and attempted to turn into Thirtieth street northeast.

In some manner he lost control of his machine. It continued across the curbing and snapped off a small tree. The senator reported the accident to police. He said he would pay for the damage.

SIMON KANN'S RITES ARE SET FOR TODAY

Rabbi Simon to Officiate at Services for Commercial and Charity Leader.

Final tribute to Simon Kann, who for 38 years was an outstanding figure in the commercial and charitable activity of Washington, will be paid today by civic and trade leaders, as well as a wide circle of friends, at the family residence, 2029 Connecticut avenue.

Rabbi Abram Simon, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, will officiate at the funeral services to be held at Mr. Kann's home. He died early Sunday at his home after a brief illness.

He was president of the S. Kann Co., department store, succeeding his brother Sigmund who died on March 3, 1930. He was the son of Solomon Kann who conducted a dry goods business in Baltimore for many years.

He is survived by his widow, Sadie Kann, and a nephew, Solomon Kann, who, with Mr. Sigmund Kann's son-in-law, Bernard Burgunder, will carry on the business.

Burial will be in the Baltimore Hebrew Congregation Cemetery.

The Chamber of Commerce yesterday adopted the following resolution:

"Washington has been fortunate in the quality of leadership in the owners and managers of her mercantile establishments, which has borne fruit in the high standards of honesty and integrity.

"Among such owners and managers, the name of Simon Kann has been in the forefront for 38 years, during which time, with his brothers, Louis and Sigmund, he built up Washington's well-known firm, the S. Kann's Sons Co.

"Simon Kann, able business man, active civic worker, and far-seeing philanthropist, rendered service to Washington of which his firm, his family and his friends may well be proud.

"The Washington Chamber of Commerce, of which he was a valued member, desires by this formal resolution to record its deep sense of Washington's indebtedness to Simon Kann and its profound sorrow for the death of one whom they regarded with respect and sincere affection."

Alfred B. Foster Dies in California

Los Angeles Postal Official Was Former Resident of Washington.

Alfred B. Foster, assistant postmaster in Los Angeles, Calif., and former Washington resident, died in Los Angeles Saturday, according to word received here yesterday by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Florence A. Bailey, of 1415 Hamilton street northwest.

Mr. Foster was born in California 64 years ago and came to this city to accept a position in the Postoffice Department in 1902. He was at one time in charge of the division of equipment and supplies, later holding the position of chief clerk of the office of the fourth Assistant Postmaster General. He was appointed assistant postmaster in Los Angeles in 1917, which position he held up to the time of his death.

He was married in 1903 to Miss Mamie Thompson, of this city. He was a member of the Modern Woodmen of the World, and was clerk of Washington Camp for three years. He is survived by his widow, three sons, Alfred D., Cecil J. and Leonard Foster, and two daughters, Ruth and Winifred.

K. OF C. INITIATIONS PRECEDE GALA BALL

Fourth Degree Conferred on 63 at Shoreham; 400 Present.

With a gala banquet and dance following ceremonies, the Washington General Assembly of the Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, last night conferred the fourth degree on 63 candidates at the Shoreham Hotel.

The principal address of the banquet was made by the Very Rev. Edward G. Fitzgerald, of Catholic University, who was introduced by Toastmaster William E. Leahy. Guests of honor were Daniel J. Callahan, supreme treasurer, K. of C., and Representative Clarence J. McLeod.

Entertainment was offered by George O'Connor, Matt Horne, Miss Mary O'Donoghue and Mrs. Tomaiaes. The banquet was closed when the assemblage of over 400 persons sang the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Anthony J. Scullen was chairman, Frederic J. Diegelmann, secretary, and Leo D. Wade, vice chairman of the degree committee. Other members were James B. Flynn, Eugene C. Baczenas, Albert J. Sardo, Francis J. Hemelt, John F. Hillyard, John F. Martin, Richard F. Field, Thomas J. Troden and Carmine Garofalo.

Similar services were held throughout the Nation. The degree quartet was composed of Thomas A. Cantwell, Walter J. Plant, Bertrand T. Fitzgerald and Matthew A. Dillon.

A general committee was composed of Leo A. Rover, Patrick J. Haltigan, D. J. Ryan, W. F. Montavon, Michael J. Dowd, Leo Kolb, J. J. Degnan, W. L. Peak and others.

Hit-Run Suspect Seized in Chase

Accused Quits Auto and Runs; Is Overtaken by Two Pursuers.

Two civilians captured a man who allegedly figured in a hit-and-run crash last night after a chase by automobile and on foot, according to police reports. No one was injured except the hit-and-run driver, who was booked for investigation.

The chase started at Florida avenue and Second street northwest, when a car driven by Abram Lee, colored, 26 years old, of 142 Randolph street northwest, is said to have crowded into another car operated by Joseph H. Rivera, a Filipino, 26 years old, of 225 Morgan street northwest. Rivera overtook the car and forced it into the curb, where it struck an automobile of Henry Craven, parked in front of his home at 2219 Flagler street northwest.

Lee is said to have attempted to escape on foot and was captured by William F. Johnson, of 134 Adams street northwest, who held him until police arrived. Lee was treated for cuts and bruises on his face at Freedmen's Hospital.

Crash Hurts Woman And Lawyer for U. S.

John Maktos, 28-year-old associate attorney at the State Department, and his companion, Mrs. Anna Nichols, 33, of 4415 Fifteenth street northwest, were slightly injured in a collision at Sixteenth and K streets northwest early yesterday.

Maktos, who lives at 704 Eighteenth street northwest and Mrs. Nichols were treated at Emergency Hospital for cuts and bruises. The automobile which collided with the Maktos machine was operated by Richard Wiley, of Alexandria, Va. Both cars were badly damaged. No arrests were made.

Girl, 18, Is Injured By Triple Accident

She was riding with Fred A. Black, 27 years old, of 3212 Alabama avenue southeast, going east on East Capitol street. The machine was in collision with a truck operated north on Second street. The impact threw it into a street car.

Monoxide Gas Overcomes Driver, Cab Hits Window

A cab driver was overcome by carbon monoxide gas early yesterday morning while at the wheel of his cab. The machine got out of control, leaped a curb at Fifteenth street and New York avenue northwest, cut off a flagpole and cracked a plate glass window of the Postal Telegraph Co. in the Washington building.

The driver, James W. Dellan, 21 years old, of 1118 G street southeast, was taken to Emergency Hospital for treatment of the gas poisoning. He was later released. The accident happened about 5:30 a. m. as Dellan was driving east on Pennsylvania avenue.

DEGREES AWARDED TO 23 NOTABLES AT G.W.U. CONVOCATION

WASHINGTON PRAISED BY PRESIDENT MARVIN

With a Bicentennial convocation and the awarding of honorary degrees to 23 notables at Constitution Hall last night, George Washington University celebrated its 111th year of existence.

With the pomp of academic solemnity coloring the gathering, President Cloyd Heck Marvin awarded the honorary degrees to the gown-clad celebrities and degrees and certificates to 114 midyear graduates of the university.

After organ selections, reiminiscent of colonial days, played by John Russell Mason and the processional march, the Rev. Clarence A. Langston, rector of Pohick Church, delivered the invocation.

Then followed President Marvin's address, a stirring eulogy of Washington, whose dream was that of a great university in the Capital City.

Praises Washington.

In part, he said: "The personality of Washington is as vivid in the hearts of men as if he had lived but yesterday. Washington dreamed a dream. It was a vision of the colonies united and at peace.

"He has come to personify this American Republic, yet he belongs to the world. His place in history is unique. He is associated with liberty and holds the esteem of men wherever that word is spoken.

"Were this nation to follow the principles of morality among nations as held by Washington, we should be compelled to accept leadership that we may—'observe good faith and justice toward all nations.' This is the road to peace."

Citations With Degrees.

The honorary degrees were given with the following citations:

Union Noble Bethell, diligent in business, he deals honorably with all men—a worthy social steward.

Philander Betts, a man in which humanitarianism, science and discipline have combined to create an engineer with high feeling for service.

Walter Collins Clephane a real personality, consecrated to the development of mankind through the high calling of the law.

Called Kindly and Just.

Jessie Fant Evans, kindly and just, she believes in the best things, fosters real undertakings and seeks to ennoble the lives of her comrades.

Daniel O. Hastings, trained in the law, he has strength for righteousness and is warm-hearted toward those with whom he lives.

Adolph A. Hoehling, of orderly life, just and sincere in service.

Patrick J. Hurley, decidedly a personality, of magnificent patriotism, he has courage to do.

Nelson Trusler Johnson, observer of world relations and kindly judge of peoples—sincere in service and friendship.

Leader in Vocation.

SIMON KELLNER DIES AS AUTO OVERTURNS

Capital Man Killed in South; Moses, Driving, Was With Abrams When Shot.

The body of Simon Kellner, 46 years old, who was killed Sunday night when the automobile in which he was riding skidded from the road and overturned near Camden, S. C., was brought to Washington yesterday to await funeral arrangements.

Mr. Kellner, who lived at 737-A Rock Creek Church road northwest, was en route to Florida when the accident occurred. The machine, driven by W. P. Moses, of 1620 Buchanan street northwest, skidded on the slippery road and turned over after running from the highway. Mr. Moses and Mrs. Annie Kellner, the dead man's wife, escaped injury.

Mr. Moses, who was driving Mr. and Mrs. Kellner to Florida, was in company with Harry Abrams several weeks ago when the latter was shot.

Besides his widow, Mr. Kellner is survived by two sons, Nathan, 17 years old, and Donald, 10 years old, and two daughters, Mrs. William Altman and Beatrice Kellner, 9 years old, all of this city.

MINE BUDGET SLASH STIRS HOUSE DEBATE

Threatened reductions in Federal personnel yesterday precipitated another debate on the floor of the House after members voted to trim $48,000 off one of the Bureau of Mines estimates.

Representative Lewis W. Douglas (Democrat), Arizona, fathered an amendment to cut appropriations for Economics of Mineral Industries from $273,430 to $225,000.

Representative Paul J. Kvale (Republican), Minnesota, wanted to know how many would lose out as a result of the cut.

"If we are going to balance our budget there are going to be a lot of Government employes to lose their jobs," Representative Douglas said.

"It narrows down to this: Shall we deny employment to the few for the benefit of the whole country, or shall we give employment to those few at the expense of the country?"

Further economy in the House yesterday resulted in a reduction of $194,000 in the amount allotted to the Bureau of Mines for next year by the appropriations committee.

SLAYING OF M'BRIDE DENIED BY JACKSON; WILL FACE CHARGES

SAYS HE KNOWS NOTHING OF MURDER OF OIL MAN

Engages Counsel and Avers He Is Innocent; Admits Rum Prison Term.

From his cell in the Petersburg, Va., City Jail, H. G. "Slim" Jackson, 32, yesterday afternoon stoutly denied a charge of murder placed against him by authorities of Prince Georges County, Md., and said that he would not fight extradition.

"I'm innocent of the charge and I am ready to go to Maryland to prove that I had nothing to do with the case," Jackson stated.

Prince Georges officials charge Jackson killed Barney McBride, wealthy Oklahoma oil man, whose body was found in a culvert near Meadows, Md., August 15, 1922. Petersburg police took Jackson into custody here Saturday night at the request of Deputy Sheriff Tom Garrison, of Prince Georges, who informed local officers that a murder charge had been lodged against Jackson.

Willing to Return.

The prisoner has engaged counsel and his statement as to his innocence and his willingness to return to Maryland to face the charge followed a conference with his attorney yesterday afternoon.

Jackson is married and has resided in Petersburg for a number of years. He said he had visited certain sections of Maryland on different occasions, but that he had never set foot in Prince Georges County. He was of the opinion that his arrest is due to a case of mistaken identity. He said he knew nothing of the town of Meadows.

Admits Prison Term.

He acknowledged having recently passed six months in a Baltimore prison after conviction on a charge of violating the prohibition law, and he has been before police court in his city on several occasions to answer misdemeanor charges.

N. B. Munson, of Petersburg, counsel for Jackson, said he expected to prove that the Petersburg man had nothing whatsoever to do with the slaying of McBride.

Garrison said last night he had not heard officially of Jackson's decision to waive extradition, but that he would go to Petersburg to bring him back today. He expects to have McBride in the Marlboro, Md., Jail by nightfall.

Armed Passenger Robs Taxi Driver of $9.60

A taxicab driver lost $9.60 to an armed man who held him up at Bates and Rock Creek Church roads northeast early yesterday. The driver, Alfred Audrey, colored, of 1012 R street northwest, told police the robber, also colored, hired his cab at North Capitol street and Massachusetts avenue and told him to drive to the Soldiers' Home Grounds.

At the Rock Creek Church road gate the man placed a pistol to his side and told him to go to Kelly's corner, Audrey said. There the man took his money and escaped.

Honorary Order Of Army Revived

Decoration Established by Washington Is Ordered Restored.

The Ancient Order of the Purple Heart, an Army decoration established in 1782 by Gen. Washington for the enlisted men and noncommissioned officers of the Army, was revived yesterday in orders issued by the War Department.

The order may now be conferred on persons who, "while serving in the Army of the United States, perform any singularly meritorious act of extraordinary fidelity or essential service." Three soldiers were awarded the citation in the Revolutionary War.

Under the new ruling many hundreds of soldiers will become eligible for the award. It must be given within three years of the performance of the act of heroism and may not be given posthumously.
